"Makings" Seized; 4 Men Arrested

New York Traders Sent Gasping to Street; Market Closed.

Boston, Aug. 4 (AP).—Boston police late tonight arrested four men, allegedly members of the ring responsible for the tear gas bombing of the New York Stock Exchange. The arrests were made in a Milk street loft on a tip telegraphed here by New York police.

The men, all from Greater Boston, said they were members of the "Commoner or International party."

Police said they found "the makings of three bombs" in packages addressed to President Roosevelt, former President Hoover and Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President at the last election.

Fuses on Packages.

"The packages contained fuses and alarm clocks for setting off the fuses," Police Lieutenant Timothy Donovan said.

Donovan, who headed a raiding party of two sergeants and four patrolmen, said there were no explosives in the packages, nor did they find any in the loft.

The arrested men gave their names as William Overton, Somerville; Otto Kernele, Cambridge; Paul Palaczi, West Somerville, and Clarence Lyons, Cambridge.

Bombs Halt Trading.

New York, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Two tear gas bombs were tossed into a remote corner of the New York Stock Exchange today and the acrid, irritating fumes billowed over the room to chase gasping, weeping brokers to the street and force suspension of stock market trading until Monday.

Lieut. Charles Newman of the bomb squad — the organization which has handled such explosions as the fatal Wall Street bomb disaster of 1920—said there was every indication the bombs may have been placed by persons who did not appreciate the havoc which the 6-cylinders, loaded with gas, might create. He said the bombs were the type used by armored cars which carry money over the financial district for banks. He believes they may have been stolen from some armored car parked near the exchange.

No one was injured, although scores were treated by emergency doctors and in the hundreds of doctors' offices scattered through the downtown district for inflamed eyes and nasal passages.

Virginia Repeal Vote Seen Oct. 3

Weaver Says He'll Urge Date on Legislature August 17.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 4 (AP).—State Senator Aubrey G. Weaver, Front Royal, today said general approval of his proposal that Virginia vote on repeal October 3 indicated the probability that the State referendum would be held on that date.

"Not only would the date preclude the possibility of confusing general election issues, but it would afford Virginia the opportunity of being among the first 36 States to vote," he said.

Senator Weaver advanced the October 3 referendum proposal immediately after the call of the special session of the General Assembly for August 17.

The Legislature is to set up the repeal referendum machinery. Senator Weaver said he would be prepared to offer the date for consideration of the Assembly immediately. He said many members of the Assembly had informed him of their approval of his suggestion.

South Dakota House Approves 3.2 Beer

Pierre, S. Dak., Aug. 4 (AP).—Legalization of 3.2 per cent beer in South Dakota advanced near realization today when the House of Representatives in special session approved the Senate bill to tax the brew for relief revenue. The vote was 91 to 10.

The House adopted several amendments which will require Senate concurrence before the act can be presented to Gov. Tom Berry.

Ambassador Gibson Reaches Rio de Janeiro

Brandenburg, East Prussia, Aug. 4 (AP).—Having beaten the American world record for gliding by approximately 15 hours, Kurt Schmidt, Koenigsberg University student, brought his sailplane to earth tonight, after hovering for 36 hours and 37 minutes at an altitude of 200 to 300 meters (650 to 1,000 feet).

His performance was all the more remarkable since a faint breeze at the start freshened the course Thursday and some gusts reached gale force, accompanied by lashing rain, well into the Friday morning hours.

The previous record was held by Lieut. William A. Cocke, jr., of the United States.

Martial Law Threatened in Cuban Riots

Shop Windows Broken During Uprising by Masses.

Almost simultaneously Cienfuegos, in Santa Clara Province, flared into violence. Hundreds shattered shop windows, battled police who sought to dissolve them, wounded three and resisted rural guards.

A presidential edict asserted that reports from police indicated "perpetration of deeds really seditious by striking workers," and that the purpose of the movement was "to produce general paralyzation of the nation's mercantile and ordinary life."

The word "seditious" in the edict was regarded by many Cubans as official confirmation of their view, that the strike is a "passive resistance revolutionary movement."

From the protest ten days ago of a few omnibus employes against what they called exorbitant fees for operating permits, the movement increased swiftly. It was estimated 20,000 workers in various lines were on strike.

Record Flight Starts Today

Frenchmen After Distance Mark Will Leave New York Early.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 5 (Saturday) (AP).—Lieut. Maurice Rossi and Paul Codos, French aviators who have been waiting nearly two months to start a flight in quest of a new distance record, announced early today that they would take off at sunrise.

Shortly after 4 a. m. (Eastern standard time) they plan to lift their big cabin plane from Floyd Bennett Field and head out across the Atlantic Ocean.

Their course will take them over Newfoundland, but they have no definite destination on the other side. They plan to fly as long as their fuel holds out.

1 Dead, 2 Injured In Auto Accident

Driver Fatally Hurt, Two Women Go to Hospital in Pike Mishap.

One man was dead at Emergency Hospital and two women injured following an automobile accident yesterday on the Alexandria and Leesburg pike, near Herndon, Va.

Charles Moriarity, Ballston (Va.) driver of the car, which overturned when it struck a bump in the road, died from a fractured skull and internal injuries soon after being taken to the hospital.

His two companions, Mrs. May C. Cuver, 30, of Hyattsville, Md., and Miss Grace Latona, 38, of 1907 Thirty-fifth place northwest, were treated for lacerations at the hospital.

Mrs. Latona is the mother of Anthony Latona, coholder of the District public parks tennis doubles championship. Moriarity was Latona's grandfather.

The injured persons were sent to Emergency by Deputy Sheriff Vernon Cockrille, of Fairfax County. The party was on its way to Ashton, Va.

$30,000,000 Is Shipped To Britain and France

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—Sixty-six tons of gold and silver earmarked by the Federal Reserve Bank for the Bank of France and several private banks in England were shipped on the Olympic tonight.

The shipment, valued at approximately $30,000,000, was the largest to leave the country in many months.

Ready for Balloon Ascension Into Stratosphere

Wide World Photos.

Lieut. Comdr. T. G. W. Settle leans out the window of the globe in which he was prepared to take off last night on a balloon ascension into the stratosphere from the Century of Progress at Chicago. Mrs. Settle, inset, is seen at a radio in her hotel room in Chicago awaiting news of the flight.

Settle Is Ready To Penetrate Stratosphere

Chicago, Aug. 4 (AP).—A mammoth balloon was ready tonight to soar up from the earth, swinging a young naval officer away toward the moon on an uncharted journey into space.

Scientists hoped the flight would take him 10 miles and more above the earth—into the stratosphere, the layer of nothingness where they believe rests the answer to the riddle of the cosmic ray.

Delayed for Weeks.

Nearly perfect weather conditions, for which he had delayed for weeks, gave Lieut. Comdr. T. G. W. Settle confidence of success.

The balloon riding champion rested today for the nerve-racking trip of from 20 to 30 hours. A ground crew of 100 men watched his craft in Soldier's Field, into which poured thousands of spectators to see the start of the venture.

During the cool hours of darkness the balloon, so large that a full acre of fabric was required to cover it, was expected to float about 15,000 feet above the earth.

No Air to Breathe.

When the sun rays begin beating down on the huge bag and expanding the hydrogen gas with their heat, then will start the dash into the stratosphere, where it is always 67 degrees below zero and there's no air to breathe.

Settle is confident of riding safe and serene through the upper regions in the metal ball, seven feet in diameter, sealed tightly shut, and constructed of magnesium alloy 25 per cent lighter than aluminum.

Irish Government Buildings Guarded

Rumors Follow Patrol by Armed Police for First Time.

Dublin, Irish Free State, Aug. 4 (AP).—About 60 police armed with revolvers tonight began patrolling government buildings and Leinster House, where Parliament meets, and started guarding the approaches to them.

The move started a number of sensational rumors, especially because it was the first time since the establishment of the Free State police that they carried arms.

Day Rotative Furlough To Be Used for G. P. O.

One thousand employes of the printing division of the Government Printing Office will be placed on a one-day rotative furlough during the period ending August 15, The Post learned last night.

Officials said it is not contemplated that the furlough will be extended beyond that time. Only one section of the office, where work is now slack and appropriations curtailed, will be affected.

Settle's Mother Hears Flight of Son by Radio

Blue eyes shining, Mrs. Mae Settle, sat waiting before the radio in a downtown G street restaurant early today waiting for an announcer to drone forth a word picture of the flight of her only child, Lieut. Thomas T. G. W. Settle, into the uncharted stratosphere.

"I had a telegram yesterday afternoon from Thomas," she said. "He's fine, brave and true as gold. He doesn't fear anything."

Mrs. Settle was with her sister, Mrs. J. G. Larkin, aunt of the intrepid balloonist. She explained that the radio in her room at the Lafayette Hotel is shut off automatically at midnight.

Nation Starts Record Drive Against Crime

War on rackets and organized crime was started by the Federal Government yesterday.

In assuming command of the drive at the behest of President Roosevelt, Prof. Raymond Moley, Assistant Secretary of State, announced that he would not concentrate on individual cases, such as the O'Connell and other kidnapings.

Prof. Moley will establish headquarters in the Department of Justice. He will direct his efforts toward coordinating the law enforcement agencies of Federal and State Government for a concerted drive against racketeering, kidnaping and gangster activities.

The present crime drive will point for action and not big, bulky reports like the Wickersham Commission, it was announced. Around Prof. Moley in the Department of Justice will gather a corps of legal and criminal experts.

The actual work of the crime council was initiated in the meeting yesterday between Prof. Moley, Assistant Attorney General Joseph B. Keenan, who just returned from Chicago, and Sanford Bates, superintendent of prisons, at the Department of Justice.

Moley's council will not be a police body. They will study from the scientific and historical side the problem of the criminal in relation to his present political environment.

The establishment of an American Scotland Yard was frowned on by Moley as inadequate to the geographical problem offered by the United States' extent.

Arizona Corporation Aid Freed in Fund Charges

Phoenix, Ariz., Aug. 4 (AP).—The Arizona Senate today acquitted Charles R. Howe, corporation commissioner, on 16 articles on impeachment brought against him by the House of Representatives.

The articles charged irregular handling of State funds.

Host at Party Held by Police In Jett's Death

Raymond Lange Took Man to Car Stop and Returned Hurt, Police Say.

Raymond Lange, 35, host at a party attended by Wilmer Lee Jett in a river cabin Monday night when Jett was found dead on the Glen Echo trolley tracks, was arrested last night by Montgomery County police and held for investigation.

Lange was arrested at the cabin when police took eight of the party guests there to reconstruct the scene of the party.

Jett was last seen alive, according to the other guests, when Lange took him ostensibly to the street car stop. They told police Lange returned to the cottage with a badly bruised eye, which he did not explain.

The eight persons, arrested yesterday afternoon, were released early today after Lange's apprehension.

Lange's cottage on the bank of the Potomac is 100 yards from the spot where a street car ran over Jett or Jett's body.

The guests were arrested in Washington during the afternoon after a tour of downtown department stores by detectives and Charles C. Jett, brother of the dead grocery clerk. None of them was arrested as suspects, but it was

Four Artillerymen Are Hurt by Bullet

Fort Monroe, Va., Aug. 4 (AP).—Four members of the 260th Coast Artillery, of Washington, D. C., were injured tonight when a tracer bullet exploded during machine gun practice. Hospital attendants said that the injuries were not serious.

The injured were Lieut. Clifton Jett, Battery A, whose back was hurt by shell fragments; Sergt. Raymond Bell, Battery E, fragments in his leg; Private Matpia, Battery E, injury to shoulder, and Sergt. Watson, Battery E, fragments in his neck. Hospital attendants said the shell fragments would be removed tomorrow.

The 260th Coast Artillery, a District of Columbia regiment, began a two-week's training schedule here Sunday.

Curtis Visits Calles; Views Mexican Park

Mexico City, Aug. 4 (AP).—Charles Curtis, former Vice President of the United States, today was the guest of General Plutarco Elias Calles at his home in Cuernavaca. They, with several Government officials, visited the newly created Juvenile Park there, which was established at the suggestion of the former Mexican President.

Miners and Operators Accept Roosevelt Truce; 70,000 Return Monday

Agreement Is Hailed in Capital as Victory for Administration.

Lewis Outlines Terms of Peace

Weighmen to Be Paid by Workers to Check Their Tonnage.

The armistice in the Pennsylvania coal strike was regarded in Washington last night as an important victory in the administration's industrial recovery drive.

Behind the peace program is the combined weight of the industrial, financial and labor leaders of the Nation.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, pledged the President "the fullest degree of cooperation in his earnest effort to restore order and bring conomic stability to the stricken coal industry."

He said orders would be issued immediately to every member of the miners' union to return to work in the mines at once.

Compromise on Agreement.

The agreement ending the coal strike temporarily was a compromise. The companies agreed to permit check-weighmen at the mines where the miners wanted and paid them.

All disputes arising during the armistice are to be settled by a board of three named by the President.

Lewis issued the following statement:

"After prolonged negotiations with representatives of various coal companies in Pennsylvania, the administrator of the national recovery act and Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, the officers of the United Mine Workers of America have acceded to the request of the President of the United States, made through the administrator of the National Recovery Administration, that a temporary truce be declared in the bituminous coal fields of central and western Pennsylvania and the mine workers return to work pending hearing and deter-

Gandhi Freed For 4 Minutes

Refusing Terms of Release, Indian Leader Again Is Placed in Jail.

Poona, India, Aug. 4 (AP).—The Mahatma Mohandas K. Gandhi, free for just four minutes today, was again a prisoner in Yeroda Jail tonight under a new and more permanent status.

He was sentenced to one year of simple imprisonment because he declined to accept conditions under which he was released. These were that he refrain from political activities and remain in the Poona District.

Under his new term he will be treated as an ordinary political prisoner, which means he must do without the privileges he enjoyed during previous imprisonments.

He was tried within the prison walls today after his brief moment of liberty. The magistrate said only a one-year sentence was imposed because of Gandhi's age—he is now 63—and his state of health. The Nationalist leader informed the court that it was no pleasure to him to break the laws of the State. He said he was offering all the resistance a peaceful man could to what he described as an unjust system of government.

Hurricane Sweeps Rio Grande Valley

Brownsville, Tex., Aug. 4 (AP).—A hurricane roared into the fertile Rio Grande Valley from the Gulf of Mexico late today, damaging homes, crops and electric lines and menacing the lives of persons in the lowlands.

One house and four beach shacks on the lower end of San Padre Island were smashed in by heavy seas. Campers and a detachment of cavalrymen were marooned on Brazos Island, also near the mouth of the Rio Grande, but shore observers said they were on high ground and appeared to be in no danger.

The hurricane, with a wind of 60 miles an hour velocity, disrupted light and power lines in Brownsville and severed telephone connections with Port Isabel and the Coast Guard station on Padre Island.

Bus Hits Auto; Driver With Gun Wounds Man

Dover Plains, N. Y., Aug. 4 (AP).—A passenger on a bus was critically wounded today when an angry motorist whipped out a revolver and shot at the driver of the bus, which had collided with his car.

Gov. Pinchot to Call Off Troops

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug 4 (U.P.).—Withdrawal of the Pennsylvania National Guard from the bituminous coal strike zones of western Pennsylvania will be ordered by Gov. Pinchot.

High officials said that the troops would be recalled as soon as the miners returned to work Monday.

Gov. Pinchot issued a formal statement that through settlement of the strike "the great masses of working people of Pennsylvania and the United States have won a great victory. The Government of the United States is back in the hands of the people."

The governor praised President Roosevelt and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson for interceding and negotiating a settlement. He also said that his "hat is off" to President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America. "If this strike had not been settled it might easily have broken down the entire recovery program," Gov. Pinchot added.

11 Industries Blanketed by NRA Codes

(United Press.)

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson speeded up his national recovery campaign yesterday by blanketing eleven more industries under temporary agreements, expressed "perfect satisfaction" with industry's support and forecast definite inroads upon unemployment within two weeks.

Many workers are affected by the modified temporary agreement promulgated yesterday which embraced the retail lumber, lumber products, building materials and building specialties industry, advertising specialties, ice cream, fluid milk, knitted outerwear, oil burner, optical, paint, varnish and lacquer, printing, Printers League section of the New York Employing Printers Association, toys and playthings, wheat flour milling.

Johnson withdrew a temporary code approved Thursday for the laundry industry which provoked criticism because it provided less than 14 cents an hour minimum wage for female workers in the South. The code will be revised, it was indicated.

Gives Period of Grace.

The administrator will give industry a two weeks' "period of grace" and indicated afterward he may exert pressure through consumers to bring laggards under the sign of the blue eagle. Meanwhile he has asked consumers to be reasonable.

"I will not give any signal," he said, "but nothing drastic should be considered by any one within two weeks."

He made it clear that local committees have no authority to organize boycotts, as has been reported in some cases.

Negotiations for an oil industry code reached such an impasse yesterday that Johnson turned the delicate problem over to Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes. The deadlock concerns price fixing. The industry demands it. Johnson says "no."

In dozens of Government agencies, Johnson revealed, his aids are engaged in studying statistics covering price arrangements proposed in the steel industry's code. Vigorous complaints have been made against prices based on a number of basing points as proposed, with the claim this reinstitutes the old "Pittsburgh plus" system.

District Lumber Dealers Get Special Wage Rate

Retailers of lumber and lumber products in the District were given a special minimum wage rate of 35 cents an hour or $14 per week under the provisions of the temporary blanket codes approved yesterday by the Recovery Administration.

The same rate was fixed for Maryland and Delaware, although the minimum for the eastern portion of Pennsylvania and the southern portion of New Jersey was fixed at 40 cents an hour or $16 a week.

Despite the differential allowed District dealers, the new code will mean that several will have to boost materially the present pay of their employes, if they are to join in the recovery march.

One May Die in Clash Of Guards, Communists

Seville, Spain, Aug. 4 (AP).—Several persons were wounded, one possibly fatally, when assault guards fired today on a group of Communists. A number were arrested.

Mediation Board Named for Consideration of All Labor Rows.

Johnson Flies To Hyde Park

President Congratulates Parties on All Sides of Agreement.

By Lawrence Sullivan
(Post Staff Correspondent).

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 5 (Saturday).—A truce in the Pennsylvania coal strike, which threatened the national recovery program, was announced by President Roosevelt at 1 o'clock this morning after a dramatic midnight conference with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the NRA.

A special mediation board of three Presidential appointees was announced to consider all matters in dispute between the miners and the coal operators.

The board will be headed by Gerard Swope, chairman of the board of the General Electric Co.; George L. Berry, president of the International Pressmen's Union, and Louis Kirstein, of Boston, are the other members of the commission.

Return on Monday.

The striking miners are to return to work on Monday morning. The status quo will be maintained by all parties until the mediation board surveys the questions in dispute, or until the general competitive codes covering the bituminous industry become operative.

Gen. Johnson said that 70,000 men were affected by the truce. The terms of the temporary working arrangement have been accepted by the independent coal operators as well as by the far-flung subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation.

When President Roosevelt approved the terms of the armistice he called John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, on the telephone at Washington. Lewis said that telegrams ordering the men back to the pits Monday would be flashed to local unions throughout the disturbed area.

In announcing the truce the President paid high tribute to the patriotism and public spirit of the leaders on both sides of the dispute. He issued the following statement:

"A great coal strike threatened the entire bituminous field and, because of scant storage at factories, also threatened the revival of manufacture, on which so much depends. On the basis of a simple suggestion for settlement made by Gen. Johnson, both management and labor have declared an absolute truce on dissension at the mines to await the resolution of the whole matter at the coming hearings on the coal codes.

"In the meantime, all disagreements are to be settled by a board of my selection, to which both sides agree—Gerard Swope, Louis Kirstein and George L. Berry. Never in our country has a strike of such threatened proportions been settled so quickly and so generously.

"The public-spirited men on both sides of the agreement are to be

Suit Holds State Lacks Government

Chicago, Aug. 4 (AP).—The State of Illinois was declared to be "without a government" in a suit started in Federal Court today over payment of back taxes.

Attorney John W. Keogh, seeking to prohibit County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki from appointing a tax receiver for property Keogh owns, took the case to Federal Court on the basis of a Territorial act of 1787, covering part of what is now Illinois.

Contending that the act provided for a method of representation in the State Legislature which had not been followed, although the act was incorporated in the State's constitution, Keogh said that an appeal to State courts would be useless because "the State is now without a government in accordance with its constitution."

Split-Up Plan Of Drug, Inc. Brings Protest

Securities Act Cited In Plea Against Shareholders' Meeting Monday.

(Associated Press.)

A protest against the proposed split-up of the $175,000,000 Drug, Inc., holding company, into five separate companies was filed yesterday with the Federal Trade Commission by a stockholder and a bondholder.

The complainants, Leo Levy, a New York City attorney, designating himself as a stockholder of the holding company, and John Herbert Harris, a bondholder, of United Drug Co., subsidiary of Drug, Inc., requested the commission to stop the stockholders' meeting scheduled for Monday at Wilmington, Del. They charged the split-up contemplated "reorganization in name only" and was in conflict with the new national securities act.

The complainants also asked for an investigation of the "entire history of Drug, Inc., with particular reference to issuance of $40,000,000 of so-called bonds of the United Drug Co. after that company came under the complete control of Drug, Inc., in March, 1928."

The National Shawmut Bank, of Boston, as trustee for the bond issue, was asked by the complainants to file with the commission a statement regarding the bonds.

"The obvious purpose of the National Securities Act," their complaint said, "was and is to stop uncontrolled transactions in stocks and bonds to the end that the holders and proposed holders thereof may be fully protected."

Lewis Lists Terms Of Miners' Truce

"Under the terms of the temporary settlement all the men will return to their former positions in the mines without prejudice or discrimination. Checkweighmen to be employed by the mine workers and paid by them will be permitted at the mines where the men request a checkweighman. All matters of dispute arising at the mines of this area during this period will be settled by a board of three, selected by the President of the United States.

Expects Logical Conclusion.

This settlement will not in any manner influence or prejudice the adjustment of the problems of the coal industry by the National Recovery Administration in the hearings on the coal code, which begin August 9. This arrangement makes possible the logical consideration of the intricate and deep-seated ills of the mining industry in the manner intended and prescribed by the recovery act.

"Instructions requesting compliance with the terms of this settlement will be issued immediately to the district organizations and local unions in the affected area. The United Mine Workers of America will call upon its every loyal member to accept immediately this arrangement and extend to the President of the United States the fullest degree of cooperation in his earnest effort to restore order and bring economic stability to the stricken coal industry."

(United Press.)

Lasts Seven Hours.

Agreement to call off the strike during the President's reemployment drive was reached at a seven-hour conference here yesterday between Gen. Johnson and representatives of the mine operators and labor leaders.

The Recovery Administration late the day before apparently had been defeated in its strike-settling efforts, but the forceful recovery administrator returned to the fight again yesterday and shortly after 6 p. m. stepped into a plane to carry the truce to the President for his approval.

Pinchot Returns Home.

Gov. Pinchot left at once for his home in Harrisburg. Attending the conference also were John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and other labor leaders, and leading coal operators of central Pennsylvania.

Conferences at Johnson's office brought together operators representing substantially the bituminous coal industry and representatives of the United Mine Workers of America, the labor organization in the Pennsylvania strike.

Representing labor besides John L. Lewis, were Philip Murray, vice president, and Henry Warrum, general counsel. Representing the recovery administration labor advisory board was McGrady and Dr. Leo Wollman.

Pennsylvania coal operators present included Charles O'Neil, vice president Peale, Peacock & Kerr; Ben Clark, president Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Coal Co.; John Morrow, president Pittsburgh Coal Co.; Scott Stewart, president W. C. Rainey Co., Uniontown, and John Jamison, president Jamison Coal & Coke Co.

Walter C. Teagle, president Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, a member of the recovery board, was in and out of the conference.

Stores in Orange Aid Recovery Act

Orange, Va., Aug. 4 (Spl.).—At a meeting of the Orange County Chamber of Commerce, 17 merchants of the town of Orange agreed to cooperate with the recovery act plan requiring that stores be open at least 52 hours each week.

It was decided that beginning Monday, stores will be opened week days at 8 a. m. and close at 5 p. m., with the exception of Thursday and Saturday. A half day holiday will be taken on Thursday, and Saturday hours will be from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Merchants at Gordonsville have adopted the same schedule, excepting that their half holiday is taken on Wednesday instead of Thursday.

Mrs. Pinchot Extends Support to Striking Mill Workers

Manufacture Of Airplanes Drops in 1933

Those for Domestic Use, However, Show Gain Over Military.

Manufacture of airplanes in the United States was less during the first six months of 1933 than during the same period of last year. In each period, however, planes for civil use were in the majority, as compared with military planes.

Since the first of this year 669 planes have been manufactured and licenses obtained from the Aeronautics Branch of the Department of Commerce. Of these, 306 were for civil use, 212 for military use and 151, both civil and military, were purchasers in foreign countries.

During the same period of 1932, 722 planes were built here, of which 351 were for domestic civil use and 325 for military use. Only 46 were exported.

Civil monoplanes lead in numbers. This year, 215 were monoplanes and 84 were biplanes. There were seven autogiros built.

Small sport planes of the monoplane type lead in number of units. There were 120 of these and 95 cabin monoplanes. The biplanes included 26 open cockpit and 58 cabin craft.

Eleven Industries Put Under Codes

yesterday. The difficulty is to get one group that can speak for the whole industry. Malcolm Murr, deputy administrator in charge, called a meeting for August 15 when an effort will be made to organize a new association which can submit a code. Pay rates varied from a minimum of $6.30 in the South to $15 in the North.

(Associated Press.)

Flour manufacturers employing thousands of workers were blanketed under a temporary wage and hour code.

The flour code, which, when adopted by mills, will allow them to display the blue eagle, provided for a 40-hour week instead of 35 as prescribed in President Roosevelt's general agreement for such workers. Wages for the millers will range from 45 cents an hour minimum in the larger cities to as low as 37½ cents in smaller communities, with a 5-cent differential for Southern territory.

Announcement was made in New York that utility and gas companies would sign codes affecting 350,000 employes and file them with the administration today.

Cleveland A. Newton, of St. Louis, said he would file exceptions for the American shoe manufacturers to the code submitted by the National Boot & Shoe Manufacturers Association, demanding a wider wage differential for plants in small cities and towns.

Restaurant operators, said to represent more than 55 per cent of the establishments, planned to seek temporary effectiveness of a code which was estimated by them to increase pay rolls $2,000,000 weekly and give jobs to thousands.

Druggists, drug manufacturers, packers and other industries were negotiating for temporary codes which would exempt them from signing the Presidential agreement as originally written pending formal hearings on a permanent code.

Hearings on codes of competition for the cotton garment and shirt industries closed with many factions still in sharp disagreement. Instructions to them from Deputy Administrator Lindsay Rogers were to attempt conciliation and report back by Wednesday.

Northern and Southern manufacturers were in dispute over a wage differential, and urban and rural interests clashed on the same issue between cities and towns.

District Hardware Men Adopt Blanket Code

Robbers Hold Up Restricted Bank

Montpelier, Ind., Aug. 4 (AP).—The First National Bank of Montpelier was held up today by three men, who escaped with approximately $10,000.

One of the robbers held the bank employes under guard in a rear room. A second man forced D. M. Tewksbury, conservator in charge of the bank, to open the vault. All cash and currency was taken from the vault and from the cash drawers.

Tewksbury said the robbers were well dressed, unmasked and polite but impressive in their demand that the vault be opened.

Nicaragua Uses U. S. Pattern in Recovery Plans

By Morgan Baker.

The government of Nicaragua, under President Juan B. Sacasa, is embarking on a sweeping program toward economic and social rehabilitation embodying many features of the American industrial recovery act, it was learned yesterday from Dr. Henri De Bayle, charge d'affaires.

Issue of $1,500,000 of new currency by the National Bank of Nicaragua is being arranged by its board of directors, which resumed conferences in New York yesterday on the return of Dr. De Bayle from Washington.

The envoy had been in close contact with the State Department since the arsenal explosion Wednesday at the Campo de Marte national guard barracks in Managua.

Americans on Board.

The bank board consists of five Nicaraguans and four Americans. Dr. Constantine McGuire, of Washington, is chairman. The Cordova unit of money is pegged to the United States dollar. The National Bank of Nicaragua is the only institution in the nation having authority to issue currency, De Bayle said.

Of the proposed issue, $1,000,000 will be put on public works, chiefly highway construction and extension of railroads. Health, education and agricultural projects will share in the funds.

Coffee, the country's main crop, has been at a low price during the depression. Nicaragua's coffee exports average $3,000,000 annually. The government is promoting diversification of crops.

Sandino at Work.

Gen. Augusto Sandino and his one-time soldiers now are engaged in an extensive jungle reclamation project with assistance of the government. Farm implements and other equipment are being furnished by Managua to the fiery patriot, his followers and their families.

Gold mines, abandoned because of unsettled conditions preceding and during the occupation of the United States Marines, are being reopened and new ones planned, Dr. De Bayle added. Feeling among the people steadily is growing more cordial toward the United States. The good work done by Americans in the Managua earthquake made a deep impression on Nicaraguans, Dr. De Bayle recalled.

Recovery Act Fraud Charged in Sign Sale

St. Louis, Aug. 4 (AP).—Selling blue eagle emblems to persons unauthorized by law to buy them was charged in a Federal warrant issued today against Harlan French, 29, a salesman of suburban Clayton.

The warrant, issued by United States Commissioner John A. Burke on complaint of Bryan Purteet Assistant United States Attorney, further charges that French's alleged violation of the provisions of the recovery act obstructed and impeded President Roosevelt's program for national industrial recovery and reemployment.

Federal Ruling Asked on Retail Oil Restriction

(Associated Press.)

A writ of mandamus to compel the Federal Trade Commission to rule immediately upon the legality of the lease and agency practice whereby retail oil agents are bound to handle exclusively the products of one company was asked yesterday in a suit filed in the District of Columbia Supreme Court for a number of retail dealers.

The suit also asked that the Trade Commission be compelled to issue formal complaints against the practice and that it make public at once its findings in a lengthy investigation it has made into the lease and agency system.

Efforts to write into a proposed oil industry code a prohibition against the practice was halted this week by the announcement by Hugh S. Johnson, the industrial administrator, that the Trade Commission decision must be awaited.

Warner I. Cubberly, Washington attorney, brought the suit for the Chicago Service Station Operators Association and the National Association of Gasoline Retailers.

Justice Joseph Cox set the case for a hearing on August 10.

40 in Doomed Bureau Spared For 2 Months

By Robert C. Albright.

President Roosevelt yesterday doled out two months more of life to another of those doomed Federal agencies slated for the reorganization ax on August 10.

An executive order postponing until October 10 the scheduled abolition of the Federal Coordinating Service was signed at Hyde Park and promulgated here through the State Department.

The order affords temporary respite to 40 or more employes of the Washington office of the chief coordinator, and of nine field offices throughout the country, who would have been automatically dismissed next Thursday.

Thousands Are Affected.

It affects only indirectly the nine or ten Federal boards under supervision of the Federal Coordinating Service. The postponement is in addition to several ordered last week, affecting thousands of employes.

In explanation, it was said abolition of the service is closely tied up with consolidation of Federal procurement activities, postponed last week.

Yesterday's action followed closely an executive order setting up a new science advisory board to cooperate with the National Research Council, employing the services of noted scientists to more closely coordinate the various departments of government.

Karl T. Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was named chairman. On the day previous the President authorized another board to serve as a general clearing house for statistics under the national recovery program.

Retires on Monday.

Rear Admiral T. T. Craven, chief coordinator for the service to be abolished October 10, retires from the job Monday. He will be succeeded for the brief period the agency has to live by Col. L. L. Miller, U. S. A., his assistant.

It is estimated that the service saved nearly $5,400,000 last year through its handling of surplus and seized property alone. Many of its activities will be taken over by the new procurement division.

More Troopers Sent to Harlan

Kentucky County Tense After Second Killing On Eve of Primary.

Harlan, Ky., Aug. 4 (AP).—With 150 additional State troops ordered into the county to supplement 50 already on duty, and two men dead from fights attributed by officials to pre-election trouble, Harlan County was tense tonight on the eve of a bitterly contested local primary.

The second slaying in as many days occurred late today at Walluns Creek, 10 miles from Harlan, about the same time Adjt. Gen. H. H. Denhardt was ordering the extra troops to be on hand for tomorrow's balloting.

The victim today was Joe Lee, 40, a deputy policeman at Wallin Creek. Reports brought to the sheriff's office here said Lee was shot in a quarrel with another man over election cards. Lee, the officers were told, had torn down cards and the other man ordered him to replace them. When he refused, the shooting followed. Officers started a search for John Turner, 38, in connection with the slaying.

Wiley Post Feted In Oklahoma City

His parents and his wife were in the welcoming throng. There was a parade through the city. Post was somewhat deaf from the roar of the motor on his nonstop flight from Dayton, Ohio, where he paused today to return an Army compass which he used on his around-the-world trip.

Chick Is Hobo

Rides 22 Miles on Auto Bumper Without Turning Feather.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 4 (Spl.).—When Alvey C. Zittle left in his auto from near his home near Boonsboro yesterday, he did not know he had another passenger.

He did not discover that one of his half-grown pullets had perched upon the bumper until he reached Shepherdstown, 22 miles distant. How the chicken clung to the bumper and came through unscratched is a mystery Zittle is trying to solve.

Lifting by Bootstraps Works on New Bicycle

San Francisco, Aug. 4 (AP).—A San Francisco inventor has applied the principle of lifting himself by his bootstraps to take a horseback ride on a bicycle. And it works.

The rider of his "rhythmcycle" kicks a lever which makes the seat throw the rider into the air. The weight of the cyclist returning to the seat supplies the leverage to turn the sprocket. Inventor Joseph D. Bell says it's the easiest thing in the world to ride—if you kick at the right time.

Troy a Racket

Moley Blames Hi-jacking, Not Fair Helen, for Grecian Attack.

Prof. or Raymond Moley revealed himself yesterday not only as a consultant on criminology, but as a historian on rackets.

"Troy was the first racket in history," he said. "The Greeks attacked the city because the Trojans used to waylay the Greek treasure ships from Asia Minor and hi-jack them. Helen was just Homer's reason."

"How about the wooden horse?" some one asked.

"That was a racket, too," said Moley.

Miners, Operators Reach Armistice

congratulated in thus averting threatened disaster, but I can not let the occasion pass without referring to the tireless and constructive labors of the intermediaries, Gov. Pinchot, Gerard Swope, Edward McGrady and Walter Teagle, as well as to the operators and to John Lewis and other representatives of the miners."

After leaving the President's residence, Gen. Johnson abandoned his plan to fly back to Washington tonight. He will leave at 8 o'clock this (Saturday) morning.

Hearings on the coal codes have been called for August 9. Until these codes are approved by the President, prevailing arrangements as to wages and working conditions will be maintained in the various producing fields.

Conducted Over Phone.

Gen. Johnson explained that most of the rapid-fire negotiations Thursday and Friday had been conducted over the telephone. From Washington he dealt directly with President Irwin of the United States Steel Corporation, in New York.

The labor advisory committee of the National Recovery Administration, which is headed by Edward F. McGrady, until recently a ranking officer of the American Federation of Labor, had a large part in perfecting the terms of the truce. McGrady accompanied Gen. Johnson on his dramatic flight to Hyde Park tonight.

It was after 11 p. m. when the giant trimotor Army plane roared down on Poughkeepsie Field, 12 miles from the President's residence. A White House limousine whirled him to Hyde Park, where the President awaited the party in his study.

A squad of New York State troopers guarded the gates to the summer White House while Johnson and McGrady were in conference with the Chief Executive.

Not even attaches of the executive offices were permitted to enter the grounds until Johnson emerged. After an hour with the President, Johnson came out and declared:

"Well, it's all over, fellows."

He would not stop in the dark and deserted Albany Post road to give waiting newspapermen the terms of the truce. Instead, he hastened back to Poughkeepsie, where he announced the settlement.

Recalls 1907 Settlement.

The dramatic developments in the threatening coal dispute recalled the celebrated "Big Stick" settlement of the anthracite coal strike by President Theodore Roosevelt in 1907. In that instance, as in the present, resumption of work followed a virtual ukase from the White House, which insisted that the public welfare should not be jeopardized by differences between workers and their employers.

With Gen. Johnson as his spokesman, President Roosevelt, from his "working vacation" haven here, told the leaders on both sides of the strike that the national recovery program must not be endangered by a continuation of the struggle.

The truce binds neither side to definite commitments. The mine workers must submit to the mediation board their demand for the right to unionize the nonunion fields. The operators still must defend their program for maintaining the open shop in the steel-mill coal fields.

"The main thing is that the men go back to work at once," Gen. Johnson said after his conference with the President. "Every other question can be taken up later. A critical coal shortage already was developing in some of the Eastern steel centers, and three more days of this strike would have resulted in some steel mills blowing out furnaces for want of fuel. That sort of thing simply can not be."

Flight Takes Three Hours.

Gen. Johnson left Bolling Field, in Washington, at 7:15 o'clock Friday night in a giant Ford trimotored transport. He was piloted by Lieut. Stanley Umsted, who made the trip of 325 miles to the Government Beacon Field at Poughkeepsie in slightly less than three hours.

Two additional industrial codes also were approved by President Roosevelt. They cover the cloak and suit industry and the electrical manufacturing plants of the country. Both provide shorter hours of labor and increased wage rates.

Prospects of returning to work after 10 days of idleness as walkouts spread to some 150 collieries heartened miner and nonminer alike.

With what union chiefs estimate as 70,000 miners on strike in western Pennsylvania, business has been almost at a standstill.

Miners eagerly awaited the text of an agreement said to have received tremendous impetus through its approval by the H. C. Frick Coke Co.

With the Frick company, operator of the mines in which the strike began, in line, coal region observers looked for an early resumption of activity.

Pickets continued to patrol peacefully under the watchful eye of National Guardsmen, sent into the field by Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

Campbell, Merriam On Science Board

(Associated Press.)

A science advisory board to cooperate with the National Research Council, created during the second Wilson administration, was set up yesterday in an Executive order by President Roosevelt.

The board will study problems of Government departments with a view to improving coordination. It will be under jurisdiction of the National Academy of Science and will operate for two years.

Among those named to the board are W. W. Campbell, president of National Academy of Sciences, Washington, and Charles C. Merriam, president of Carnegie Institution, of Washington.

Shipping Board Ends Existence Next Thursday

Corporation and Remaining 38 Ships Go Under Commerce Division.

(Associated Press.)

A cherished hope of the administration to get the Government out of the shipping business yesterday has combined with President Roosevelt's Federal reorganization plans to shorten the days left to the 16-year-old Merchant Fleet Corporation and Shipping Board.

Officially, the board stands abolished next Thursday under an Executive order by Mr. Roosevelt. The fleet corporation and its 38 remaining ships will be transferred to the Commerce Department.

Just what the department will do with the vessels and the approximately 1,000 employes has not been determined, but it intends to carry on the policy of winding up commercial maritime activities.

"Will Eat First."

One official at work on the department's plans smilingly observed:

"We're going to eat the Fleet Corporation first and digest it later."

This he interpreted as meaning that ways of conducting the fleet would be worked out as things went along.

Three high officials of the fleet and board have been informed they will be needed no longer after Wednesday. They are Elmer E. Crowley, president; F. E. Ferris, in charge of operations, and Samuel Goodacre, secretary to both the board and corporation.

Many Ships Disposed Of.

Two years ago the corporation had approximately 300 ships plying the seas. It had hundreds of employes scattered about the world. Sale and lease of its shipping lines have reduced both personnel and ships.

Under the reorganization order, the Commerce Department may reemploy within the next four months as many of the workers as it needs. Many will be absorbed temporarily by the department, with officials expecting the force to be decreased gradually as the fleet coroporation's affairs are closed up.

The board was set up in September, 1916, for the encouragement of American merchant marine development and regulation of water carriers.

Party Host Held In Death of Jett thought they could throw some light on the mystery.

Authorities are trying to discover whether Jett was murdered or the victim of a tragic accident.

Police first became suspicious that Jett may have met foul play when very little blood was found on the scene, although his body was mangled by the street car.

Police also were investigating a jealousy motive in the possible murder of Jett.

One of the men arrested yesterday is said to be the husband of one of the women guests at the party, although he did not attend.

Those under arrest, beside Lange, are:

Max Applebaum, 40, of 1503 G street southeast; Mrs. Elsie A. Applebaum, 39, of 1503 G street southeast; Leona Applebaum, 14, of 1503 G street southeast; Miss Marian Bertha Hoppell, 21, of 1503 G street southeast; Gilbert D. Snead, 32, of 330 Seventeenth place southeast; Mrs. Estelle Maude Snead, 36, of 330 Seventeenth place southeast; Howard L. Leahy, 24, of 1510 Nineteenth street southeast, and John Paul Donahue, 25, of 1510 Nineteenth street southeast.

Max Applebaum and Gilbert Snead were not at the party, but are being held nevertheless.

Bank Plans Payment.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 4 (Spl.).—Another payment of 10 per cent to depositors in the closed Mechanics Loan & Savings Bank will be made in September, A. C. Merriam, receiver, announced today. The initial payment of 20 per cent, amounted to $350,000.

Lane Appointed New Minister To Nicaragua

The appointment of Arthur Bliss Lane as Minister to Nicaragua was announced yesterday at the White House.

Mr. Lane now is counselor of the American Embassy in Mexico City. He has long been one of the outstanding dipolmats in Latin-American problems and his nomination is another indication of the President's desire to have the most competent men in the service handle the relations of the United States with Latin America.

Mr. Lane will be one of the youngest men in the career with the rank of minister. He won the attention of the officials of the department during the controversy in Mexico between the church and state, when he so actively assisted Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow in the work of conciliation.

Mr. Lane's is the last shift in the career service to have been occasioned by the appointment of Jefferson Caffery as Assistant Secretary of State. Sheldon Whitehouse took Mr. Caffery's place in Venezuela, Matthew Hanna went from Nicaragua to Guatemala to replace Mr. Whitehouse, and now Mr. Lane takes the place of Mr. Hanna.

Don't Spare Guns, Nazis Tell Police

Relentless Drive Against Communists Ordered in Germany.

Berlin, Aug. 4 (AP).—The Hitler government issued orders to the G. P. A. (secret political police) today to tolerate no resistance and to use firearms relentlessly in a new campaign to suppress Communists and other leftist elements.

Communist prisoners in Hamburg henceforth will be held responsible for actions of their comrades at liberty. For every communistic act in the State, ten prisoners will be sent into solitary confinement.

Where an offender can not be arrested, his family members will be arrested, a communique said.

Vienna, Aug. 4 (AP).—Three Vienna correspondents of German newspapers were jailed today.

Reds Accused In New York's Milk Rebellion

State Board Asks Probe As Violence Goes on In Strike Area.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Charging Communists were agitating dairy farmers to spread New York State's milk strike, Gov Herbert H. Lehman's agricultural advisory commission today asked Attorney General John J. Bennett, jr., to investigate the milk "holiday."

Decision to ask the investigation came at a meeting of the commission in the executive chambers late today after reports of continued violence in the strike area.

The commission asked Gov. Lehman to direct the attorney general "to investigate the activity of these agitators."

Flat Price Refusal Upheld.

The commission upheld the State milk control board's action in refusing to abandon the classification system and order a flat 45 per cent return of the retail price of milk to the producers.

The board's refusal was the cause of the strike, which has been marked with hand-to-hand fighting between State troopers and dairymen. Today three troopers were injured. At least a dozen dairy farmers have been hurt.

Meantime Gov. Lehman in a special message at the extraordinary session of the Legislature asked that an investigation into the activities of the milk control board be made to determine whether it should be abolished.

Chicago Dealers Accused.

Chicago, Aug. 4 (AP).—State department of agriculture officials today brought charges against twelve roadside milk dealers, four of them members of the group which Monday attacked the legality of the Chicago milk code.

The department charged the dealers with violating the Illinois statutes on sanitary conditions and with handling adulerated milk.

It was indicated the department planned an extensive campaign against the dealers and would file charges against others tomorrow.

Two Die Failing To Save Third

Father, Son and Son-in-Law Drowned; Girl Aviator Aids Life Guards.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 4 (AP).—A prominent Philadelphia family was all but wiped out when a father, son and son-in-law lost their lives in a sea tragedy off Longport today.

Two of the trio went to their deaths when they dove from a small boat in a futile effort to save the third who toppled overboard after seemingly being stricken with a heart attack.

One body was recovered late today. A girl aviator flew around the scene of the drownings, aiding Coast Guards to sight the two missing bodies. She is Ruth Spitz, 18, of Wayne County, Mich., only flying woman deputy sheriff in the United States. She is spending the summer in Longport.

The triple fatality occurred several miles off Great Egg Harbor Inlet while members of a Longport summer family watched through binoculars, helpless to aid.

The body recovered was that of J. H. Oaster, 72, of Philadelphia. Still missing were his son, J. H. Oaster, jr., 40, connected with a Philadelphia tailoring firm; and E. R. Eckenrode, 45, Harrisburg insurance broker and a son-in-law of Oaster.

Amnesty Granted Convict Laborers

Many Freed by Soviets for Work on Dam; Others Decorated.

Moscow, Aug. 4 (AP).—The central executive committee today decreed wholesale amnesty for many prisoners who participated in the construction of the newly completed White Sea-Baltic Canal and awarded decorations to more than a score of officials of the secret police who were in charge of the project.

The sentences of 59,000 prisoners were reduced, 12,000 were unconditionally released and 500 were restored to civil rights as a reward for outstanding work.

The canal was built with convict labor. It cuts ten days from the water route from Leningrad to Archangel.

2,000 Are Hired In Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Aug. 4 (AP).—The employment of 2,000 new workers in two different industries was announced here today.

The Union Oil Co., one of the West Coast's major producers, announced the employment of 1,000 additional men and the increasing of pay rolls by slightly more than $1,000,000 annually.

Leaders of the milk producing and distributing industry said 1,000 more men were being added to pay rolls and wages were being increased $1,000,000 annually.

Coincidentally, officials of the Dealers' and Producers' Associations said milk selling for 11 cents a quart today, delivered to homes, would be raised to 12 cents tomorrow.

New York Soldier Killed.

Kellogg, Idaho, Aug. 4 (AP).—Sergt. Robert Panchery, 28, of the Sixteenth Infantry, of Fort Jay, N. Y., was shot and killed here today. Four men and a woman, who said the shooting was acidental, were held as witnesses. Panchery was attached to a Civilian Conservation Corps camp.

Luxurious $7,000 Swimming Pool Nearing Completion In Answer to Childish Prayers of St. Vincent's Orphans

Four-Year-Old Winnie's Wistful Plea for Wading Pond to Be Brought to Reality as Seminarian, Contractors and Bankers Cooperate.

By John J. Daly.

Winnie, a 4-year-old baby of St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum, wanted to go wading.

Eighteen acres of ground surround the orphanage, but there is no creek. In hot weather, the nearest approach to a swimming hole is the bathtub.

"Oh, dear," Winnie sighed, "if only there was some place to go wading."

"What would you rather have than anything else in the world?" he asked.

Girls Help Dig Pool.

So the seminarian started out to satisfy a desire. With 140 orphan girls as assistants, the digging began.

A passer-by saw the struggling seminarian and his willing workers. "What you need," the onlooker said, "is an excavating machine."

Next day several contractors, engaged by the stranger, got on the job—and let the little girls go back to play, with Nero the lamb, Reilly the horse, and Napoleon the bowwow.

It seems the orphans had been praying for a wading pond. Now they are watching final work on a $7,000 swimming pool.

Prominent Banker to Aid.

There are bills for labor and material, but a prominent banker, seeing the joy in 140 orphan hearts, believes he can wave another magic wand.

The pool—70 by 45 feet—will be 7½ feet deep under the diving boards; with shallow water for the waders, like Winnie and her sisters.

The girls of St. Vincent's, because they helped William Carrigan, are mighty happy over the results of their labor—and his.

There is no sea-horse, so the girls want Reilly, the horse, to take the first dip in the pool. He dragged the scoop that dug the first dirt.

La Guardia Gets G.O.P. Backing In Mayor Race

Indorsement as Fusion's Candidate Ends Long Disagreements.

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—The Republican Mayoralty Committee swung into line today behind the fiery Fiorello H. LaGuardia, independent Republican and former representative, chosen by a bipartisan committee to replace Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan as the fusion candidate for mayor.

Indorsement of LaGuardia ended months of internal disagreements among fusion groups seeking to oust Tammany Hall from control of the city government by defeating Mayor John P. O'Brien.

"This campaign requires the cooperation of all people and groups interested in good city government," said LaGuardia in agreeing to become a candidate. "It is not merely a political contest but a citizens' movement for the salvation of the city."

LaGuardia's selection was attributed to the influence of Samuel Seabury, prosecutor of the Hofstadter Legislative Committee's inquiry into the city's affairs, who himself refused to become a candidate.

Offer Is Rejected By Film Strikers

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 4 (AP).—A proposal that the strike of 5,000 film technicians in 11 Holywood motion picture studios be settled by placing jurisdiction over certain of their affairs with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers was rejected today by the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes.

A spokesman for the alliance said "the matter of jurisdiction of sound men has been decided in years past by the American Federation of Labor and the sound men themselves."

The alliance called the strike, claiming the studio executives had refused to consider requests for better wages and shorter hours. Producers asserted the cause of the strike was a dispute between the alliance and the brotherhood over jurisdiction.

Ritchie Road Route Not to Be Changed

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 4 (Spl.).—The route of the Ritchie highway from Camp Ritchie, which would follow the Raven Rock road, will not be changed. A delegation from Edgemont asked Gov. Ritchie to change the route so that it would pass through Edgemont. Surveys already have been made and $55,000 is available for the new highway south from the guard camp. Bids for the road by the Raven Rock route will be advertised next week. Three miles of the new road will be built this fall and the remainder next year. The new road will give quicker access to the camp from southern points.

Gen. Johnson Is Invited To Speak in St. Louis

St. Louis, Aug. 4 (AP).—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson was urged, in a telegram sent today, to fly to St. Louis and speak here August 13 at the formal launching of a campaign to obtain popular support for President Roosevelt's reemployment plan.

Among signers of the telegram were Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann and Harry S. Scullin, chairman of the St. Louis NRA committee. A parade has also been planned by the local NRA committee.

Jacoby's Team Sets Mark in Bridge Tourney

Asbury Park, N. J., Aug. 4 (AP).—A new high-score record for the American Bridge League Tournament was chalked up at the convention hall today when Oswald Jacoby and his three associates amassed a 7,670-point margin of victory in the challenge team-of-four quarter-final event.

The victims of Jacoby, David Burnstine, Howard Schenken and R. L. Frey were the four opposing teammates, Capt. Fred G. French, J. M. Holmes, C. W. Humphreys and P. L. Roberts.

The victory brought Jacoby a step nearer to another record he is seeking. No one player has ever been on a winning challenge-team-of-four three times in succession, and Jacoby wants to be the first to break that tradition. He was one of the famous "four horsemen" who won the event in 1931, and last year he teamed with Michael Gottlieb, Louis H. Watson and Theodore A. Lightner to repeat the performance.

Edward Hymes, jr., Waldemar von Zedtwitz, Watson and Sam Fry, jr., won with 1,130 plus over the Washington, D. C., team of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lemon, A. P. Stockvis and Roy Thurtell.

In the other quarter-final matches W. Malowan's team beat the Atlanta, Ga., quartet of Whitney Cary by 3,610 points.

Sheriff Raps Pay Cut With Others Immune

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 4 (Spl.). Sheriff W. Bruce Downin is demanding that the board of county commissioners pay him 50 cents a day instead of 40 cents, as provided in a recent act of the Legislature.

The sheriff contends that since the board has not seen fit to reduce salaries of several appointive office holders as provided in the act, it should not cut his fees when his office is an elective one. Sheriff Downin contends that the economy action should not apply until his successor takes office. The board probably will take action at next Tuesday's meeting.

European War Menace Is Laid To Hitler Rule

Morgenthau Says Nations Distrust Each Other; Ready to Fight

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—A statement that "all Europe is ready for war" was made by Henry Morgenthau, sr., today as the diplomat and Democratic counseor returned from abroad.

A delegate to the wheat conference in Geneva, and later an expert with the Americans in London at the economic parley, Morgenthau said the war was brewing in Germany.

He asserted that the policies of Chancellor Hitler, if successful, would work for a general war, and civil war within that nation.

Asked how Europe could prepare financially and physically for another war, Morgenthau repied:

"By martial law. The nations of Europe can easily confiscate enough to carry on war."

Morgenthau said all the nations of Europe were conserving their resources.

"The unwillingness for some of them," he said "to go all the way in the matter of wheat curtailments is because of a feeling that in preparing for war they must have grains to store and draw upon.

"France is working tooth and nail to be self contained.

"Conditions all over Europe are similar to what they were in 1913.

"All the countries are expending more for armament. All distrust each other."

Morgenthau said he would present these views to President Roosevelt.

Spills, Ducking Usher In Miles River Regatta

1,000 Boatmen on Hand to Watch Race for Governor's Cup.

By Harold Stone
(Washington Post Roving Reporter).

A baker's dozen good sailors spent a part of yesterday afternoon in the waters of Miles River at St. Michaels, Md., trying to right the Chesapeake Bay log canoe Mayflower, and thus officially opened the annual regatta of the Miles River Yacht Club.

Not that it is necessary to overturn a boat to open the regatta, but somehow there's always a spill before the racing is over. Then yesterday afternoon Johnny Mitchell, whose home sailing grounds are in the waters about Long Island, joined the "Ancient and Accepted Order of Hell Divers" by being thrown from the gunwale of his Canadian-type canoe, the Debonnaire, oilskins and all, and had some difficulty getting aboard her as she fouled her rigging in that of the stakeboat.

The Hell Divers is a Long Island organization of yachtsmen who leave their boats and land in the sea involuntarily.

Members and officials of the Miles River Club say this year's regatta is the largest and best so far—and that covers a good many years. Hundreds of boats from all along the Atlantic seaboard are tied up in the beautiful harbor. The course, right in the mouth of the river, is 2½ miles long and is one of the best in Atlantic waters, yachtsmen say. It is estimated that 1,000 boatsmen and their guests and families are present, besides the landlubbers who are interested in the many events.

Yesterday was spent in the running of trial events and in sailing of small boat races despite the choppy seas due to a brisk wind.

Today marks the closing of the two days of racing. Principal features are the free-for-all of the Chesapeake Bay log canoes and the Canadian type canoe races. Each event is always packed with thrills.

Then, too, Gov. Albert Ritchie of Maryland will be present aboard his yacht, the DuPont. He will present the Governor's Cup to the winner of the log canoe race.

King Twits Men Who Play on Duty

Hiding their cards as best they could, the soldiers jumped to their feet and stood at attention. One, however, became so confused he continued to hold his cards in playing position.

Boy Admits Hoax In Slaying Story

Sought Vaudeville Job by Claiming He Mutilated Child, Age 7.

San Diego, Calif., Aug. 4 (AP).—The story of Phillip Charles Edwards, 19-year-old San Diego high school graduate, who tried for three days to convince officers he mutilated and killed Dalbert Aposhian, 7, was disclosed as a hoax late today, police announced.

His object, he told his mother, Mrs. Helen Graham, and his attorney, W. S. Staley, was that he hoped to get a vaudeville contract.

Elimination of Edwards as a suspect left police without a clew to the real slayer of the boy, whose body was taken from San Diego Bay July 24. Detective Capt. Harry J. Kelly said Edwards would be held in jail for the time being, while Cran Muir, deputy district attorney, studied California statutes to determine whether charges could be brought against the youth.

Employes of Navy Assail 5-Day Week

Civilians in Norfolk Yards Say Cut in Hours Will Mean Pay Slash.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 4 (AP).—Delegations representing Navy Department civilian workers from Norfolk and Portsmouth moved on Washington last night and today to protest against the five-day-week order issued yesterday, effective Saturday, pending adjustment of the shipyard code to navy yards.

The claim was made today by the workers that the five-day week, with pay on 40-hour basis, means a further reduction of 14 2-3 per cent in the wages of civilian employes beyond the 15 per cent cut in effect since last May.

Under the new order, as understood here, the savings from the five-day week will not be used for reemployment of workers laid off July 1, but will revert to the Navy Department.

Christian Science Churches.

"Spirit" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The golden text is from Psalms 143:10 "Teach me to do Thy will; for Thou art my God: Thy spirit is good."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "O come, let us sing unto the Lord: let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation. Let us come before His presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with psalms. For the Lord is a great God, and a great King above all gods. In His hand are the deep places of the earth; the strength of the hills is His also. The sea is His, and He made it; and His hands formed the dry land. O come, let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the Lord, our maker. For He is our God, and we are the people of His pasture, and the sheep of His hand." (Psalms 95:1-7).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Text Book, "Science and Health, With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The divine Principle, or Spirit, comprehends and expresses all, and all must, therefore, be as perfect as the divine Principle is perfect. Nothing is new to Spirit. Nothing can be novel to eternal Mind, the author of all things, who from all eternity knoweth His own ideas" (page 518).

National Guard To Meet Attack In Mimic War

Maj. Silvester Completes Field Training Problem for D. C. Troops.

After a year of intensive study and research, Maj. L. McD. Silvester, U. S. Army instructor for the District National Guard, has successfully completed a field training problem for the Twenty-ninth Division staff, to be solved at Camp Ritchie, Cascade, Md., during the next two weeks.

The problem, probably the largest ever undertaken by a National Guard division, has been worked out to the smallest detail by Maj. Silvester, who has made field reconnaissance trips through the territories affected.

Capital Unit Used.

Not only will the staff officers and their enlisted assistants, members of the Headquarters Detachment, Twenty-ninth Division, a Washington unit, be in the field, but a number of Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania troops will be involved with a total of about 400 officers and men who will be camped in the hills near Gettysburg, Pa., during the operations.

Last summer the problem consisted of defeating a Red Army attack on the coastal plains of Virginia, and this year it is a continuation of the defense.

Many to Take Part.

The scope and magnitude of the problem, which is based on the Second Battle of the Marne and the operations at Soisson, Chateau-Thierry, and Rheims during the World War, is magnified by the fact it is probably the first time a National Guard unit has ever attempted to act in the capacity of an army corps. Three full divisions and auxiliary troops, theoretically, will take part in the defense and attack.

To facilitate instructions and positions and to clarify questions regarding the territory in which the operations will take place, Maj. Silvester has prepared a map, drawn to scale, which shows every detail of troop movement and the location of each unit taking part in the problem.

U. S. Boy Scouts Thrill Hungarians

Serve Them Flapjacks at Jamboree; Play Game of Baseball.

Godollo, Hungary, Aug. 4 (AP).—The camp of the fourth world jamboree of Boy Scouts was a vast theater today as crowds passed, watching impromptu acts and studying camp equipments.

American boys delighted the throng by tossing flapjacks, which later were served to spectators. An American mouth organ orchestra shared honors with Tyrolese dancers and Hungarian folk singers. Baseball games and demonstrations of Indian woodcraft were part of the American show.

Tomorrow the whole population of the Godollo country will file before the Scouts in a gesture of welcome.

Swapping among camps took such proportions that measures were invoked to prevent some boys going home in Scottish kilts and feathers and other regalia which they did not bring themselves.

New Officials Named By Church Organists

Miss Helen Reichard, New York, was elected secretary. Vice presidents were named as follows: Dr. William C. Carl, New York; Emerson L. Richards, Atantic City, N. J.; Clarence Mader, Los Angeles, Calif., and Miss Katharine Lucke, Baltimore. Worcester, Mass., was selected for next year's convention.

Father of Stage Star Found Beaten in Home

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—Dr. Walter P. MacGibbon, 64, father of Harriet MacGibbon, the actress, was found beaten today in his penthouse apartment. Bruises ribboned the physician's face and his throat and legs were cut.

To all questions by police he answered, "No, no, no."

Spanish Timber Bloc To Protect Industry

Madrid, Aug. 4 (AP).—Sixty deputies representing timbered sections of Spain today formed a "forestry bloc," designed to protect the domestic wood industry.

The group appealed to Jose Franchy Roca, minister of commerce, to take steps to prevent Spain being flooded with Russian timber. The minister agreed.

12 Bridges Washed Out By Flood in Trinidad

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Aug. 4 (AP).—A check-up today revealed that 12 bridges were washed out in last Tuesday's flood in the lower section of the city, caused by overflowing of two rivers.

Streets were covered with mud and debris. In the surrounding country districts several bridges were carried away.

Pope to Send Statue to U. S.

Vatican City, Aug. 4 (AP).—Pope Pius has had a 6-foot bronze statue of the Virgin Mary cast as a gift to the new sanctuary of the Priest Servants of Mary at Portland, Oreg. The statue was designed by the Florentine sculptor Casioli. It is on display in the Vatican.

The Federal Diary

By George D. Riley

THE 121st Engineer Regiment of Washington, D. C., National Guard is leaving tomorrow for its annual field encampment which will take place at Camp Ritchie, Cascade, Md. It is interesting to note that among the officers of this well-known military organization of civilians are employes of the Federal and the District governments, as will be seen from the following:

Col. John W. Oehmann, commanding officer, is the District building inspector. Lieut. Col. Julian S. Cliff, second in command, is from the navy yard. Maj. James R. Lusby is from the office of the United States Property and Disbursing Office at the District Building.

Effective as of August 1, 1933, each employe of this office paid from the appropriations either "Salaries, Office of the Supervising Architect" or "General Expenses of Public Buildings" will be furloughed for a period of four days each month. Beginning with the pay roll for the period August 1 to 15, a deduction of two days' pay will be made from each semimonthly pay roll until further notice.

The furlough leave thus imposed will not be cumulative for more than two months, and as far as possible should be taken as rapidly as the furlough is made. It will not be granted fractionally, but only in full days, and Saturday will be charged as a full day.

Replying to "The New Deal."

Without an exception the "powers that be" in the Land Office took care of themselves along with, so rumor says, a married woman with 30 years' service and whose husband was chief clerk of the Shipping Board for years and who is still under the Government.

As a matter of fact a new man was in attendance all day before Judge McPhaul was handed his dismissal and stepped right into a $4,800 job, when the administration had stated these vacancies would not, on account of the economy act, be filled.

THE Pied Piper of Hamelin is about to be challenged for his place in folk lore, only his successor need not exercise any special charm over rats. He must, however, be adept in "tom" foolery.

In the South Building, Agriculture, a couple of cats had imperial domains. These animals, docile and perambulating, showed little regard for expensive vases and books in their daily play. They might be called circus cats, for they could, with dexterity, high and low jump. At first the condition was not serious, but what concerns the officials now is that a mother cat has added to their worries, and entrapment of these felines is the order of the day.

A place looms on the horizon, in these days of unemployment, for an expert in cat calls. The expert can render real service by appearing at the building any day and exercising his magic voice—for the "powers that be" are out to get the cats.

ABOUT three years ago 60 of us, after taking a civil service examination, were duly notified that we had passed the test with marks high enough to secure us positions as substitute clerks in the Washington City postoffice. Now a substitute postal clerk is a Government employe who is paid only for his ACTUAL hours of work and must at all times, day or night, rain or shine, be ready for a call to duty. He has retirement money deducted from his check each pay day, also the 15 per cent cut.

His next step in the way of a promotion is to be appointed to a "regular" clerkship on a salary basis. As a substitute he gets no sick or annual leave and never knows how much money he will draw on pay day.

A "regular" clerk knows what his pay will be and he also knows he will get a half day off on Saturdays with pay and a certain amount of annual and sick leave. It is therefore a step from darkness into light when a "sub" is made "regular."

We 60 eventually went to work in the Washington City postoffice as substitute clerks. For the first year and a half we were given plenty of work and made good money. Then came the economy wave of the Hoover administration, and our hours and pay were cut. Filling of vacancies was forbidden and our hopes of being made "regular" faded away.

THEN some one said, "A new administration is coming in, and we surely will get a square deal." The new administration came, and with it came a continuation of the "no promotion" policy and an additional pay cut. Our working hours became shorter and shorter. Many of us gave up our apartments and homes and took our families to "double up" with relatives. Some of us were buying cars. We could not keep up the payments and were forced to return them to the dealers. Then came the law that ordered the retirement of 30-year employes. Surely now, thought we, we will get a break, for somebody will have to fill these vacancies.

The 30-year retirement law, as yet, has meant no more to the substitute clerks in the Washington City Postoffice than a myth, and our hours are being cut shorter each day. Yesterday we worked 3½ hours. Today we worked 2½ hours, and tomorrow, perhaps, we won't work at all. The Postoffice Department frowns on our accepting outside employment, for we must at all times be ready for a call to duty. Our pay is, with retirement and pay cut deducted, about 57 cents an hour. We have had three years' experience as postal clerks. This experience would be no good to us in private industry if we resigned and sought employment elsewhere.

WE did hope that the millions of letters being sent out by National Industrial Recovery Administration would give us many added hours of work, but lo and behold—the Government Printing Office was ordered to make up this mail to be directly dispatched to the postmasters, and all we got out of it was a few glimpses of the bags on their way from the printing office to the trains.

At the rate we are going, our pay for the two weeks ending August 15 will be about $20 each. If we were given 8 hours per day (which could be done) we would draw a pay check for something in the neighborhood of $60.

We are beginning to wonder if we are not the jokers in the "New Deal" and we are also wondering how long the Postoffice Department is going to let us hang on the ropes while our families feel the pangs of want. It surely looks like the Department has adopted a policy of "The substitute be damned." We can't eat Blue Eagles, but we could use a few double eagles.—One of Jim Farley's Forgotten Men.

IF you have noticed that many faces at the Department of Justice wore a more serious air on Monday, July 31, it may have been due to the fact that they were thinking about "Jack" Morgan, a young lawyer in the Accounts Division, whose death, resulting from bronchial pneumonia, was learned early Monday morning at the department. "Jack" was recently honored with a medal for general excellence in post-graduate work at Georgetown University Law School.

He had a rare quality which distinguished him from many other young men: He sought the conversation and advice of the older men of the department; men rich in experience and experts in their particular field. Among the latter who will miss his amiable manner and questing disposition are Prof. George Kearney, librarian and expert in legal bibliography; William J. Hughes, authority in Federal procedure, whom "Jack" frequently helped in minor office details, and R. P. Reeder, research expert who specializes in questions of Constitutional law.

One of the classics which young Morgan was reading before his sudden demise was Boswell's "Life of Johnson," which is evidence that he did not intend to be restricted by a one-track mind. R. I. P.—Matthew A. McKavitt.

Attention, Renovizers.

TO make the renovized house (situated on the greensward opposite the Willard Hotel) a complete exhibit (and success), it would be necessary to place in it a renovized Federal employe. The question, however, is how soon will Johnny Federal be renovized?

Let his salary be restored (to meet the rise in prices) first—the rest of the renovation can be taken care of later.—J. Harland Pennypoor.

C. B. Allen, Internal Revenue agent, in charge at New York, visited his family in Washington Saturday and Sunday. Mr. Allen took time while here to prove to some of his golfing friends that collecting revenue for Uncle Sam does not necessarily affect his ability to collect "pars" for his score card. Clarence Sipes () and A. L. Duncan (), Internal Revenue, can verify this if further proof is needed.

A NUMBER of Government employes who reside in the various hotels near the Union Station Plaza find relief from the heat during the evenings by visiting the colorful fountain, falls, and reflecting pool.

The fountain and falls reminds one of Niagara Falls without that never-forgetting roaring noise. There are 5,000 gallons of water pumped through the main fountain every minute; then flows to the lower falls and into a tank.

From this tank the water is pumped back to the fountain again. This water is used over again for a month, and is then replaced with a new supply. A clerk in the Bureau of Internal Revenue called it the Scotch fountain, for the reason that there is no daily waste in the volume of water used.

Guiding Your Child

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

A woman who as a girl had been a very fine swimmer decided to train her small son to swim as early as possible. The child was still unable to crawl when she began to put him into the water; by the time he was 18 months old he was able to paddle about in deep water on water-wings.

Not satisfied with his progress the mother now decided to give him lessons, and every day forced him to leave the other children and learn strokes and form. When he was three and still could not swim she insisted in his jumping into water above his depth in spite of his protests and pleadings.

After a few weeks of this the child began to have nightmares sometimes two or three times in a night and, as a result of the loss of sleep, to lose appetite and weight. At first the mother would not believe that the swimming lessons were the cause of the child's terrors, but as the child grew worse she finally became persuaded of it and gave up forcing the situation.

The boy learned to swim quite by chance. One day he fell off the dock, and before anyone could reach him he had swam several strokes alone, much to his own surprise. Everyone congratulated him on his accomplishment, and made much of his bravery in saving himself.

Far from being frightened by the accident it seemed to give him the self-confidence which had been lacking, and the next day he jumped in of his own free will and within a week was swimming.

Water is not the natural element for mankind, and a person has to overcome an initial fear of it before he enjoys it. To force a child to do a thing he fears starts an inner conflict which, if repressed at the time, will often appear in sleep, when the brakes have been removed.

Vulnerable Opening Bids.

SO great is the danger attendant upon weak vulnerable Opening notrump bids that there is a marked tendency to greatly shade the biddability of suits on hands of slightly less than 4 honor-tricks to avoid opening with a notrump call. This is a wise precaution to insure safe contracts, but if a player makes an Opening call on an extremely shaded suit, he should be very chary about seeking a Slam in that suit, regardless of what his partner's response may be, because in the later rounds of bidding it may be very difficult to convince partner that the Opening bid was based on a shaded or even a subshaded suit.

Take, for instance, the hand below, on which a very good Bridge player writes me that, vulnerable, he opened with a bid of one heart:

Spades	Q 4 3
Hearts	A 3 2 2
Diamonds	A K Q
Clubs	Q J 5

The opponent on his left passed, and his partner responded with four hearts. This was passed by the other adversary, and the Dealer, knowing his partner to hold from 2½ to 3 honor-tricks and assuming that inasmuch as he had failed to make a Forcing Takeout he must hold exceptional heart support, bid six hearts. The partner's hand was:

Spades	K J 5
Hearts	K Q 5 2
Diamonds	3
Clubs	A 10 8 6 4

This ended the auction, and the Opening lead was a low spade, which was won by the leader's partner with the Ace. The spade suit was returned and trumped. It later developed that the five outstanding trumps were in one hand, so the contract was defeated by 2 tricks.

My correspondent asks me what was the matter with the bidding. In my judgment, the bidding was correct up to the Dealer's second bid. He knew that the chosen trump suit was very shaky, and a sure game should not be sacrificed for a doubtful Slam.

The response of four hearts to the Opening bid of one heart was probably his partner's best available bid. The hand does not justify a Forcing Takeout of three clubs because of one thing only: Such a Takeout may result in a Slam contract. Otherwise, with the fit in hearts, a Forcing Takeout might be considered, even though the hand contains only three honor-tricks instead of the ordinary minimum of three and one-half.

After the response of four hearts, the Opening Hand should not consider bidding hearts again because his first call has already overstated his strength in that suit. The fact that the second spade is ruffed is immaterial, as even with a normal distribution of the spades the hand must go down 1 trick if the trumps are massed against the Declarer.

The Opening bidder, though he should not rebid hearts, can well take further action, perhaps by a bid of four notrump, after which the Responding Hand might bid clubs, or even six notrump, which depends on the club finesse.

Striped Wool Makes Smart Swagger Coat

It is collarless and features wide sleeves, patch pockets and a tie of brown at the neck. The patch pockets have a border with the stripes running in a different direction from the body of the coat. The sleeves show a narrow cuff of the brown sheer wool. Miss Harding's purse and gloves are of brown suede and her pumps of brown kid. Her white linen brimmed hat is trimmed with a brown grosgrain ribbon band.

Dark Accessories With White Frock

Arline Judge, picture player, favors brown accessories with her white spectator sports dress. The dress is simply tailored of rough crepe featuring short box-pleated sleeves, patch pockets and a stitched belt. Her hat, gauntlet gloves and bag are of brown suede—the hat ornamented with a perky brown and white quill.

White buckskin pumps complete the costume, which is very correct for morning wear in town or in the country.

What Today Means

"Leo."

IF August 5 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., from 5 p. m. to 5:30 p. m. and from 8:45 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 10 a. m. and from 3:10 p. m. to 3:45 p. m.

Influences operating on this date will tend to keep people on edge and cause them to be irascible. Youngsters will be inclined to be peevish and generally difficult to handle; if frightened they will probably be difficult to quiet. The person who maintains his poise on this day will be out of the ordinary run.

The child born on this August 5 will quite possibly have many petty ways about him, many of which he will carry along through life. He will be inclined to consider only his own feelings and desires in any matter and will not make many lasting friendships during his earlier years. Will do well at school.

If August 5 is your birthday, it is possible that you have a fiery temper that is easily roused; you fly off the handle quickly and often without reason. Fortunately you cool down as quickly and are then willing, if you are in the wrong, to make amends. People like you, in spite of this failing, for you are usually a gay companion, witty and ever up to some amusing form of deviltry. You would seem to be well adapted to a career in business, particularly if you devote your energies to some form of work where you will be called upon to mix freely with people. You can always "get by" with all kinds of people in all walks of life. There is nothing snobbish about you. You must take care not to let yourself become too democratic, nor to run too much with the masses.

Born on August 5, you probably have a mind that must constantly be fed. You will doubtless never stop studying, for you like to digest facts and you are an avid reader of all sorts of books. You have a faculty for languages and if you have put that quality to work you are probably master of more than one tongue which you will probably succeed in capitalizing on in some way during your life. In your relations with the opposite sex you have a tendency to be fickle; you have the faculty for saying nice things and having them believed even when they are obviously outlandishly insincere. This is more a game with you than actual insincerity.

Successful people born on August 5:

Washington Hunt, Governor of New York.

John Trowbridge, physicist.

James M. Taylor, educator.

Charles F. Holder, author.

Bruce Barton, advertising expert and author.

"Come on—catch this, don't be a baby," Howard teases Little Brother. Fortunate is the family who can shut up an apartment and spend the day on the beach. Little Brother's suit is one made to stand the wear and tear of sand and salt. It is done in black and white.

If one possesses an hour-glass figure choose a silk jersey suit. Jeanne's, of bright dark blue, exposes the back to the sun, unhindered and unhampered by any kind of cross straps that may leave sunburned marks under one's most stunning evening dress. The buckle is of silver metal.

Judy's suit is a one-piece model although it resembles a two-piece affair. The top is of black and chartreuse plaid silk jersey, the shorts black. A ribbed waist section is a great boon to milady's figure—also the uplift line and squared neck. "Have a refreshing drink—Just off the ice!"

Peak of Peach Season Comes Within Week

Local Dealers Report Price Low and Quality High for Canning.

By Ann Davis.

"Busy, my dear?" he inquired, looking at her over his glasses.

"No! Can't you see?" she answered shortly.

He watched her silently for a moment. Finally, "Peaches are of Oriental origin," he said, "although Darwin says they're a modification of the wild almond——"

She started to her feet. "You'll be modified yourself if you don't leave my kitchen;" she emphatically told him.

The professor backed away. "No place like the classroom," he sighed.

And speaking of peaches, a produce dealer on Water street says they will be at their peak next week. If you are going to can, can now, he advises. Later on prices will mount, and the fruit will be of inferior quality. He is selling home peaches just in from Maryland and Virginia for $1 a bushel. The clingstone variety is the most popular for canning because of their firm flesh and rich flavor after cooking.

By the middle of next week the freestone Elberta peaches will be in. When they come try them with tapioca cream for a really delicious dish.

Recipe.

One-third cup quick-cooking tapioca, ½ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon flavoring, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 or 2 egg yolks, slightly beaten, 1 or 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten, 4 cups of milk, scalded.

Add quick-cooking tapioca and salt to milk, and cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Add sugar. Pour small amount of tapioca mixture over egg yolk, stirring vigorously. Return to double boiler and cook until thickened. Remove from fire and add flavoring. Fold a small amount into egg white. Add to remaining tapioca mixture and blend.

Fold whipped cream into quick-cooking tapioca cream allowing 2 tablespoons whipped cream to a serving of tapioca. Serve with sauce of crushed sweetened peaches, or peach slices.

Whether it's ginger cookies, beaten biscuit, or icebox cakes, the proprietor of an F street shop makes them. She's not only a connoisseur of old-fashioned delicacies, but an artist at preparing them. When your husband says your date nut bread isn't the kind he had when he was a boy, don't protest. Just bide your time. Stop by the store and buy a loaf of this bread. It's only 20 cents a pound, and a pound is plenty for four people.

A very simple recipe for date and nut bread is: 2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake flour, 1 teaspoon Calumet baking powder, ½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed; 2 tablespoons melted butter, ½ cup walnut meats, finely broken; ½ teaspoon soda, 1 egg well beaten, ½ cup milk, 1 cup dates, seeded and finely cut, ¼ teaspoon salt.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, soda, and salt, and sift again. Add to sugar. Mix well. Add remaining ingredients, beating only enough to dampen all flour. Bake in greased loafpan in moderate oven (325 degrees F), 1 hour, or until done.

The hostess stood wringing her hands in front of the empty ice box. Six guests, the "happened to drop in" kind, sat in the front room discussing the weather. Something had to be done. The dawn of an idea! She hurried to the telephone and called a Columbia road shop, and explained the situation.

In a short time the delivery truck drew up at the door. A few minutes later, the hostess, now all smiles and confidence served her guests a plate of fruit ices, raspberry, pineapple, and orange. The perfect touch was a tray of assorted French cookies.

Four cups sugar; 1 cup lemon juice; 6 maraschino cherries, finely cut; 4 cups water; ½ teaspoon salt; 1 2-3 cups orange juice; 4 bananas, mashed; 1 egg white, slightly beaten.

Cook sugar and water together five minutes. Cool. Add fruit juices and salt, then bananas, mashed with silver fork. Let stand one hour. Rub through coarse sieve. Add cherries and egg white. Freeze and pack. Makes 3 quarts of sherbet.

Cucumber which has been kept for several days may be crisped by soaking in ice water an hour before serving.

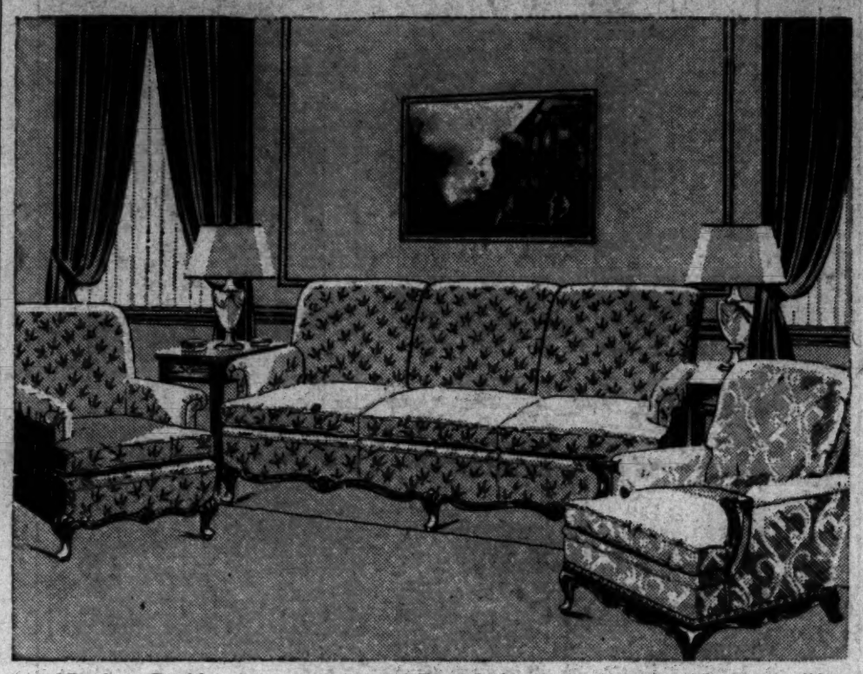
Modern Lounge Furniture, Built to Fit, More Comfortable and Better Looking



By Amos Parrish.

"And let's have plenty of comfortable chairs." Is there ever a prospective bridegroom who doesn't voice that sentiment when he and the girl start choosing furniture? And watch him walk directly up to one of the many types of lounge chairs as he says it! The men want them plenty big. The girls not so big. Yet both want comfort. And now that lonnge furniture (and by that we mean low, upholstered chairs, sofas, chaises longues, daybeds, &c.) is made with the figures, weights and heights of its future occupants in mind, both can be satisfied.

All Widths, Heights.

There are, for example, wide, low chairs for short, fat fathers; higher, narrower chairs (and ottomans to go with them) for tall, rangy husbands; and fine scale chairs in which the ladies can sit with the maximum of both comfort and grace.

They don't have an overstuffed, why-did-I-eat-so-much look, either, as they did not so long back. Better methods of upholstering have made possible a trimmer, neater appearance. And at no sacrifice of comfort. On the contrary, these newer upholstering methods have increased comfort.

For example, there's nothing like a down-filled cushion for real sitting enjoyment. Formerly down was obtainable only in the highest-priced pieces. But new upholstery methods have lowered costs so that now down can be used in medium-priced furniture.

Trim Appearance.

The three pieces illustrated give you an idea of the trim, neat appearance of modern lounge furniture.

The sofa and left-hand chair are the type which you so often find combined into a two-piece suite. Take note of the lack of bulk and the nicely carved frame and front legs of both the sofa and chair. This exposed frame adds a dignified finish and is very much in fashion.

Both pieces are low to the floor with arms just right height for leaning. The backs are high enough for support and the sofa long enough to nap on. A perfect set-up for the Tired Business Man.

Feminine Chair.

The other chair is obviously the feminine member of the group. It is built on a finer and more delicate scale, yet is really no smaller.

It's just such groups as these which form the backbone of the living room in thousands of fashionable modern homes. It is obviously furniture intended to be sat on with complete comfort and enjoyment.

If it is to remain comfortable it must have, of course, reliable springs, a sturdy frame, solid construction and first quality "innards." Without any one of these, any piece of furniture, no matter how comfortable at first sitting, will become uncomfortable before long.

How to tell good construction from poor? There are certain tests and tricks which will give you an adequate idea of how well a piece is made. We've explained these in a new leaflet which we know you'll want, and if you'll send us the coupon, with inclosures as directed, we'll supply you with a copy.

Salmon Both Hot and Cold Makes Easy Summer Dishes

By Ann Barrett.

Because you can catch good salmon at practically any neighborhood market these days, isn't the only reason it makes such easy summer eating. It's quickly cooked, too. And it's equally good for a hot dinner or a cold supper.

Actress Margaret Anglin wants hers broiled. And 10 minutes flat will turn the trick—even if you have your salmon steaks cut a good inch thick. Just wipe them off with a damp cloth and sprinkle them with salt. Then here's a little tip for making sure you'll broil them without breaking them. Wet the parchment-like paper they come in, and broil them on that (4 or 5 inches away from flame). Turn frequently with a spatula so they'll broil evenly, and let them have about 10 minutes' cooking. (When the fish will pull away from the bone easily, it's done). Put the steaks on a hot platter, and spread at once with lemon butter made by creaming 4 tablespoons butter with 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 1 tablespoon minced parsley. Green peas and cucumber salad will make this rate double-plus.

Tarter Sauce.

In case you prefer tarter sauce to lemon butter, get out a cup of mayonnaise and add to it the following: 2 tablespoons minced olives, 4 tablespoons minced sour or sweet-spicy pickles, ½ tablespoon chopped capers, ½ teaspoon chopped chives or onions.

For salmon in the pink of perfection for a cold supper, you'll want about a 3-pound piece, cooked this simple way: Put it into a kettle and pour over it 2 cups of boiling water and ¼ cup vinegar. Then drop in ½ bay leaf, a small onion, a stalk of celery with the leaves on and 6 whole black peppers. Cook gently about 25 minutes. Then carefully lift the fish out onto a platter (if you cook it in a cheesecloth bag this is a little easier) and remove skin and bones. Chill very cold. Garnish it with lettuce and cucumbers and cover it with mayonnaise. Potato chips, a mixed vegetable salad or perfection salad will put the finishing touches on that.

Salmon and Potato Salad.

For another cold supper you might prefer the following wholemeal salad—that gets its extra-good flavor from first marinating the chief ingredients in French dressing. Like this: First add 1 teaspoon prepared mustard to ½ cup French dressing, and pour this over 2 cups cold flaked salmon. Then pour another ½ cup French dressing over 1½ cups hot, cooked potatoes (diced). Let these stand in the refrigerator 1 hour. Then drain off excess French dressing and combine fish and potato with ½ cup mayonnaise, 3 tablespoons capers, and 1 teaspoon minced onion. Garnish with lettuce and hard-cooked egg.

Of course, these recipes will work equally well with any white fish.

While we're on the subject of easy summer fish dishes, you might like to consider easy summer desserts, too. Refrigerator cakes and pies, for example. I have a new bulletin on this subject containing desserts that will seem about as magic to your friends and family as pulling a rabbit out of a magician's hat. Send 6 cents in loose stamps (with a self-addressed envelope and the coupon below) if you'd like this bulletin.

Sweet Believes His Duty Calls Him to Crusade

Former Colorado Governor Starts on Trip to Win Women to NRA.

Suave, well-groomed and bubbling over with enthusiasm, William E. Sweet, former Governor of Colorado, was poised last night for a ten-day dash through the country on which he will carry the message of the National Recovery Administration to the women of the Nation.

This is to be but a preliminary or trial trip for the former governor of the Rocky Mountain State. After making eight speeches in ten days as he journeys about 5,500 miles, the debonair Demosthenes intimated he will get down to the serious business of organizing the pulpits of the country in a Nation-wide educational campaign.

The former Colorado governor declared last night that he considered it his duty to his ideals to assist President Roosevelt "put across" the National Recovery Act.

Offered Services to President.

"The fundamental features of this amazing worthwhile piece of legislation coincides precisely with the platform on which I was elected governor of Colorado in 1922," he said. "As soon as the act was passed by Congress I came to Washington and offered my services to the President and to Gen. Johnson."

Former Gov. Sweet is closely affiliated with the Protestant churches and claims many friends who are of the Catholic and Jewish faith. Since coming to Washington a few weeks ago he has met leaders of many denominations and he intimates that plans virtually have been completed to carry out his program.

The trial trip of the former governor will start Monday night, according to present plans, and will carry him to Denver and return. He will make eight addresses on the recovery act and will include such cities as Chautauqua, N. Y.; Cincinnati, Dayton, Detroit, Des Moints and Omaha on his itinerary.

The background of the former Western governor is considerably different from that of most men who profess a political philosophy which hinges about such phrases as "cooperative marketing," "collective bargaining" and "corporate surplus for unemployment dividends."

Looks Like Banker.

He has been an investment banker in Denver throughout his active business life. He recently retired.

He looks the part of an investment banker, however. A closely cropped mustache gives him somewhat the appearance of a Pershing or a J. P. Morgan, although from dress and personal mannerisms he more closely resembles a Menjou or a William Powell.

The former governor is slightly below medium height, but is well-knit and stocky built. And he does not look the 63 years that he admits.

Unlike former Gov. Bilbo of Mississippi, former Gov. Sweet does not come to the Government with a reputation to maintain, nor a role to play. He has assumed the manner of a crusader, however, and looks upon the problem of "putting across" the recovery program as one which must be handled from the long-range viewpoint. This viewpoint, he believes, justifies a well organized educational program which will keep him busy for two years or perhaps three as he assists in preparing the people of the United States to live successfully under a new economic order of things quite foreign from the "dog-eat-dog" (his own words) days of the past.

For Simple Music.

By Katherine Smith.

The stars have stooped to fill your eyes
With dreams that never die.
The moon has listened to your song,
And whispered her reply.

So, if the heavens stoop to you
To teach you ecstasy,
Why can not you a little lean
Down to the earth to me?

Oil Treatment Restores Sun Bleached Hair

Uneven Streaked Effect Corrected by Proper Scalp Care.

By Elsie Pierce.

Notice any normal, healthy head of hair. Look closely and you will see several different shades of brown, black, red, gold or whatever the color is. Nature, that master artist, blends all these variations into one harmonious, delightful whole.

Contrast this natural, pleasing shading with hair that is streaked by some foreign agent, such as bleaching for instance with a chemical or by the sun's rays. Instead of a blend that looks like one even color, you have several actual colors. Patches or streaks or bands of yellow, brown and red. Ugly, to say the least.

Old Sol can do quite as much damage as too much peroxide. Not only in leaving the uneven, streaked effect we've mentioned. But in actually burning the hair, anyone who has spent a summer at the shore, basking in the sun for long intervals without heeding the protection preaching of beauticians will confirm that. That straw-like feel of the hair, with every bit of oil and spring and life sapped out. It's hard going bringing it back to normal, making it gleam again with healthy high-lights, recapturing that even blended color. The best course is not to allow it to get dried and bleached in the first place.

But, if you have allowed your hair to "get that way" (and it is the human thing to do,) call in the old reliable warm oil treatment. That's what the scalp needs, oil and more of it.

And brushing—like anything. Up and out. And as frequently as possible. A hundred strokes in the morning. Another hundred at night. Another hundred before the warm oil treatment to open the pores and help the scalp drink in the nourishing oil. And another hundred after the hair has been shampooed to distribute the remaining oil evenly through the hair shaft.

To apply the oil part the hair in sections of about an inch apart and apply the oil with medicine dropper or pledget of cotton. A thorough massage before and after the oil application is excellent. It stimulates the circulation and the oil glands to function properly. Let the oil remain overnight if possible. Shampoo the next morning and make sure the shampoo is mild and in liquid form. Rinse very thoroughly. Dry naturally. Your hair should be in fine fettle after a month.

Federal Employment Service.

The Secretary of Labor is actively at work organizing the United States Employment Service. It is expected that regional offices will be established soon, to serve as clearing houses, and perhaps Federal employment offices will be opened temporarily in States which do not avail themselves of the provisions of the Wagner act. But the general purpose of the act is to encourage the States and municipalities to operate their own employment offices, under a common standard which will properly classify labor, and facilitate the placement of men on a large scale.

The Federal Government will provide funds equal to those provided by a State for the employment service, and will assist in working out standards applicable to all States. A Federal advisory council is provided for in the law, to assist in formulating policies dealing with employment.

For the time being the Federal Employment Service will be engrossed in tasks connected with the employment of labor under the public works program. Temporary offices will be opened in several States to serve the needs of contractors. The Public Works Administration, the Federal Relief Administration, and the Federal Employment Service will co-operate in creating an orderly labor market, which will establish contact between employers and workers, and reduce the wasteful and hopeless wandering of unemployed men.

The Wagner act did not become effective until July 1, but already several States have taken steps to operate agencies under the act. The District of Columbia office will be the only permanent agency under the Federal service. Every effort will be made to induce the States to organize permanent employment agencies to co-operate with the Federal service, so that a national system may be set up to replace the present haphazard methods of bringing the man and the job together.

Dangerous Delay.

Differences of opinion as to the financing of the new Calvert Street bridge are holding up the project. Weeks are stretching into months, and still the public is deprived of the benefit of better traffic facilities at the crowded Calvert Street-Connecticut Avenue junction. The old bridge is not only inadequate, but has been officially declared to be unsafe. It should be replaced without delay.

Senator Copeland, a member of the District committee, concurs with Senator King, chairman of that committee, in urging immediate provision for building the new bridge. Budget Director Douglas is said to be reluctant to authorize an allotment from the gasoline tax fund, believing that the necessary funds might be obtained from the Public Works Administration.

Inasmuch as the gasoline tax fund represents the contributions of Washington automobilists, who were assured when the tax was laid that the proceeds would be devoted exclusively to upkeep and improvement of District highways, and inasmuch as Congress has authorized an allotment from this fund to begin work on the new bridge, it seems to be unwise to defer action on the uncertain hope that funds will be provided from another source. The possibility of a disaster at the old bridge constitutes a warning against undue delay.

The Scout Jamboree.

Boy Scouts in all parts of the country will follow eagerly the events of the next two weeks at Goedoelloe, Hungary, where the fourth world scout jamboree is being held. This great convention of boys opened with regal dignity as well as youthful enthusiasm. Admiral Nicholas Horthy, the Hungarian regent, greeted the Boy Scouts. Premier Goemboes and members of his cabinet were present; also Prince Gustav Adolf and Princess Sybill, of Sweden. The presence of Sir Robert Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout movement, gives spirit and color to the occasion.

Fifty-three countries have representatives at the jamboree. It is truly a gathering of boys from all parts of the world. Approximately 30,000 lads are joining in the activities. These include about 600 boys from all parts of the United States.

Although these Boy Scouts are unable to understand the speech of many of their fellow scouts assembled at Goedoelloe, they are joining hands in a common program. The American lads will teach the scouts of other lands how to play baseball and typical American games. An Indian pageant is also scheduled. In turn they will learn games, traditions and customs from the scouts of many countries.

Two jamborees of this kind have been held in England and one in Denmark. They are a source of never-ending interest to boys of the scouting organizations. Thousands of boys enter into scouting activities with more enthusiasm because of their hope that their efforts may be rewarded by a trip to the international Boy Scout jamboree. This international gathering of boys is a fitting climax to the wholesome activities sponsored by Boy Scouts all over the world. A gathering of this kind in the United States within the next few years would be quite appropriate.

International Trade.

The difficulties encountered by the United States in trying to develop international trade while at the same time adjusting economic conditions at home were discussed by Dr. Wallace McClure, of the State Department, in an address at the sixteenth annual American Country Life Conference at Blacksburg, Va. Dr. McClure pointed out the dependency of cotton growers and other farmers upon export trade. He emphasized the advantages to be obtained through an exchange of goods among nations with similar economic standards. "To attempt to force the American people to desist from generous economic relations with other peoples all over the world," he said, "would seem to be very much like surrendering the mouth of the Mississippi River to some prince, potentate, power, or person of a pre-eighteenth century era."

Yet Dr. McClure realizes that to state the general advantages of international trade does not present the entire problem involved in adjustment of trade barriers under present conditions. "Because of the intimate association of all nations today," he said, "the people of one country have it in their power to work harm as well as good to one another." Notable examples of nations that are sweating their labor on a large scale in order to expand their foreign markets might be cited. Other countries are forced to protect their own people from such competition. When the economic disparity between two countries is very great mutually profitable trade between them is usually confined to a rather narrow range of non-competitive products.

Economic conditions have undergone vital changes in recent years. Adjustments in production, in the division of profits and the distribution of labor have assumed far-reaching importance. No way of making those adjustments on a world-wide basis has been devised. Hence, each country is seeking to restore its own equilibrium.

The Oyster's Individualism.

Although the oyster growers and dealers of North America are willing to co-operate for recovery by adopting a code, they have encountered an obstacle which baffles all their efforts. The annual convention of the associated oystermen, held in New York, has made as little progress as the London economic conference, and for the same reason—rugged individualism. Oysters, like nations, refuse to be standardized. Four tentative drafts of an oyster code were drawn up by a committee, but all were unsatisfactory. In each case the drafting committee failed to find a way to bring the oyster into any scheme of standardization or regimentation. The oyster not only varies in size in different localities, but swells or shrinks according to the caprices of seasons, or even by its own caprice.

A spokesman of the Chesapeake Bay region endeavored to bridge the chasm between the NRA and the oyster by proposing that no discrimination be shown against any oyster that happened to be small. If an oyster chooses to limit its growth, or if environment checks its expansion, the ensuing smaller size does not affect its eligibility to a place on the table of the gourmet. The Eastern Shoreman insisted that bantam oysters were often even more luscious than their huskier associates.

Several professors and doctors participated in the conference, but they could throw little light upon the idiosyncrasies of individual oysters. Dr. Paul Galtsoff of the Bureau of Fisheries reported that experiments in developing a standard size of oyster by artificial means had been fairly satisfactory so far as growth was concerned, but apparently the oyster subtracts from his succulence when he is forced artificially to add to his size. He seems to be indifferent to coordination, and pursues his individualistic course without regard to the appeals of the NRA.

Progress in the Air.

Recent spectacular airplane flights as well as greater safety in night commercial service and flying in bad weather have been made possible by the development of scientific instruments which take the place of the human eye and the pilot's sense of direction when darkness or fog blots out all sight of land.

The gyroscope is the great friend of fliers. Its principle has permitted the development of the radio compass, perfected by the Army Air Corps. With this delicate instrument it is possible to tune in on any radio station and determine from the movement of a dial hand whether the plane is properly on its course. The automatic pilot is a combination of two air-driven gyroscopes which control the rudder, ailerons and elevator, to maintain the course that has been set.

Standard equipment of planes that do blind flying today include the turn indicator, the artificial horizon, the gyro compass, an altimeter, a magnetic compass, a bank indicator, an air speed indicator, and a climb indicator. In addition to these various aids to flight there are indicators registering conditions in the power plant, fuel and oil pressures, engine speed, and various important temperatures. While manipulating the mechanical devices the pilot must be able to read his instruments at a glance and correlate the story they tell.

Aviation is also keeping pace on the ground with scientific development aloft. The number of airports and landing fields in the United States was increased by 100 during the last fiscal year, bringing the total up to 2,136. Of this number 631 are now fully or partially lighted for night flying. Municipal airports have reached a total of 550. California leads the States, with 214 flying fields, Texas has 136, and Pennsylvania 111.

Classifying Accidents.

The National Safety Council has decided that a regrouping of accident statistics is desirable in order to avoid misleading conclusions naturally drawn from the figures as ordinarily presented. The statistics show 15,000 deaths annually under the classification of industrial accidents, but it appears that only 13 per cent of these deaths really were caused in factories. A tabulation under the heading "industrial deaths" leads to the assumption that they occurred in the mechanical plants of industry.

This error is disclosed when it is revealed that less than 2,000 of the total number of fatalities occurred in factories, while 3,500 occurred on farms. Nearly as many of the fatalities under this classification were due to mine accidents as to factory accidents; 1,300 of the total happened in building construction, 1,000 in the plants of public utilities and a full third of all, or 5,000, in service industries, such as hotels, garages and warehouses.

Safety campaigns and rules for the protection of machine workers in vogue in all well-managed factories doubtless are responsible in no small measure for this good showing. There has not been the same systematic effort in some other lines to guard the lives of workers, or to instruct them as to the best methods of guarding their own safety. In the case of mining and railroad operation, however, great progress has been made, both through legal requirements and the voluntary adoption of safety devices by operators.

Fish as Weather Prophets.

Prof. Havilah Babcock, in American Forests.

"When the wind is in the East
'Tis good for neither man nor beast.

When the wind is in the North,
The skillful fisher goes not forth.

When the wind is in the South,
It blows the bait in the fishes' mouth.

When the wind is in the West,
Then 'tis at the very best."

To many people this ancient jingle is as nonsensical as the time-honored rigamarole about "Rich man, poor man, beggar man, thief, doctor, lawyer, Indian chief," by which we used to settle the question of our future occupations by the simple expedient of counting the buttons on our jackets. They look upon such "piscatorial prophecies" merely as idle superstitions which are transmitted from one generation to another, as folk notions which have little to recommend them except their antiquity. But these particular superstitions do have something to recommend them besides their antiquity. They contain "more truth than poetry," and observing fisher folk accord them a pretty wholesome respect.

For few animals are so weather conscious and so susceptible to climatic changes as are fish. Years of intimate experience and close observation have taught me that they are pretty trustworthy barometers, and that they often detect changes so subtle as to be unobservable by human beings. Major weather developments they can foretell from 12 to 24 hours in advance, and most old-timers who are wise in the wisdom of their quarry regard the behavior of fish as a rather dependable indication of the weather that's just around the bend.

This subject was first brought to my attention, rather painfully be it confessed, by a memorable boyhood experience, when some companions and I embarked on an odyssey into the recesses of a swamp. We were accompanied by Uncle Henry, a picturesque old codger to whom the labyrinthian mazes of the swamp were as familiar as the kitchen of his own shanty. The glistening black coves of the swamp were teeming with copperhead bream, red breast and bass, so with the prospect of the whole day ahead of us, "the goose was hanging high." But about the middle of the afternoon fish began to lose interest somewhat, and soon thereafter we observed Uncle Henry busily winding up his tackle and preparing to leave. Greatly mystified, we demanded an explanation.

"Hits a-goin' to rain cats and dogs, and we'd better get out of the swamp while the gettin's good," he replied.

"How do you know it's going to rain?" we asked, indignant and skeptical.

"In the first place, my rheumatism is a-botherin' me, and in the second place fish have stopped bitin' without any reason. That's a sure sign of a change."

Being doubting Thomases, we decided that Uncle Henry was a superstitious old fogy, and remained in the swamp. The upshot of the whole business was that we were caught in a rain and wind storm that scared us out of our boots, and we had to flounder through three miles of drenching rain.

The one experience I have related might have been coincidence, of course, but I have seen it repeated often and with regularity.

Soup's On!

Senator Joe Robinson's demand for the abolition of stock margins seems to have overlooked Secretary Wallace's simple remedy as applied to marginal farms—have the Government buy them up.

Of course, if enough professors join the Government, some desirable college chairs will be available for Cabinet members.

That little rain wasn't just what we ordered, but it did wash the red off the weather man's face.

Just Folks.

An Ancient Hatred.

The knowing crow looks down at me
And lists me as his enemy,
But I have never raised a gun
I've never plotted 'gainst his life.
His little ones, his faithful wife,
Yet if across his path I stray
One step too near he flies away.

I wonder why of me this fear?
And think in some far distant year
A crow once trusted man and stayed
To watch his coming, unafraid,
When suddenly at him was thrown
A deadly bludgeon or a stone.
And in that instant there began
The feathered creature's fear of man.

What happened to that slaughtered crow
Its countless fellows couldn't know,
But day by day and year by year
When, always as a man drew near,
Death struck them down, the knowing crows
Put them upon their list of foes
And taught their fledgings far to fly
When creatures on two legs pass by.

Now sits a sentry on a tree
With eye alert to watch for me.
"Caw! Caw!" he cries as I appear.
"Here is another man to fear!"
And thus am I compelled to face
An ancient hatred of my race
And feel the flush of shame to see
The knowing crows afraid of me.

By Robert Quillen.

MY DEAR LOUISE: In that celebated column of advice to the lovelorn which you asked me to read, I found this remarkable statement: That a married man, being reluctant to care for his old mother, hides behind his wife's petticoats and untruthfully declares that he would gladly give his mother a home if his wife made no objection.

Well, it is true that some sons, being more wolf than human, are unwilling to care for their mothers.

But when such a son, or any other, asserts that his wife is unwilling to provide a home for his mother, he isn't manufacturing an untruthful alibi. He is speaking a sad truth that is as old as human nature.

No house, said the ancients, is big enough for two families. And no woman, except the rarest, willingly admits another woman to her home.

There are exceptions, of course. The very rich who have great houses and little intimacy may endure such an arrangement without friction. And the very poor, made kind by suffering, can live ten in a room and welcome another.

But among people of the kind you know, one woman to a home is the limit.

And because that is true, wives who know themselves and their sex realize that they are courting trouble when they share their homes with a mother-in-law.

What has all this to do with you? Nothing, I hope. But it may become your chief concern in future years, and I wish to give you a word of caution.

Some day you may fall in love with a young man who is supporting his mother, or one who in the natural course of events will later become his mother's only support.

If he is a decent and sensible young man, he will explain the situation to you. If he doesn't, you should have wit enough to add two and two and get the right answer for yourself.

If you would save yourself and the boy a great deal of misery, you must face the facts fairly.

You know that he must care for his mother. That obligation exists before you arrive. If you marry him, he will be under obligation to care for you, also, but marriage doesn't cancel his duty to his mother any more than it cancels his debt to the grocer.

If you can marry him on those terms, and share him with his mother without envy or jealousy or bitterness, go ahead and God bless you.

If you can't do that, don't ruin his life and your own. Don't force him to the sorry choice of living in Hades or being a brute. Just say no and wait for an orphan. Love, DAD.

Political Comment

Destroying Cotton.
Kansas City Times.

The unusual, the unprecedented and paradoxical being a part of the accepted order of the day, the plowing up of 10,000,000 acres of cotton has been going forward with a minimum of public notice. The agreements were signed several weeks ago; yet the actual destruction of about one-fourth of a major crop, or of a growth expected to yield 3,500,000 bales, has its startling phases.

Ordinarily, destruction is not considered economic or profitable. In this instance, the 3,500,000 bales of potential yield would, at present prices, mean $175,000,000 in cash. The plowing up of that portion of the crop will save, of course, the cost of harvesting. Yet the plowing itself involves no inconsiderable labor. But the $175,000,000 is to be passed up, while the Government is to pay the growers $100,000,000 for their cooperative effort and also to give options on Government-held cotton on conditions that are certain to mean more money to the farmers.

Postal Deficit Fading.
Houston Post.

Details are lacking in the story that tells of the vanishing postal deficit. The country is assured, however, that the Postoffice Department is almost out of the red. The $153,000,000 deficit that Postmaster General Farley inherited lacks little of being eliminated.

Provided this has not been accomplished at the expense of the workers in the postal service, this achievement by the Farley administration is gratifying.

Wheat Regulation.
Detroit News.

Secretary Wallace, of the United States Department of Agriculture, and his adjustment helpers have figured out that 456,198,588 bushels is the proper size for the coming wheat crop and they are going to reward farmers who accept the Government's plan for crop curtailment on that basis. The allotment is the estimated proportion of the five-year average production that will be required for domestic consumption. It is 54 per cent of the five-year total average production.

If all the farmers adopt the Government's plan, they will be paid out of Government tax money $127,000,000 at the minimum rate now contemplated. This will be the first instance in the history of the world in which food producers were given huge sums of money not to do their best. In the old days of frequent famines and worry over possible lean years, phophecy of a future in which men would be given bonuses for not producing would have sounded like fable.

Canada Watches Public Works Plan.
Minneapolis Journal.

With the interest of a friendly neighbor, whose problems, although not so great are very like our own, Canada is watching the development of our public works program. If it is a good thing for us, might it not be good for the progressive country on our north?

Canada also is giving thought to the recent statement of Walter Runciman that the British public works plan was not a success from the labor employment viewpoint. In operation it put 2,000 men at work directly and as many indirectly, but to create that much employment $500,000,000 was expended.

COMMANDMENTS FOR THE NEW DEAL.

1—Thou shalt not confuse realities with bedtime stories.

2—Thou shalt not expect the other fellow to pull thee out of a hole.

3—Thou shalt not mistake an offer of help for a Government guaranty of a nonstop joy ride at Federal expense with accident insurance thrown in.

4—Thou shalt not forget the lessons of 1929 and lightly dismiss the four years' headache as due to something you ate.

5—Thou shalt not mistake the new deal for a game of solitaire with nobody hurt except yourself if you cheat.

7—Thou shalt not make the mistake of assuming that national recovery is merely a matter of favorable winds, a few pep talks and some cheerful music.

11—Thou shalt not operate on margin.

14—Thou shalt not chisel.

UNANIMOUS.

How about a code raising the level from which kidnapers should be hanged?

The President has announced a fight to the finish against kidnapers. Here's hoping the kidnapers get the black spot in the new deal.

Americans Need Not Worry Over Foreign Politics—Big Opportunities at Home.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The devotee of Addison will remember his delicious little essay about the small London shoe repairer who neglected his work to worry himself about the British Empire's policy at Constantinople, or what should be done in regard to other large political problems of empery. I therefore do not wish to delve into the ramifications of economics and exhibit my ignorance on the subject. Like the shoemaker, I should "stick to my last."

However, as a broad matter of fundamental reasoning, it seems to me we are overaccentuating the matter of our foreign trade, and regarding it as the one panacea to drag us up out of the abysmal despond of the depression. Why not regard foreign trade as our luxury producer, most acceptable when and if it returns, but in the interim, remember we have a land 3,000 miles long, containing virtually every climate, product and mineral, rich farm lands and broad grazing lands, vast waterways and water power and remarkable transportation facilities, and manufacturing establishments ready to resume, and unrivaled business initiative, and a population of 122,000,000 persons who must be consumers as well as producers?

H. I. Phillips' Blue Eagle Commandments Meet With Cordial Approval.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "The Once Over" pledge which appeared in The Post of August 3 should be pasted beside the Blue Eagle on every shop and factory and committed to memory by everybody inside. Any passer-by, whether a brain-trustee or plain citizen, should be privileged to put his head inside the door and call, "Repeat No. 3, please, and then No. 7 and 11, also 17 and 18."

Price Fixing Goes Out.
Kansas City Star.

As originally submitted at Washington, the code for the oil industry provided for the fixing of maximum and minimum prices by the administration. That, together with licensing and certain other provisions, it is understood, now has been eliminated from the code. This is in conformity with the textile code, already adopted and in operation, and with the other major codes that have been drawn up. While the price-fixing in the one instance would have been done by, or with the sanction of, the administration, it is a judicious and precautionary procedure to avoid any commitment of that sort in an adopted code.

Bonds Remain Unchanged at Former Level

Irregular Changes Prevail Before Sale Is Stopped at $4,303,000.

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—The bond market, which closed shortly after noon today, when tear gas fumes drove brokers from the floor of the Stock Exchange, displayed an irregular trend in the most indifferent trading of the past several months.

Sales totaled only $4,303,000, par value, and the average for 60 domestic corporate loans was unchanged from yesterday at 81.1.

Moderate pressure was exerted against some of the secondary rail issues before the untimely finish of the lazy session. Carrier liens off a point or more included some of Alleghany Corp., Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corp., St. Paul, Rock Island, Cleveland Union Terminal, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, N. Y. Central, Nickel Plate, Southern Pacific and Southern.

Most of the utilities and industrials were without life. Generally, minor gains offset similar losses. Among the few noticeably heavier bonds in these divisions, however, were those of American Chain, Colorado Industrial, Goodrich, International Telephone, North American, Studebaker, and U. S. Rubber.

United States Government securities were extremely dull and moderately lower.

Foreign obligations were mixed. French Government 7s and 7½s lost a point or more, Swiss Government 5½s were off 2 and the more active British 5½s yielded 1. Some of the Japanese and Germans improved.

Electricity Output Increases in Week

New York, Aug. 4 (Spl.).—For the week ended July 22, Associated Gas & Electric System reports electric output, excluding sales to other utilities, of 52,400,371 units (kwh), an increase of 6,992,746 units or 15.4 per cent above the same week of last year. This compares with an increase of 16.3 per cent reported for the four weeks ended July 22. This is the third successive week in which the system reports a lower percent increase than that of the preceding week.

On those properties where a large volume of the electric power has been sold to industries operating under the new codes, the marked tendency is already to reflect a slowing down of the extreme industrial activity apparent a few weeks ago. A further extension of this slackening, as other codes become effective, is to be expected in the coming week. It is emphasized that even if the power sales continued at their present high levels, that fact in itself would not offset the losses in revenue resulting from continued decreased sales to domestic consumers at lower rates. Added to this are the increases in expenses, both current and future, resulting from higher tax imposts, possible wage increases under the recovery act and higher prices for materials and supplies due to inflation.

Gas output, at 270,739,900 cubic feet, was less than 1 per cent below the corresponding week of 1932.

Stocks' Decline Halted By Premature Closing

Gas-Bomb Fumes Stop Trading as Utilities Become Selling Target; Losses Average 1.8 Points; Ticker Registers 540,020 Shares.

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—The stock market shed a few modest tears on its own account today before the gas bombs sent brokers pouring out with swollen and streaming eyes.

But the market's grief was of limited character compared with the physical discomfort of floor members and employees. Price declines in the short session, so abruptly ended soon after noon by the ruthless gas, ranged from fractions to around 2 points.

The ticker clicked off a volume of only 540,020 shares before the forced evacuation of the floor. A decline of 1.8 points was registered by the composite Standard Statistics-Associated Press average for 90 selected issues.

In accord with a previous ruling of the governing committee, the stock exchange will be closed all day tomorrow.

With trading proceeding as slowly as the proverbial snail, utilities appeared to be the particular selling target. General rate uncertainties, which have prevailed for some time, were believed to be the cause of uneasiness in this group.

American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, North American, Public Service of New Jersey and Western Union were among the stocks in this category, which lost from fractions to 2 or more points.

Among the industrials, declines of similar scope were recorded by American Tobacco B, Union Carbide, United Aircraft, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, United Fruit, U. S. Gypsum, Goodyear, Johns-Manville, Endicott Johnson, and Commercial Solvents. Alcohol stocks, which frequently move against the trend, hesitated, although price changes, on the whole were insignificant. Rails were unaffected by the glittering report of increased June earnings, while farm implement shares were soft.

Week-end industrial news was of a satisfactory nature. Utility and gas industries announced that their respective codes, duly signed, would be filed with the Industrial Recovery Administration tomorrow.

Trade reviews found no cause for concern in the fact that consumer buying thus far has trailed the lusty gains in production. Retail inventories are still below normal, said Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., adding that spending habits acquired under the stark grimness of the last three years can not be expected to change with one fell swoop.

"The continuous increase in the number of corporations that are reporting profits," said this review, "is supporting reassurance of the extent the recovery has attained."

Wool Market.

Boston, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow: "The demand for wool has lessened this week, although there has been a spotty business and rather encouraging inquiry on the part of mills who apparently are checking up stocks against future necessities.

"Prices keep very steady throughout the list, both in worsted and woolen wools and in by-products.

"The manufacturing position of the market is a very strong one. Mills at the moment are concerned chiefly with determining added costs under the code and are not giving much concern to new business. Some piecing-out orders are being received to a moderate extent.

Journal Explains Two Farm Bonds

New York, Aug. 4 (Spl.).—Pointing out that the investing public does not seem to have a clear understanding of the effect of the Emergency Farm Mortgage Act on securities now outstanding, the Financial World, leading weekly journal for investors, calls attention in its August 2 issue that there are two types of farm mortgage bonds—the Federal Land Bank and the joint stock land bank bonds.

The Federal Government now owns 66 per cent of the stock of the Federal Land Banks, and the holders of the old bonds, from present indications, may have the opportunity to exchange their holdings for new guaranteed bonds. No default has ever been made in respect to a Federal Land Bank bond.

The joint stock land banks, on the other hand, are strictly private institutions, although they are subject to strict governmental regulation. "The only financial assistance received by the joint stock land banks from the Government, up to the time of the enactment of the farm mortgage bill, was in the form of Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans," continues the Financial World. "In spite of the availability of loans from this source under the terms of the R. F. C. act, several of these banks have been placed in receivership and bond defaults have been fairly numerous. Of the remaining banks, only 17 out of more than 40 have earning assets equal to outstanding bonds, and in many cases large amounts of mortgages which are carried as live assets are not producing any income at this time. Many of the joint stock land banks will apparently either have to borrow or default on their bonds some time within the next few months."

348,194,000 Pounds Listed As Wool Crop

(Associated Press.)

This year's wool production in the United States, which is being marketed at prices higher than for any recent year, is estimated at 348,194,000 pounds by the Department of Agriculture.

It estimates the average price paid to farmers for wool from June 15 to July 15, at 22.4 cents a pound, compared with 17.8 cents, the average paid from 1909 to 1914. In July, 1932, the average price listed by the department was 7 cents a pound.

Imports of combing and clothing wools during the first six months of this year totaled 5,801,000 pounds, the rate increasing somewhat with the improvement in domestic prices.

The Farm Credit Administration, which this spring created a wool advisory committee to handle sales of wool forming security for Government loans, said that top prices in grease and Eastern points for both 12 and 8 months wool produced in Texas have been 31 to 32 cents. For best 12-month Texas wool, clean, the committee reported receiving from 77 to 78 cents a pound, and for best 8-month Texas wool, clean, 75 cents.

The Credit Administration, now in charge of both the intermediate credit banks and the regional agricultural credit corporations which have loans secured by wool, said it has no plan for disposing of the fall mohair clip to be shorn this month.

It refused to disclose how much Texas wool under Government mortgage has been consigned to Eastern dealers, and how much sold. A report will be made at the end of the marketing season.

U. S. Dollar Rallies In Foreign Marts

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—The American dollar moved idly in foreign exchange markets today and finished moderately irregular in terms of leading European currencies.

The British pound sterling followed a narrow range throughout and at the close of trading was 1 cent lower at $4.52 for cables. French francs were fractionally higher at 5.36 cents, Dutch guilders gained .13 of a cent at 55.38 cents and Swiss francs were up 1.20 of a cent at 26.53 cents.

Belgian belgas were unchanged, the Scandinavians were a trifle lower and Canadian dollars sagged ½ cent at 93½ cents. Far Eastern exchanges were easier.

Employment Gains As Loans Expand

New York, Aug. 4 (Spl.).—One of the first reflections of the pick-up in employment over the country is contained in the report of the Beneficial Industrial Loan Corporation for the half-year ended June 30, 1933, in which the company's president, Charles H. Watts, states that "while collections in April reflected no improvement, May and June figures showed a substantial betterment over April, and the report received from the offices so far this month (July) continue favorable."

Increased employment, Mr. Watts explains, is reflected in the number of applicants able to meet the requirements for new loans and in the borrowers who are able to resume payments on their loans.

The consolidated net income statement of the company for the six months amounted to $2,061,717 after interest, amortization charges, minority interests and Federal taxes. After payment of preferred stock dividends this is equivalent to 80 cents a share on the 2,092,344 common shares outstanding. For the March quarter of this year earnings were 39 cents per common share, and for the June quarter 41 cents was earned, after provision was made covering six months' new taxes levied under the NIRA, equivalent to more than 3 cents for each share of common stock outstanding.

Court Bars Oil Contract In $1,070,766 Suit

Los Angeles, Aug. 4 (AP).—The Pacific Western Oil Co. today lost its suit in Federal court to compel the Richfield Oil Co. and W. C. McDuffie, Federal receiver in equity, to pay $1,070,766 for oil contracted to be delivered before the Richfield Co. went into receivership.

Mr. McDuffie presented affidavits to the effect he had refused to continue the contract, entered into in November, 1928, when he was appointed receiver January 18, 1931.

Reemployment In Realty Work Is Regulated

Board Members Notified Problem Can Be Settled in Certificate.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Members of the Washington Real Estate Board have been given a special notice with regard to President Roosevelt's reemployment agreement by Charles J. Rush, executive secretary of the board.

Mr. Rush announces that in reply to many inquiries received concerning the President's reemployment agreement and its effect upon properties managed by the agents, a committee of this board has been studying the matter. After a consultation with Maj. Onthank, of the National Recovery Administration, it was advised that members could sign the certificate of compliance by inserting the following qualifying remark: "This applies only to the clerical office force of ..... company."

Under the conditions set forth in paragraph 13, the agreement will cease upon approval by the President of a code to which the signer is subject.

Through the National Recovery Administration, the board's committee has been advised that a code affecting the real estate business from a Nationwide angle only will be acceptable, and that codes prepared for local use will not be approved. Groups submitting local codes have been advised by the NRA to cooperate with their national bodies in submitting codes.

The National Association of Real Estate Boards is working on a code as it applies to property management and a committee has been appointed by the Washington Real Estate Board to make recommendations to the national association to the proposed code as it will apply to the District of Columbia.

Members desiring to make any suggestions as to provisions of the proposed code for the real estate business are requested to submit such recommendations in writing to the Washington Real Estate Board for consideration by the special committee.

Electromatic Typewriters.

Thomas J. Watson, president of International Business Machines Corporation, has announced the purchase by his company of Electromatic Typewriters, Inc., including its Rochester, N. Y., plant, all machines, tools and patents. Among the machines in the acquired line are an all-electric typewriter, an automatic letter writer, and a master perforator.

The company has been purchased principally because many of the features covered by its patents can be used to extend the use of electric accounting and tabulating machines produced by International Business Machines Corporation, Mr. Watson stated.

The Rochester plant will be kept in operation for the time being, he added, and the new line of machines will be distributed by International Business Machines Corporation.

First Power Typewriter.

The electromatic typewriter has been on the market for a number of years and is the first commercial typewriter in which the entire mechanism is designed primarily for power operation. Every movement of the machine is actuated by an electric motor, a pressure of only 2 ounces on the keys being necessary to make the electrical contact which results in the operation of the machine.

Tests have shown the features of the all-electric typewriter to be evenness of impression, greater speed, less fatigue on the part of the typist and the ability to produce as many as 15 to 20 carbon copies at one typing.

The automatic letter writer types any desired number of form letters automatically from a perforated paper master sheet. The master perforator punches the master sheet for the automatic letter writer.

Wheat Slumps As Speculative Buying Wanes

Perplexities Over Money Plans in Washington Are Blamed.

Chicago, Aug. 4 (AP).—Unusual curtailment of active speculative buying power led to a big downward slide of grain values today.

Perplexities relative to Washington monetary plans were suggested in various quarters as being largely responsible for notable evident slackening of purchase operations, especially in future deliveries of wheat and corn. Adverse crop news was plentiful, but for the moment appeared to have become ineffective to attract broad public interest.

Wheat closed nearly stagnant at the day's bottom figures, 3 cents to 4 cents under yesterday's finish; corn, 2 to 2½ down; oats, 1½ to 2⅛ off, and provisions showing 20 to 32 cents decline.

Dead Center Reached.

Although at times in the first half of the day wheat and corn rallied about a cent a bushel from preceding setbacks, both grains later reached something like a dead center, as demand dwindled to almost zero. The temporary rallies were associated with word that high temperatures had begun to reappear in the Canadian Northwest.

There were also advices that approximately 27 per cent of the wheat crop in Saskatchewan, the largest wheat-producing province of Canada, was a virtual failure.

Selling on upturns, however, soon canceled price rallies, and then with trade volume meager in wheat and also in corn, the markets fluttered nervously downgrade.

Weakness at Winnipeg.

Weakness of Winnipeg wheat quotations had a disconcerting effect, and was attributed to hedging sales and to laggard behavior of the Liverpool market, where approaching bank holidays tomorrow and Monday acted as a handicap. The Winnipeg wheat market will also be closed Monday.

Despite today's wheat market action, trade sentiment after the close was by no means one-sided. A spokesman of one of the largest grain companies here said: "There is entirely too much pessimism in wheat. It is likely that when the national move to advance prices of all commodities gets under way, there will be plenty of bull leadership in grain."

Rains in the Middle West did a good deal to drag corn and oats values down. Crop experts said, however, that field conditions for corn were unpromising and regardless of weather hereafter would not be changed to any great extent.

"Managed Dollar" Basis Is Planned

New York, Aug. 4 (Spl.).—The administration is planning to place our monetary system on a "managed dollar" basis, which will be fixed on the exchange value of a selected group of commodities instead of gold, explains the August 2 issue of the Financial World, leading weekly journal for investors. When the 1926 level of prices is reached and the budget is balanced, it is planned to standardize the dollar not on a certain number of grains of gold but on the amount of gold needed to buy a certain quantity of commodities. Revision would need to be made frequently, perhaps monthly. Gold would be only a symbol. Coinage of the metal would stop.

Critics find many objections to the theory of the "managed dollar," chief of which are summarized by the Financial World as follows: (1) The calculation of the price index would be a very difficult task; (2) a bumper crop, as of corn, would throw the scheme out of balance; (3) credit expansion by financial institutions is apt to interfere with the "stable" purchasing power of a dollar compensated by variations of its gold backing; (4) even if the domestic purchasing power of our money were stabilized, it would not solve the problem of foreign exchange.

But the experiment, although "upon an uncharted sea and with no precedent," should cause no qualms, for "we have an administration which does not hesitate to reverse its policies should their effects prove to be unfavorable to the general welfare. From that fact," concludes the Financial World, "we can take comfort."

London—Prices on the stock exchange were quietly cheerful today. Home rails were the best feature of the market, strengthening on traffic prospects, while giltedged securities also advanced due to investment buying. Transatlantic issues were inclined to sag. The market closed steady.

Yield Curb Sought On Cured Tobacco

(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

Representatives of tobacco manufactures met with officials of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration yesterday in an informal conference to discuss suggestions for adjusting the production of burley and flue-cured types of tobaccos to consumption demands. J. B. Hutson, acting chief of the tobacco section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, presided. He outlined the problem of surplus production in these types of tobaccos and asked the representatives for suggestions.

Charles J. Brand, coadministrator of the agricultural adjustment act, who called the conference, explained the purpose and powers of the agricultural adjustment act.

The representatives of the tobaccco companies discussed the general situation of the burley and flue-cured types and were in general agreement that production should be placed in line with consumption. Definite proposals for adjusting production of these tobaccos to consumption requirements were not offered at the conference. Mr. Hutson asked the representatives to submit their proposals in writing later.

Beet Sugar Group To Get Quota Aid

Denver, Aug. 4 (AP).—W. D. Lippitt, presiding at a conference here of sugar manufacturers, issued a statement today declaring "sugar processors will indorse beet farmers in whatsoever position they take on sugar quota restrictions."

"Beet sugar processors desire to cooperate with the Government in any reasonable plan for coordinating the various branches of the sugar industry in a stabilization program," said Lippitt, who is president of the Great Western Sugar Co.

"The processors have no authorization to speak on behalf of the farmers in the matter of any quota restrictions which may be imposed on production of sugar beets in continental United States. It is understood that beet farmers in seventeen States are now preparing their case to be presented at public hearings soon to be held in Washington. The processors will indorse the farmers in whatsoever position they take on quota restrictions."

Drought Cuts Yield of Milk, Survey Shows

New York, Aug. 4 (Spl.).—"There is little indication of any increase in milk production during the balance of the year, as the most important dairy districts have suffered severely from the drought, pastures are short, and it will be necessary to purchase much ground feed," says the survey compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. "As dairymen have not raised large feed crops, and because of their financial status will not be in a position to buy much feed this fall, there probably will be widespread selling of live stock. Besides, the high prices of feedstuffs will restrict feeding and curtail the milk yield per cow.

"As the recent upward adjustment in price schedules has permitted a more satisfactory margin of profit, most dairymen are beginning to free themselves from indebtedness. Since May, creameries have added materially to their supplies, and also have replaced equipment, which has given a good volume of business to supply houses. Collections in proportion to sales are considered satisfactory.

"The reduction in failures during the first six months of this year was most pronounced in the manufacturing division. Although 10 creameries were listed among the bankruptcies for that period by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., as compared with 21 for the entire twelve months of 1932, the liabilities involved were lower by more than 50 per cent than those which appeared in the record for the first six months of 1932. Among retailers and wholesalers of milk and dairy products, the rate of mortality is about the same as it was last year, when an all-time high level was established."

The complete insolvency record of the dairy industry since 1927, including the first six months of 1933, as compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., shows:

Bankers Hail U. S. Bond Sales As Public Backing Roosevelt

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—The brilliant success of the Government's recent $500,000,000 issue of long-term bonds oversubscribed more than six times is seen by some bankers as overwhelming proof of the support of the masses in the country's recovery program.

Moreover, the very fact that the administration saw fit to make this offering now, maintain these financial interests, seems to demonstrate that no inflationary moves are contemplated unless unforeseen business developments demand.

Patterned after the Liberty loans of war days, the half billion issue was offered in the form of "baby bonds," that is, denominations of $50 and up.

With no signs of apprehension regarding the country's monetary policies, it would not be surprising to Government bond specialists if an early attempt were made to refund some of the outstanding Liberty loans.

Bankers who attach this significance to the current Treasury financing plans point out that the first Liberty loan of $1,933,212,000, due in 1947, became callable as of June 15, last year.

The fourth Liberty loan issue of $6,268,095,250, maturing in 1938, is redeemable at any time following six months' notice, which must be given at the time of the due interest payment, in this case the coming October 15. A healthy market for long-term obligations would indicate that this issue, now bearing 4¼ per cent interest, could be refunded on an advantageous basis.

Building Sets Peak On Pacific Coast

San Francisco, Aug. 4 (AP).—The Pacific Coast construction industry, after seven months of record-breaking awards of engineering contracts, finds its 1933 pace speeded up 182 per cent over the 1932 velocity.

This remarkable achievement is shown in the compilation of awards, which totaled $146,839,048 from January 1 to July 31. In the same months of 1932 the contracts totaled $52,140,119.

The figures covered only major construction projects, principally public works. They were assembled by A. Gilbert Darwin, editor of Western Construction News and Highway Builder.

Business Notes.

Chicago, Aug. 4 (AP).—A gain of 15.34 per cent for sales in July, 1933, as compared with the same month last year was reported by Montgomery Ward & Co. today. The figures were: 1933, $13,615,400; 1932, $11,804,281.

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 4 (AP).—The Torrance plants of Columbia Steel Corporation, subsidiary of U. S. Steel, will operate on a full 24-hour basis at full capacity for the first time since November, 1929, beginning Monday, it was announced today. Four hundred men will be given employment.

Chicago, Aug. 4 (AP).—Electric refrigerator shipments by Grigsby-Grunow Co. in July were seven times those of July, 1932, the company said today.

Chicago, Aug. 4 (AP).—The Curtis Candy Co. today announced it would add 1,500 names to its pay roll of 6,000.

Chicago, Aug. 4 (AP).—Passenger traffic on Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., for 1933 through July 1 was 63 per cent above the corresponding period last year, company officials reported.

Bankers Explain Odd Gold Cargo

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—Wall street today thought it had solved the mystery of a recent small shipment of American gold to Europe, which under ordinary conditions would have been prevented by the gold embargo law.

In the opinion of bankers here, the shipment—amounting to $347,000, which went to France on Wednesday—was for the purpose of compensating American Government officials in foreign service for the loss of income resulting from the fall of the dollar to around 75 per cent of its former value.

Export of the odd sum was revealed when Federal Reserve reports showed that it was not a part of the shipment of earmarked gold held here for the account of foreign central banks.

The State Department recently announced that it was working on a plan to pay officials abroad the equivalent, in purchasing power, of the old dollar. The simplest way to handle the problem, it was assumed, was to pay in gold, and the financial community thought that the recent shipment was in line with this decision.

RKO Corporation Foreclosure Filed

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—Foreclosure proceedings were begun in Federal Court today against Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation by the Chemical Bank & Trust Co. as trustee under a 10-year 6 per cent gold debenture issue of $11,600,000.

The bank obtained permission from Federal Judge William Bondy to bring the suit, that step having been necessary because of the fact that RKO is in an equity receivership.

The bank charged the defendant violated the terms of the mortgage, which was dated December 23, 1931, by failing to pay the bank $1,148,500 due on extended notes which were given during the same year.

New Financing In Canada Cut To $24,554,920

New York, Aug. 4 (Spl.).—Total new financing in Canada for July amounted to $24,554,920, as compared with $93,381,535 in June and $35,244,160 in July, 1932, according to statistics compiled by the Dominion Securities Corporation.

The total sales for the first seven months of 1933 were $154,762,194, as compared with $197,398,701 a year ago. Except for the $60,000,000 issue of 4 per cent notes due October 1, 1934, which was sold in the United States in June, all of the issues were payable in lawful money of Canada only.

Dominion of Canada	$60,000,000
Provincial	61,874,000
Municipal	24,703,194
Railways	1,000,000
Public Utilities	6,625,000
Industrial and miscellaneous	560,000
	$154,762,194

Provincial and municipal financing is considerably lower for this year than it was last year, due to the efforts of the provinces and municipalities to curtail capital expenditures.

When contrasted with the issue prices of provincial and municipal bonds in 1932, several of the recent sales illustrate clearly the great improvement in the Canadian bond market. During July, for example, the City of Toronto sold a 4½ per cent serial issue at prices ranging from a 4.25 to a 4.60 per cent basis. In March, 1932, a new issue of Toronto bonds yielded 5.70 per cent. A similar improvement has taken place in the provincial bond market as exemplified by the recent sale of Saskatchewan 5 per cent bonds on a 5.80 per cent basis, as contrasted with a previous sale of Saskatchewan bonds in March, 1932, on a 6.50 per cent basis.

Cotton Selling Trims Prices In Dull Dealing

December Closes at 10.49 as General Market Drops 15 to 18 Points.

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—The cotton market was quiet today, with prices generally lower under liquidation and scattered selling, partly for Southern account.

An early decline was followed by partial recoveries, but after selling up from 10.46 to 10.58 for December, the price eased off to 10.45 in the later trading and closed at 10.48. The general market closed steady at net declines of 15 to 18 points.

Initial prices were 9 to 16 points lower under liquidation and scattered selling, which was influenced by rather higher private crop figures and Washington reports suggesting little probability of immediate adoption of more inflationary measures.

Active Months Lose.

The active months worked off gradually to net losses of some 17 to 18 points during the forenoon.

Liverpool was a buyer during the first hour, presumably on differences, and the market stiffened up during the middle of the day, recovering about half its early losses on a renewal of commission house buying and covering. No aggressive demand developed, however, and the market later sagged off again under comparatively small offerings, attributed to a renewal of liquidation, influenced by the action of the grain market. Prices reached the lowest levels of the day on most positions in the late trading and closed within 3 or 4 points of the lowest.

Exports reported today, 53,575, making 94,057 so far this season. Port receipts, 15,338. United States port stocks, 2,995,988.

Trade Uptrend Is Continued During Week

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—Trade and business continued on the uptrend last week, with gains distributed in more directions, the Dun & Bradstreet Review said today. The improvement was emphatic despite minor fluctuations in isolated places, the agency added.

Regarding the balance of retail purchasing against production and wholesale operations, the agency said, "The fact that consumer buying thus far has trailed somewhat the hectic gains in wholesale commitments and industrial production has created no cause for concern, as spending habits acquired under the stark grimness of the last three years were not expected to be changed with one fell swoop.

"Retail inventories still are below normal and the rapid inroads being made into present holdings will provide ample room before fall shipments of merchandise will have been received.

"Some retailers are now 'in the black' for the first time in over two years, and with the benign influence of the blanket code to be felt immediately, the gap which ordinarily exists before the fall buying movement gets under way will have been obliterated.

"Of outstanding significance in current consumer buying is the spreading of interest to articles which have been persistently slow moving. High priced automobiles are selling at a better rate, and sales of some of the leaders in the low priced field are well above last year's figures. The sharp upturn in sales of typewriters, stationery, office supplies and office furniture is indicative of the stabilized level to which the broadening of commercial activity has advanced."

Goods Markets.

New York, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—The Saturday closing movement in primary textile markets has become very general as a part of compliance with the NRA and some slight quickening in business was reported. Small lots of cotton goods are being bought close to recent high quotations. Rayon yarns are being ordered for September and October delivery in moderate volume and can not be accepted fully due to lessened product. Silk goods are selling moderately. Wool goods merchants are figuring new costs based upon their cost, just approved at Washington and little new business is being booked.

New Deal Used In Refinancing Chicago Bank

Fairness to Security Owners Is Key of Plan; All Expenses Paid.

Chicago, Aug. 4 (Spl.).—A few days ago the financial centers throughout the country skipped two or three heartbeats when the unique plan formulated by Gertler, Devlet & Co. for reorganizing the Chicago Joint Stock Land Bank was announced.

This plan of reorganization not only personifies the "New Deal" but a fair deal to all security holders. It is an unusual case of "the doctor taking his own medicine," for, we are told on the best of authority, they and their associates are important holders of the Chicago bank's securities; accordingly, the best interests of the security holders are doubling their interests.

Objectives of Reorganization.

First. Assure to each bondholder who participates in the reorganization his full proportionate share in the liquidating value of the assets of the bank.

Second. Allow a fair cash payment for the interests of those bondholders who choose to withdraw from the situation entirely.

Third. Prevent, as far as possible, suits and prospective suits between bondholders, stockholders and others which would promise months of expensive delay and litigation.

Fourth. Provide for maximum realization on the assets of the bank through conservation and orderly liquidation instead of forced liquidation.

M. J. Devlet, in an interview, stated that, "Interests of security holders should come first. We have supplied holders with exceptionally complete information in connection with our announcement of this plan of reorganization. Our aim will be to provide for maximum realization of the assets of this bank through conservation of orderly liquidation instead of forced liquidation."

Assets in Reorganization.

"It appears that the present management has pursued a policy of sacrificing assets for speedy liquidation, a policy perhaps justified in the past, but in our opinion no longer justified in view of the reversed trend of conditions affecting these assets. We do not anticipate any radical change in the personnel of the management, but after the reorganization the management will be free to adopt more liberal policies. We are confident that the earning assets of the bank will produce sufficient revenue to pay interest on the new bonds without recourse to funds derived from sale of assets after the first twelve months of operation, and that the new corporation, under conditions comparable with the present, will be able to pay off the new bonds in full on or before maturity and leave a substantial equity for the stockholders."

Without exception the most unusual feature of this proposed reorganization is that the firm of Gertler, Devlet & Co. agrees to personally defray all expenses incidental to this readjustment; assuming the depositary fees, legal expenses, advertising and printing costs, &c. Their compensation, if any, to come after bondholders' and stockholders' interests have been fully cared for. Gertler, Devlet & Co. state they will have no options or contracts on any of the stock of the new corporation—there will be no cash or stock bonuses of any kind or description. Their entire compensation being in strict accordance with specifications set forth in reorganization plan.

Walgreen Stores To Join Code Plan

New York, Aug. 4 (Spl.).—C. R. Walgreen, president of the Walgreen Co., operating a chain of drug stores, announced today that the Walgreen stores intended to cooperate heartily with President Roosevelt's plan for shortening working hours and increasing employment. Mr. Walgreen sent the following letter to all employes:

"Until earning power, which means spending power, is firmly reestablished, we can not feel that the depression is definitely and entirely behind us.

"In my opinion, President Roosevelt's plan of shortening hours, thereby employing more people, has merit, and it is our intention to heartily cooperate with this movement.

"The retail drug business, on account of being semiprofessional, differs from all other retail businesses and a separate code, adaptable to it, is being prepared.

"Some 30-odd years ago I spent two years clerking in a drug store. My average working time was 79 hours per week. This may not have hurt me, but having had that experience, few can appreciate more than I the desirability of reasonable working hours.

"As soon as the new code is worked out and accepted by the President, steps will be taken for its application."

Radio Dial Flashes

By Robert D. Heinl.

HANS KINDLER, former first 'cellist of the Philadelphia Orchestra and present director of the National Symphony of Washington, will return to his associates as guest conductor during the broadcast tonight from 7:30 to 8:15 o'clock. The concert by the Philadelphia Summer Concerts Orchestra will be heard here through WJSV direct from Robin Hood Dell in Philadelphia's historic Fairmount Park.

Tonight's broadcast will include Chabrier's overture to the opera "Gwendoline," followed by "En Saga," by Sibelius, and Moussorgsky's "Chant Russe." Borodin's "Polovetzian Dances" complete the program.

The Philadelphia Summer Concerts Orchestra, under Mr. Kindler's direction, will again be heard tomorrow night from 7:30 o'clock until 9:30 through Station WJSV.

The Wightman Tennis Cup match finals between ranking women players of the United States and England at Forest Hills, Long Island, will be broadcast this afternoon by WRC from 2:30 o'clock to 4 o'clock, and WJSV from 2 to 4.

Telling of their broadcast last night we predicted that the Coast Guard Band might play some of Secretary Woodin's compositions, the Coast Guard being under Mr. Woodin. Therefore we almost fell out of the chair in surprise to learn that the band played Woodin's "Franklin D. Roosevelt March."

Further, whoever made up the program diplomatically included "Hamlet's Soliloquy," as a listener dubbed it, an address by Admiral H. G. Hamlet, Commandant of the Coast Guard.

THE first program from Canada, consisting of instrumental and vocal music arranged primarily for listeners in the United States, will be presented tonight under the title of "Under the Bridge of Paris" (WRC, 7:30 o'clock).

The new arrangement is believed to mark the first time that a regular two-way network program exchange on a weekly basis has ever been conducted between countries.

Hereafter Canada will regularly send programs to N. B. C. and Columbia, who will reciprocate by sending our programs to the Canadians.

Sir Hamilton Harty will be heard conducting the "Symphonies Under the Stars" in the Hollywood Bowl tonight (WRC, 11:15 o'clock).

It was a long time since we had listened to Raymond Knight and the Cuckoos, but they were so good last Saturday night that we may try them again tonight (WMAL, 9:30 o'clock).

They used to call Washington a "9 o'clock town," but this is no longer true, with the Washington Night Owls gallivanting through the ether (WOL, midnight until 3 o'clock tomorrow morning).

REPORTS on reforestation work in the Northwest will be sent by radio to President Roosevelt tonight by the Governors of Oregon, Washington and Idaho from above the timber line on the peak of 11,000-foot Mount Hood (WRC, 10:15 p. m.) Listeners also will hear the sounds of pitching camp at Cloud Gap and a short talk by an Indian chief.

The program was originally scheduled for July 22, but, strange as it may seem, was postponed because of heavy snowfall.

Phillips Lord (Seth Parker), who will sail from New York early next month on a trip around the world in his own yacht, will be interviewed on his plans for the voyage when he comes to the microphone as a guest artist on the Saturday Night Dancing Party tonight over WRC, 9 o'clock.

The National Capital Cadet Orchestra, sponsored by the Parents Clubs, will be heard for the first time this morning (WRC, 10:30 o'clock). Their leader will be Charles Williams.

New Yorker Today

By Mark Barron.

New York—For those who trend toward a jittery state when they suddenly encounter strange sights in New York streets, the newest fad in dogs bodes many upsetting moments.

For a time it was the low-slung dachshunds which intrigued pet-loving debutantes and actresses, but this year they are going in for these gigantic English sheep dogs. As large as a grizzly bear, they resemble a quivering bale of St. Vitus rags.

The Comtesse Maurice de Bosdari has two of them, though how she finds room for them in her apartment is a mystery. Another sheep dog enthusiast is Emily Vanderbilt Davies, who was wedded the other day to her third husband, Raoul Whitfield, a writer.

Pursuing the fads of the moment, a Fifth avenue florist tells me that flowers, like roller skates and miniature golf courses, also have their reigns of popularity. At the moment, the rage is for passion flowers and African daisies. Salmon gladioli also are having their hour.

Hither and Yon.

Ruth Etting once received $50 a week for masquerading as a man and crooning baritone in a Chicago cafe.

Bernard F. Gimbel, department store magnate and pal of Gene Tunney, was born in Vincennes, Ind.

So few shows are playing on Broadway that managers have suspended all free ticket lists. Too many requests for Annie Oakleys.

Utopia at Last.

George Stark relays this legend about the soap-box spellbinder who was delivering his oration on a street corner. He was no wild red; indeed, his plan for solving the world's ills was a very gentle one.

"Men, I'll tell you just what the trouble is," he said. "Here we are without any money. But we got all the brains. The bankers have got all the money. What we must do instead of grumbling about conditions is to find some way of getting together with the bankers. Combining our brains with their money is the solution to everything."

He also tells about Anita Loos' annoyance at the celebrity-chasers in Hollywood who are always boasting about palling around with famous folk. She was hemmed in a corner by one such pest.

He had had lunch with Joan Crawford, played tennis with Miriam Hopkins and gone to tea at Constance Bennett's. He was complaining because there had been no caviar at the Bennett party.

Another Apple Cure.

IN Germany the physicians have been curing children of simple diarrheas by feeding them on apples. This practice has been in vogue for at least four years. It has been given a year's trial in this country and the reports on it are excellent. It is true that none save very ripe apples are being used for the purpose, but in spite of that fact, if the small boys ever hear about it, it will be hard to keep them out of apple orchards. They will consider the old idea that stomach ache is caused by eating green apples is nothing more than a fabrication invented for the purpose of keeping boys from eating what they like.

All other food and drink is forbidden for two days. Sound, mellow, good apples are chosen. They are washed well and then peeled and cored. They are then grated into a fine pulp. Of this pulp one to four tablespoons, according to age of the child, are fed once every hour or two, day and night, for 48 hours.

In the experience of Dr. T. L. Bunberg with a large number of children ranging in age from 10 months to 12 years the average amount used by each child in 24 hours was 30 tablespoons. As a rule this amount of grated apple supplies all the food and drink that is needed. If the child is thirsty a little very diluted black tea is given instead of plain water.

Breakfast: Cooked cereal without milk, toast, one cup cocoa made with water (no milk).

3 P. M.: Cereal with no milk, toast, banana, cocoa made with water.

This diet is continued for 48 hours. Then milk or cottage cheese, cereal, and breads are fed as a part of a regular but limited diet. Next vegetables, and finally fruits are allowed.

If the child objects to the sourness of the grated apple, sugar can be added. In some cases the addition of mashed, ripe banana to the grated apple will make it more acceptable.

One theory of this cure is that it takes the place of milk and other foods that have been causing the trouble. In addition it is said that apples contain substances such as pectin, malic acid, and tannin, and that one or more of these have some curative action. This is largely speculative and may or may not be true. The substantial fact is that the older babies and children beyond babyhood appear to be cured of their diarrheas by this simple method four times out of five. No medicine is given.

In such cases there is very apt to be fever. Under the diet the temperature comes to normal in less than a day. There is apt to be colicky pain. That symptom disappears. The looseness of the bowels is checked. If there is nausea it passes. It seems to satisfy appetite and thirst and not to add to the digestive difficulties, as is so often the case when the sick child takes milk and ordinary foods, and it allows nature to cure and maybe helps a little directly toward that end.

Water.

Mrs. D. N. R. writes: I am advised to drink plenty of water, as I had a bad kidney trouble. I know that I do not drink enough, but water nauseates me. If I were to drink a glassful in the morning it would come up immediately. I can drink a good amount at meals, but I invariably vomit if I drink on an empty stomach or between meals. From early childhood this has been true and yet I have never had any stomach trouble.

Reply.

Why not limit your water drinking to meal time? You can take as much as you need. Coffee, tea, milk, soup and other fluids are counted as water. So is watermelon. Have you ever had some one try to find out why you can not drink water?

Powdered Milk.

M. H. McF. writes: 1. Does the commercial powdered milk contain all of the essential properties of liquid milk?

2. If one puts on weight from drinking fresh milk, should he not benefit similarly from the prepared milk?

Reply.

1. Yes. There is some loss of vitamin C and, of course, there is little water, but these shortcomings are easily remedied.

2. Yes.

Sulphur and Itch.

W. A. K. wrtes: What is the proper way to use sulphur for itch? You speak so often about using sulphur and not once have I read what is the proper way.

Reply.

There is no proper way to use sulphur for any of the itches not due to insects and other skin parasites. There are several ways for using it for the several itches due to parasites. About the best sulphur ointments are those commonly known as the Danish itch ointments. They are put out under different names by several pharmaceutical houses.

Walt Mason, Himself

Wiser Now.

WE once were flying high, with no depression nigh; we walked like kings in gorgeous things, bedazzling to the eye. We blew our chicken feed for things we didn't need, and to the marts with spendthrift hearts on paydays we'd proceed. We fell in every snare promoters might prepare; but we had scads to meet all fads, so little did we care. We blithely went in debt and haven't got out yet—but we would pay some future day, and square things up, you bet. The money grew on trees; we gathered it with ease, and blew it in with cheerful grin, and said, "Look pleasant, please." We've had our lesson now; we're chastened, we allow; of rolls bereft, old Grief has left deep furrows on each brow. We've had our lesson dire; we now wear cheap attire; and we're in luck if we've a buck to start the kitchen fire. Our fortunes teeter low, there is a dearth of dough, and we evolve a stern resolve to profit from our woe. In future we'll be wise, we won't be reckless guys; we'll dodge the traps of faking chaps, and we'll economize. But when this worst of slumps has hit the worst of dumps, I greatly fear we will uprear, and be the same old chumps. So quickly we'll forget the tragedy of debt, and all the care that grayed our hair and made us weep and fret.

Cabinet Members as Well as Governors Also Will Review Parade.

Ambassadors, ministers and their staffs will be in the reviewing stands for this year's Firemen's Labor Day parade, Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, parade marshal, has announced.

The parade committee also hopes to have in the stands several Cabinet members who are serving as honorary chairmen. They are Secretaries Woodin, Roper, Dern, Postmaster General Farley and Attorney General Cummings. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury L. W. Robert has also accepted an honorary chairmanship and has promised to review the parade.

Among the governors, Ritchie of Maryland, McAllister of Tennessee, and Moore of New Jersey, have stated they will try to be present.

Stands for the public will be arranged on either side of the reviewers and both sides of the street. These will go on sale shortly throughout the District, and in some volunteer companies in nearby Maryland and Virginia.

Elliott Roosevelt Looking for Work

Arrives With New Bride In Los Angeles to Live; Plans Indefinite.

Los Angeles, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Looking for a job and a home, Elliott Roosevelt and his second wife settled down in southern California today.

Mr. Roosevelt, second son of the President, said his future business plans were indefinite, but he and his wife intended to establish their residence here.

"As soon as we see to that," he remarked, "I will make a definite business connection, because I have a wife to support."

Family Life Told By Mrs. Roosevelt

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Folks who stand on their own feet and learn for themselves got a pat on the back tonight from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Speaking at Vassar College, the wife of the President discussed her views on family problems and particularly the rearing of children.

"I always wanted happiness for my five children," she said. "I have come to think that people grow more through suffering than anything else. The big people are the people who have learned to stand on their own feet, accept the results of what they do and learn for themselves."

Woman Gets Five Years In Blackmailing Barton

New York, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Mrs. Frances W. King today was sentenced to 5 to 10 years in prison for attempted blackmail of Bruce Barton, author and advertising executive. Judge Joseph E. Corrigan ordered her taken to the State prison for women at Bedford Hills.

A jury in general sessions court convicted Mrs. King of blackmail in attempting to obtain $50,000 from Barton under threat of publishing a novel which Barton claimed was a "scurrilous and vicious libel."

400 in Plant Held Up By 2 in Brooklyn

Brooklyn, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Fifteen minutes before an armored truck was due to carry receipts to the bank, two men with sawed-off shotguns held up the cashier of the Gold Seal Laundry today and escaped with $3,500. Four hundred employes were at work in the plant.

Santa Who Lost His Job Is 87—and Still Chuckling

Carl Herman Braatz—who for 11 years was as close to being Santa Claus as old Saint Nicholas himself—is 87 years old today.

"Life is just wonderful and Washington is so beautiful," he said as he discussed his 87 years of well-rounded living.

Braatz's whiskers once earned him the job of Santa for a downtown department store. The role lasted through the holiday season for more than a decade and thousands of Washington youngsters confided their Christmas expectations to Braatz.

But it seems that youth even ousts Santa Claus. A younger man was given the red suit and fame—and the youngster had to wear false whiskers, too, added Braatz.

Braatz was brought from Germany by U. S. Ambassador Bancroft in 1874. It was after Mr. Bancroft's death that he first became a Santa Claus.

Col. Todd, a native of St. Louis, who earned his title in the Intelligence Service in the World War, said today his figure of Christ is a composite type.

"A man of the land, a country preacher, the man in the street, something of everybody," he said.

Ivy at Last Grows At Scene of Tragedy

Columbia, Mo., Aug. 4 (A.P.).—One of the University of Missouri's famous traditions—that ivy would not grow on all six of the "columns"—is shattered. The columns, in Francis Quadrangle on the "Red Campus," are relics of the fire that destroyed the old administration building, and tradition had it that blood from a student killing in the early days splattered one column. Five of the columns have been ivy-draped for years but until this summer the sixth was bare.

International Bank Gold Holdings Rise

Basel, Switzerland, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—The Bank for International Settlements, which a few months ago had only a 25-cent gold piece as its sole gold holding, now has more than $1,000,000 in gold bars in its vaults.

The July statement today showed for the first time gold holdings, the amount being offset by corresponding liability to sight depositors.

Earmarked gold, held in custody for the account of central banks, was not included in the statement.

Rt. Rev. H. L. Burleson Buried in South Dakota

Sioux Fall, S. Dak., Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Funeral services for the Right Rev. Hugh L. Burleson, assistant to the presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church, were held today with prelates of the Northwest and State in attendance.

Bishop Burleson died Tuesday at Camp Remington, in the Black Hills, from angina pectoris. Interment was in Woodlawn Cemetery beside the body of his wife, who died 5 years ago.

Logan Pingree Co., Washington, New York avenue sanitary sewer, between Bladensburg road and the east side intercepter, $12,551.82; also the Twenty-third and G street replacement sewer, $5,494.67; R. D. Schlegel Co., Bethesda, Albermarle street sanitary sewer, $1,238.24.

District Waits On Contractor In Pay Dispute

New Complaints Declare Catalano Firm Refuses Back Wages.

No immediate action will be taken by the District Commissioners in connection with new wage complaints against the Catalano Construction Co., of Baltimore, which recently was adjudged guilty of violating the Bacon-Davis act.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride yesterday informed the Commissioners he had received new complaints that structural steel workers on he Phelps Vocational School are not paid the prevailing wage.

Bride also said bricklayers formerly employed on the school had complained to him that Catalano had told them he would not pay the back wages due them as the difference between the prevailing wage and what they actually received. The contractor said he had paid the subcontractor for the job and he indicated he consequently was not responsible.

The Commissioners said they would wait until Thursday before taking any further action, as the Baltimore contractor had been given ten days to make back-pay adjustments and to adopt the prevailing wage scale for all employes at work on the Phelps School.

Owners, Tenants Share Wheat Pay

Farm Administrators Explain Basis of Curtailing Acreage.

(Associated Press.)

Farm administrators explained yesterday that landlords and tenants planting wheat for harvest in 1934 would share in the payments for curtailing acreage to be made this fall under the voluntary domestic allotment plan.

They said allotments would be made for each farm and payments given on allotments for harvest next year. The benefit payment is in consideration of an agreement to curtail acreage planted this fall or next spring up to 20 per cent.

Administrators said that a tenant whose lease expires before planting this fall in the case of winter wheat, would not be paid a benefit for acreage curtailment on the farm he leaves. If he leases another farm and with his new landlord joins in an agreement to reduce the acreage there for harvest next year he will receive his share of the benefit payment covering the allotment for the new farm.

(Copyright, 1933, by The Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt yesterday was called upon to rescue plans of farm administrators to distribute $200,000,000 to farmers as benefits for agreements to curtail their wheat and cotton output.

A 58-year-old law has been interpreted as requiring, definitely, that when the Government makes payment to any party it must withhold sums due it. It would cause a portion of the payments to be offset by large sums which farmers scheduled for benefits now owe the Government.

Called upon for an opinion to clear the impasse, Attorney General Cummings has drafted an opinion, but referred it to the Persident.

Farmers owe $139,335,742 in seed, feed and crop production loans alone, most of it in default. Cotton and wheat farmers together represent a substantial majority of the debtors.

Jobless, He Goes Nude to Get Cell

Kansas City, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Five police cars with screaming sirens rushed to the spot. True to their information, they found a nudist, jauntily attired in a straw hat and a pair of shoes, smoking a cigar as he strolled along.

The police obtained wrapping paper and string from a grocery store, improvised a costume for their prisoner and hustled him off to headquarters.

There he said he was David Friesen, 37, of Boise, Idaho, out of employment. He had strolled about disrobed hoping to land in jail without the necessity of committing a more serious offense, he said.

He was dressed, fed and locked in a cell.

Homeless Explorer Is Divorced by Wife

New York, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—An explorer can not have a home, Dr. Herbert Spencer Dickey said today, and that, he added, is why his wife was granted a divorce in Dayton, Ohio.

"Mrs. Dickey is a marvelous woman, and is fond, as I suppose all women are, of home life," the South American explorer said.

"With a husband in my business, she naturally couldn't have it. And we agreed, in a perfectly friendly manner, that what could not be, could not be. That's all."

Dr. Dickey said he plans another exploration in the wilds of South America this fall.

Forest Army Camp Gets Water Pump

Waynesboro, Va., Aug. 4 (Spl.).—A gasoline pump sufficient to supply 1,000 gallons of water an hour to the Civilian Conservation Camp at Sand Spring, near this city, arrived yesterday and is now being installed, according to Lieut. Grayson Schmidt, camp commander. Heretofore it was necessary to carry water more than a quarter of a mile. The arrival of the pump was greeted with a lively round of cheering by the C. C. C. lads on water detail.

Crockery dinnerware has also arrived to replace the army mess kits. A hot water heater and a storage tank for hot water is now at the camp as is equipment for 16 showers. All of these things are now being installed, and a "new deal" with hot water and more comfortable living is expected to be in effect by the close of this week.

Veterans' Review Board Is Formed

First Body Named to Study Status of Claims Under Old Laws.

(Associated Press.)

The first of the Federal boards to review the claims of 150,000 former soldiers seeking a continuation of benefit payments that were eliminated by the economy law were announced yesterday by the Veterans' Administration.

They will deal with cases in eastern New York State, Illinois and Massachusetts. Veterans' Administrator Frank T. Hines said the duties of the members were "of the greatest importance both to the veterans whose claims will be reviewed and to the Government."

Other boards will be established as rapidly as possible to handle the claims of veterans whose disabilities under old laws were presumed to have originated in service and will decide whether that presumption should be granted.

Each board will have five members, three appointed by the President and two from the Veterans' Administration.

Seattle, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—What becomes of a little boy who, at the age of 4, is known as the smoker of big black cigars? Freddie Riggs, now 9, is the boy, and today he was found playing cowboy.

But cigars find no favor with the boy who seemingly enjoyed them five years ago.

"They taste rotten," he said, explaining he doesn't like to smoke any more.

Silver Parley Held Benefit to Trade

Steady Increase in Price Forecast by Expert on Return Home.

New York, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Edward Bruce, silver expert at the London economic conference, returned to America today aboard the liner Berengaria and said the benefits accruing to silver at the parley was worth many weeks' work of the delegates.

"Silver will be returned to normal demands," Bruce said, "and as a result of the conference decisions on silver, our trade relations with the Orient will immediately be improved. While there has been speculation in silver as a result of the work of the conference, I believe there will be a steady rise in the price."

Bruce said he and Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, "both believe that the destiny of America is in the Orient and the return of silver as a medium of world exchange will be of great benefit to the Pacific Coast."

Fan Dancer Goes To Jail in Chicago

A trio of police critics sat in the audience to view the act, which had elicited orders from Mayor E. J. Kelly for dancers at the Century of Progress Fair — Sally's previous stand—to wear clothes. The officers took her to the station.

Her arraignment was set for tomorrow, so Sally hustled back to the theater. Then she replied with a superior court suit to enjoin city and county authorities from interfering with her dance.

ChurchGroup's Vote on Peace Is Laid to Reds

Board Refuses to Accept Resolution Adopted by Young People.

Members of Le Rendezvous Society of the National City Christian Church are in favor of peace, but the church board fears that Communists have influenced their votes. The board has refused to approve peace resolutions passed by the society.

These resolutions read, in part: "We favor a course in peace in our Sunday School; a statement by our congregation opposing compulsory military training; a clear statement by our church board condemning war as a method of settling international diaagreements; sermons from our pulpit exposing war propaganda and preaching peace. * * * We oppose having our pastor take part in the promotion of any military activities, having officers of our church take part in the promotion of any military activities, excepting humane activities."

One board member declared he would withdraw from the church if the resolution were passed. Another suggested that the board look in on the activities of societies in the church, "to prevent Communists from influencing our young people."

Officers of the society said the statements originated within the society and were approved by a committee before they were adopted after a four weeks' discussion.

Gov. Olson Urges Eagles Back NRA

Cleveland, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota told the convention of the Fraternal Order of Eagles today that the NRA plan is an attempt to "bring about a more equitable distribution of profit through regulation of our capitalistic system," and should be backed to the limit by the lodge.

"Minnesota will not permit a violator of the President's code even to bid on a State project," Olson told the delegates. "They don't deserve business and they won't get it from us."

"Earl" Weds

"Fantastic," Say British Consular Aids of Claim by Illinoisan.

Los Angeles, Aug. 4 (A).—An Illinois carriage maker's grandson, Arthur Hallam Henry, 37, who, despite the disbelief of British consular authorities, maintains he is the Earl of Edinburg, announced today he and Mrs. Lillian Pennell, 24, of Van Wert, Ohio, were married here yesterday.

Henry, giving a Los Angeles address, filed Thursday an intention to marry Mrs. Pennell.

The consular authorities said the last Duke of Edinburg was given the title by his mother, Queen Victoria. He was Prince Albert, the queen's fourth son. Prince Albert was born in 1844 and did in England without issue of record in 1900. In 1874 he and Princess Maria Alexandovna, daughter of Alexander II, Emperor of Russia, were united in marriage.

His claim to the earlship was called "fantastic" by the consular officials. They said the Earl of Edinburg had been raised to a duke many generations ago and that at the present time the title rests with King George.

Holdup Slayer Is Ordered to Maniac's Ward

Suffering from a mental disease known to alienists as "prison psychosis," Fewell Workman, colored, one of four men convicted of the slaying of Elner B. Ecklund, yesterday was ordered committed to Howard Hall, ward for the criminally insane at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

A sentence of life imprisonment was passed upon Workman after he and Claude Myers, also colored, and Albert Cash and Everette Lee Blackwell were convicted of slaying Ecklund in an attempt to rob him.

Ecklund was paymaster of a painting concern engaged in the House Office Building. As he emerged from his office with the pay roll, he was held up and shot to death. The four bandits were captured the next day. All were convicted of second-degree murder.

Workman showed signs of insanity soon after he was sent to prison, physicians said.

George Arliss Captures Fire Of Great Poet

Adds Voltaire to Gallery of Portraits at Earle; The Other Bills.

"VOLTAIRE." Warner Brothers picturization of a novel by George and E. Lawrence Dudley, adapted to the screen by Paul Green and Maude T. Howell, starring George Arliss, with Doris Kenyon, Reginald Owen, Margaret Lindsay, Alan Mowbray and Murray Kinnell. Directed by John G. Adolfi. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By Nelson B. Bell.

To bring his profound intellectuality within the mental comprehension of the average devotee of a casual and romantic cinema, and to translate his intense humanitarianism into action that will strike a responsive chord in the heart of the modern victim of a social and an economic depression, the character of Voltaire, poet, philosopher and champion of the common people, has here been translated into terms of colorful but superficial drama, hardly in consonance either with his time or his personality.

"Voltaire" sacrifices something of the dignity and thoughtfully fashioned incident it should possess to an imagined need of flippant persiflage and a purely fictional willingness on the part of a world figure to make servitors, political underlings and royal scapegoats the instruments of his successful game of battledore and shuttlecock with a profligate and shallow crown.

The dramatic implements placed at George Arliss' disposal in this vehicle, in other words, seem rather the products of expediency than of a penetrating insight either into the man or the period in which he lived and exercised so prodigious an influence over the lives of men.

For the purposes of the present plot, the incident of Citizen Calas has been utilized as the play's motivation. Calas, we are led to believe by a record of the Court of Louis XV of France in the year 1762—when Voltaire was 68—was convicted on a trumped-up charge of tax evasion and defrauding the Crown after the most exquisite tortures, put to death and his estates confiscated.

Without any personal acquaintanceship with the man, Voltaire made his cause his own and wrote a play around the case in which the daughter, Nanette Calas, was set up as the symbol of the French court's indifference to the plight of the common people.

Through the influence of Mme. de Pompadour, mistress of Louis XV and ardent friend of Voltaire, the king views a performance at Versailles and sends his prime minister to arrest Voltaire on a charge of seditious writing.

The outcome of this tour de force furnishes the climax not only of the play within the play, but in the political life of the man whose views bore a direct and vital relation to the fomentation of the French Revolution and the eventual overthrow of the monarchial form of government.

The movement of these events is swift, interesting and almost too logical for most convincing effect. There is no such thing as failure for any scheme that Voltaire puts afoot in this comedy-romance of intrigue, youthful love and final justice. So flawlessly are the dramatic developments ordered that they become less a means of achieving realism than a superlative example of how perfectly threatricalism can be contrived.

Mr. Arliss' performance is marked by that facile play of feature, that mobility of mood and that superb command of all the niceties of acting that have characterized so many of his finest impersonations. His is an uncanny knack of harmonizing method with motive, to attain an illuminating and infallible exposition of the author's purpose. This is an endowment that finds particularly free play in "Voltaire."

In the intelligence and skill of his supporting cast Mr. Arliss also is especially blessed. Doris Kenyon has never appeared so ravishingly beautiful as in the role of Madame de Pompadour, and Reginald Owen is no less deft in his portrayal of Louis XV. Alan Mowbray is a poised and sinister Count de Sarnac and romantic charm is given the action by the presence in the cast of Margaret Lindsay and Murray Kinnell, as Nanette Calas and Emile, her lover.

On the stage, Nick Lucas, in splendid voice and plucking his guitar with undiminished virtuosity, scores emphatically in the headline spot. He is preceded by Jack Gwynne, a sleight-of-hand artist of no mean attainment, and Don Alfonso Zelaya, pianist-comedian, who yesterday afternoon supplanted Boice and Marsh, two young women whose material left something to be desired on the side of decorum. The vaudeville portion of the entertainment is closed by Ralph Olsen and Co., in a revue of pretentious dimensions.

Charles Judels and Vanessi in "The Double-Crossing of Columbus," a comic gem, the Universal News, with Graham McNamee, and Freddie Clark's appropriate "Robespiere" overture complete a bill of extraordinary substance and worthy intent.

Loew's Fox

"MIDNIGHT CLUB." Paramount picturization of the story by E. Phillips Oppenheim, adapted to the screen by Seton I. Miller and Leslie Charteris, featuring George Raft, Clive Brook, Alison Skipworth and Helen Vinson, with Sir Guy Standing, Alan Mowbray Ferdinand Gottschalk and Billy Bevan. Directed by Alexander Hall and George Somnes. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

A silken melodrama, replete with sliding panels, trick doors, subterranean passages, signaling lights, secret apartments and populated by a full complement of doubles for all the principal personages among the powers that prey, unless you watch closely, is apt to be just a wee bit baffling in its major ramifications. It is so with "Midnight Club," Paramount's fabulous rendering in lights and shadows on a silver sheet of one of the imaginative and romantic Mr. E. Phillips Oppenheim's most opulent fictions.

"Midnight Club" is a story of criminality refined almost to the point where it is too good to be true. If any band of jewel thieves could afford to equip themselves with all of the precautionary flubdub that characterizes the movement of this vivid tale of love and plunder, they would not need to steal. They already would be millionaires.

However, since Mr. Oppenheim and Paramount have seen fit to harness their fable with all of the predatory garnature that might be expected in an "Arabian Nights" tale, there is nothing to do but take it and like it.

And that is precisely what a capacity audience did at Loew's Fox yesterday afternoon. They not only liked George Raft's nervy exploits as a detective—when you think all along during the first of the picture that he is one of the minor crooks—Miss Vinson's surrender to his antagonistic enterprises and Clive Brook's lordly gesture in behalf of beauty in distress, but they practically as one heaved a heavy sigh when Sir Guy Standing came out on top of the gang he had been pursuing for three years.

That, of course, was all very elegant, but one rather naturally would have expected them to be for the underdogs, even if they were all dolled up in full evening regalia and all bogged down with a million dollars' worth of stolen gems. But nothing runs true to form in "Midnight Girl." That is what makes it one of the most unusual of detective stories and one you will want to see. If you could foresee its climax and denouement it wouldn't be worth a dime a dozen.

With such a cast it is hardly conceivable that "Midnight Club" could be other than well acted. Well, it isn't other than that—although "acting" has no more than a tenth as much to do with the piece as situations have.

The stage bill is provided by a large company of saddle-colored specialists from Harlem who elicited a greater volume of acclaim at yesterday's first performance than has been heard in a Washington theater in recent years. Every act was greeted with a salvo of applause that sounded like the crashing of a thundering surf on a rock-bound coast equipped with amplifiers and loudspeakers to make the roar seem greater.

The two outstanding contributions to all this enthusiasm, of course, were made by the Mills Brothers, in a typical interval of song and vocal instrumental imitations, and Don Redman and His Band. The Mills Brothers need no description. Don Redman whips out tunes that run a little to mere noise now and again, but no one can accuse of him of aping anybody else's style. His is an exclusive racket.

There are twelve sepia line-girls who bob in and out from time to time in a series of constantly diminishing costumes and Myra Johnson lets go a few songs that catapulted the customers right out of their pews yesterday. Harlan Lattimore did no less with his microphoning of "Stormy Weather."

Pete, Peaches and Duke danced their way into instant favor and a couple of low-comedy clowns had them howling with their grotesquery. All these folks have brought Harlem right down to Washington and plunked it in your lap!

The Fox Movietone News, a Toonerville comedy, "Mickey's Big Broadcast," and an Eesop Fable round out a program that is loaded with dynamite. N. B. B.

"ANOTHER LANGUAGE." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the play by Rose Franken; costarring Helen Hayes and Robert Montgomery, with Louise Closser Hale, John Beal and Henry Travers. Directed by Edward H. Griffith. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Private lives have not been entirely foreign to the motion picture, nor have stark homely stories, whose greatest asset has been the characterizations, been total strangers to the silver sheet, but there have been few indeed that have combined these various attributes into such telling drama as "Another Language."

This is the story that might easily have been enacted behind "Street Scene," for Rose Franken's play deals with much the same type of people. But where the Rice opus considered the interrelations of one family to another, here is depicted the home and marital ties within one family circle.

As a story, "Another Language" might be passed up with profit, but as a study of the direct and indirect stifling of any member's unusual endowments, the Franken play has no equal on the screen. Especially de the creative and artistic tendencies fall before the onslaughts of a mother whose life interest is centered on herself, with her boys and their families coming close seconds.

It might appear a laudable motif, yet the complete domination of the mother drags the more talented and aspiring members of the family down to a state of painful mediocrity. Rebellion, however, sets in and at least three of the family group break their fetters and sally forth—that "another language" which they speak finally making itself heard.

The tendency to garrulity (but some families are like that) is mitigated by the excellent work of Helen Hayes, who acts as the primer for the climatic detonation. With Robert Montgomery playing opposite her, as the connection to a matriarchial family, Miss Hayes determines to continue the development of her penchant for sculpturing, at the same time fostering in Nephew Jerry, played by John Beal (a member of the original stage company), a similar artistic bent.

Naturally, "Mom" considers this an unwarranted incursion into her private domain, and forthwith Louise Closser Hale (whose recent death was a distinct loss to the cinema) proceeds to have one tantrum after another—but to no avail.

If the cinema has at times suffered from being too all-seeing and all-telling, "Another Language" shows a tendency toward the other extreme. The lack of any definite introduction to the temperments of the principal couple is a severe handicap, and it is only as the picture progresses that any light—and that is but little—is shed upon this important factor in motivation. Then, a three-year lapse in time is not explained until after the progress of the narrative is reduced to confusion.

"Old King Cole," a Technicolor Silly Symphony, takes the ace spot among the short subjects, revealing a multitude of Mother Goose characters at his highness' grand party. Andy Clyde, assisted by Billy Bevan and Dorothy Christie, are seen in "The Big Squeal," a comedy of hog caller from Kansas. A release of the Metrotone News completes the roster of attractions.

Metropolitan

"SHE DONE HIM WRONG." Paramount picturization of Mae West's play, "Diamond Lil," starring Mae West, with Cary Grant, Owen Moore, Noah Beery and David Landeau. Directed by Lowell Sherman. Reviewed, second return engagement, by W. A. Whitney.

If there should be any doubt about the uncertainty of the motion picture industry as a means of satisfying the vagaries of a temperamental public, then "She Done Him Wrong" should dispel it once and for all.

After having played a normal run, made the circuit of the neighborhood theaters, and returned for another try at F street, this picture comes yet again for a third week along the main stem.

So palpably dated a picture, and one so perfectly and so deliberately concocted to lure patrons for purposes other than strict entertainment, it is amazing that this one should have even emerged from Hollywood, let alone created any especial furore.

Yet that very thing has happened. True, the Gay Nineties are most faithfully represented, together with a story that is in itself ageless, but that seems scant reason for the unparalleled success of the cinematized "Diamond Lil."

Perhaps when you have seen the picture you can answer the questions raised in your correspondent's mind. But whether or no, you must, for your own edification, "come up and see me some time."

New short subjects surround this screening, the principal of which is Ruth Etting, assisted by Roy Atwell, Alder and Bradford and Tony Sarg's marionets, in "Crashing the Gate," by far Miss Etting's most charmingly presented song recital, with embellishments.

Beer Sale in Elkins On Sundays Legalized

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 4 (Spl.). Despite protests from the Ministerial Association, beer will be sold at Elkins on Sundays hereafter.

The City Council last night adopted an amendment to its beer ordinance authorizing sale of the 3.2 beverage on Sundays. Previously the ordinance had prohibited such sale. The Rev. S. B. Hart, Methodist Episcopal pastor, appeared before the council in behalf of the Ministerial Union and vigorously opposed the amendment.

4,000 Enjoy Navy Band's Music Fete

Offering a program of popular classics, the United States Navy Band, assisted by Clara Moran Bernheimer, soprano, presented its twice-postponed summer festival concert last night at the Sylvan Theater before an audience of 4,000.

The joy of expectancy was equaled by the thrill of performance as the band, conducted by Lieut. Charles Benter, launched into Rimsky-Korsakow's "Festival at Bagdad," the fourth movement of his "Scheherazade," which was followed by Orem's rhapsody, "The American Indian."

Clara Moran Bernheimer offered for her part of the program "Il Bacio" (Arditi) and "Liebestraum" (Liszt). The instrumental solo was given by Musician Birley Gardner, presenting a cornet rendition of "Fantasy de Mandolinita" (Bellstedt).

The overture from Wagner's "Tannhauser," Lizst's "Second Hungarian Rhapsody," Kreisler's "Tambourin Chinois," and Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in C Sharp Minor," were but "among those present" in comparison with the masterful playing of the immortal "Sextette" from Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor," by Musicians G. de Georgia, J. Peck, C. Edwards, J. Manganaro, J. Walker, and H. Hurd.

D. C. Girls Vie Next Week for Place in Film

One Contestant a Day Will Be Picked for Final Competition.

Details of the search are published daily in The Washington Post, and the final selection, which will be made on the stage of Loew's Fox, likewise will be announced by The Post.

No entries and no rules mark this as one of the easiest and fairest of such cinema opportunities for local girls. From Monday until August 13 scouts from Paramount studios will walk the decks of Wilson Line boats four times a day for each cruise. One girl will be selected each day from each trip the boat makes.

No one knows what type of girl will strike the fancy of the talent scouts. Beauty is not the only essential. Personality must be included in the girl's make-up. Also she must be the kind of girl who will fit into the picture "Eight Girls in a Boat."

The final selection will be made on the stage of Loew's Fox on Monday evening, August 14, where the winner will be picked from the entire group by a representative from Paramount studios, The Washington Post and the theater.

Remember, no girl will be overlooked. Someone will be chosen on every trip the boat makes, and the one to be finally selected will be sent to Hollywood, with all expenses paid, given a job at $50 a week in "Eight Girls in a Boat," and a chance for movie fame.

Eight girls will be selected from eight American cities. Washington is one of them.

Chapman, Nat Rookie, Hurls Against Red Sox Today in Series Finale

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

THERE comes to hand the latest betting odds on the big league pennant races from Tom Kearny, the famed St. Louis bookmaker who will give you a quotation on anything ranging from odds on the Mississippi to flood its banks tomorrow morning to the odds on Hitler to beat Mussolini in love sets.

Mr. Kearney's message to Washington fans brings no comforting tidings. For the Yankees are still the favorites to beat the Nats for the championship despite Washington's 3-game lead, in the estimation of Kearny, who will lay you the following on both big league races:

American League.

	1	2	3
New York	4 to 5	out	out
Washington	1 to 1	out	out
Philadelphia	6 to 1	3 to 2	out
Detroit	20 to 1	5 to 1	2 to 1
Cleveland	30 to 1	6 to 1	2 to 1
Chicago	40 to 1	8 to 1	3 to 1
Boston	50 to 1	10 to 1	5 to 1
St. Louis	200 to 1	100 to 1	40 to 1

National League.

Giants	4 to 5	1 to 4	out
Pirates	2 to 2	1 to 2	out
Chicago	7 to 2	7 to 10	out
Cardinals	6 to 1	2 to 1	3 to 5
Boston	15 to 1	4 to 1	3 to 2
Phillies	40 to 1	10 to 1	4 to 1
Brooklyn	40 to 1	10 to 1	4 to 1
Cincinnati	40 to 1	10 to 1	4 to 1

A Promotorial War.

Washington is in a fair way toward viewing a promotorial war between the boxing interests. Not content with the spoils of eight months' activity as the promoter at Portner's Arena, Mons. Frankie Mann is moving in on the outdoor season with a card of bouts at Fort Washington.

Mann's Fort Washington matches are scheduled for Monday night, exactly one night in advance of the card of Promoter Fatty Cornell at Laurell. Washington is a good fight town, but it's not good for two fight cards a week, and somebody, Mann or Cornell, is going to be the loser.

Cornell has found a willing ally in the Maryland State Boxing Commission, which has already sought official intervention to stop the bouts at the fort on the grounds that civil authorities in the fort section are opposed to boxing. There's another reason, the State Commission doesn't get its 10 per cent cut on fights held at military reservations.

Knight and Godwin.

The only bout in prospects hereabouts that is calculated to work local fans into a lather of anticipation is a Joe Knight-Bob Godwin affair that the Laurel people are trying to foment.

The difficulty is that Godwin is showing no alacrity to meet Knight again. They fought all over the South with Knight usually the winner, but Godwin gained the decision in their last meeting in Florida. But Godwin still has a knockout at Knight's hands to erase Knight, in Washington for his fight with Joe Banovic on Tuesday, was asked how come he lost to Godwin after beating the Florida light-heavyweight so regularly. Whereupon he set a new free-style record for frankness in boxers by saying: "I dunno. He just beat me that's all. He was a better man that night."

Runs, Hits and Errors.

Equipoise will have earned more than $300,000 if he wins at Saratoga today . . . a thrifty steed, perhaps . . . Walter Hagen averages 64 1-3 strokes in 3 rounds on Scottish links . . . the 1-3 stroke is just an old Scotch custom . . . in cutting down the player limit from 25 to 23 last winter, the magnates put money in the pennant winners' pockets . . . not so many world series shares to split up for the lucky American League team . . . Bill McAfee will be remembered if the Nats get a share of the series spoils . . . in 1925, the Nats voted Scout Joe Engel a gold watch as his share . . . Engel had brought up two of the club's most valuable players to the big leagues . . . he all but threw the watch in their faces and thanked them deeply for their gratitude.

Bib Falk Is Signed As Boston Sox Scout

Boston, Aug. 4 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox management tonight announced the sending of Louis Leggett, a catcher, to Buffalo on option. Leggett was taken up from the International League several weeks ago when Rick Ferrell, the Sox' first-string catcher, became ill.

The appointment of Bib Falk, former White Sox outfielder, to the Red scouting staff was also announced.

Maryland Body Might Block Fort Fights

EFFORTS of Fort Washington officials to revive boxing at the staid old Army reservation after a lapse of a year, may be thwarted by the Maryland State Boxing Commission, it was learned yesterday. Joseph N. Kelly, secretary of the commission, has filed a protest with Gen. Paul Malone, commanding officer of the Third Corps Area, regarding the promotion of matches at the Fort.

Simultaneously, it was learned that C. E. Cornell, Twin City Arena promoter, also has lodged a protest with Gen. Malone. The first show at Fort Washington is scheduled Monday night. Twin City's weekly show is listed Tuesday night.

Efforts Have Been Futile.

Both protests are based on an Army regulation forbidding the holding of professional prize fights on Federal property in territory where it is banned by civil law. Fort Washington is located in Prince Georges County, Md., where efforts to obtain permission for boxing have been futile.

Efforts to have the sport banned at Fort Washington come on the eve of one of the most important fights staged at Twin City Arena this year, Joe Knight vs. Joe Banovic. Promoter Frankie Mann has booked Billy Strickler and Ken Overlin, middleweight champion of the United States Navy, in the feature bout at the Government camp.

Gen. Malone has taken the matter under advisement and a quick decision is expected in the case.

Equipoise Will Seek $300,000 Mark Today

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 4 (AP).—C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, champion of the Nation's handicap horses, will seek to boost his earnings past the $300,000 mark in the thirty-first running of the Saratoga Handicap tomorrow.

The 5-year-old son of Pennant—Swinging will pack the crushing impost of 142 pounds for the mile and one-quarter journey and concede from 19 to 40 pounds to seven rivals.

Hagen Averages 64 1-3 On 3 Scotland Links

Inverness, Scotland, Aug. 4 (AP).—Reaching the "farthest north" of any barnstorming expedition of American professional golfers ever to invade the British Isles, Walter Hagen, veteran Ryder Cup captain, today smashed the record for the Inverness course with a 32—32—64 while Denny Shute, new British open champion, carded 35—35—70.

Hagen has left his flag flying high in the Highlands of Scotland's northernmost tip with three course records on his banner in three successive days. Yesterday he shot a 65 at Pitlochry and Wednesday he banged out a 64 at Kingussie.

Homers Help Braves Beat Dodgers Twice

Boston, Aug. 4 (AP).—Fine pitching by Ben Cantwell and Bob Smith, and home runs by Randy Moore and Wally Berger enabled the Braves to take both games of a double-header from the Brooklyn Dodgers today, 4 to 1 and 3 to 0.

Cantwell gave only seven hits in the opener, winning his fourteenth victory of the season. Moore hit his circuit drive in the first inning, with one on, to start a three-run rally that won the game. Smith, making his first start for Boston since he was purchased from the Cincinnati Reds, blanked the Dodgers with four singles. Berger's homer, his twentieth of the season, was the final run off Hollis Thurston in the nightcap.

U. S. Gets 3-0 Wightman Cup Lead

Miss Jacobs Also Wins; Both Then Team to Score in Doubles.

By Alan Gould.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 4 (AP).—The discouraging thought that there was no real substitute for Helen Wills Moody in women's international tennis competition was completely dissipated this afternoon as diminutive 20-year-old Sarah Palfrey, of Boston, stepped into the breach on short notice and featured a clean sweep for the United States over Great Britain in the first day's play for the Wightman Cup.

Far from faltering in the slightest under the additional responsibility suddenly thrust upon her by the illness of Mrs. Moody, who was confined to her hotel with a sprained back, little Miss Palfrey played superb tennis and shared the honors with Helen Jacobs, the American national champion, in three decisive victories over one of the strongest British teams ever sent to the United States.

Beats Margaret Scriven.

Hitting with a sharpness and power that belied her 109 pounds, Miss Palfrey rose to the emergency as a singles substitute by trouncing the sensational English left-hander, Margaret (Peggy) Scriven, 6—3, 6—1 and came back an hour later with Miss Jacobs to dominate a straight-set doubles conquest over Dorothy Round and Mary Heeley, 6—4, 6—2.

Miss Jacobs had begun the cup defense victoriously by taking the measure of the British No. 1 player, Miss Round, 6—4, 6—2, so that the United States, with a 3-0 margin, needed only one more victory in the four matches scheduled tomorrow to keep the trophy.

These developments, as decisive as they were unexpected for the benefit of a crowd of 3,000 tennis followers, put the Americans in a commanding position, regardless of whether Mrs. Moody is able to return to competition.

A decision is to be reached tomorrow morning as to whether Mrs. Moody's condition, the result of a former but not serious injury to her back, will permit her to engage Miss Round in the feature singles match or pair with Alice Marble, San Francisco girl, in the doubles. If not, Miss Palfrey will continue as a substitute.

Miss Marble Also Ill.

Miss Marble also was under a physician's care today, following several spells of dizziness, and her participation in the concluding matches likewise was uncertain. She was scheduled to play in the singles against Betty Nuthall, long a British favorite of American tennis galleries, while Miss Jacobs was paired in the remaining singles contest with Miss Scriven.

Seldom has even the great Mrs. Moody been any steadier or more severe, with either forehand or backhand drives, volleys or smashes, than was Miss Palfrey. The slim Boston girl, once she gained complete confidence in her sweeping shots, simply blasted Miss Scriven off the courts and was equally as decisive at every stage of the doubles match.

Miss Jacobs did a workmanlike, effective job in disposing of Miss Round, the girl who gained fame by taking a set from Mrs. Moody at Wimbledon. The champion, once she grew confident of her backhand, offset the weakness of her service by the accuracy of her chop-strokes.

Zaharias and Garibaldi Booked for Mat Feature

A match between two of the roughest mat workers known to local fandom has been signed by Promoter Joe Turner to headline his wrestling card Thursday. Both George Zaharias and Gino Garibaldi have displayed their pugnacity here many times this year, but not together. The usual supporting features will be announced later.

Score Triple Triumph for U. S. Against British

Solely through the efforts of Helen Jacobs (left), California's clever miss, and Sarah Palfrey (below), of Boston, the United States team gained a 3-0 lead over the British in the Wightman Cup matches yesterday. The two girls won each of their singles tests and teamed to beat the British doubles team.

Pirates Defeat Cards, 5 to 4, In Ninth

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 4 (AP).—Too many errors spoiled Burleigh Grimes' first pitching start for St. Louis today, and the Pittsburgh Pirates came through with a ninth-inning run to beat the Cards, 5 to 4, evening the four-game series.

Thirteen rifle and four pistol matches are scheduled in the .30 caliber rifle and pistol tournament for the Middle Atlantic States championships and National Rifle Association trophies. The tournament will be held on the Marine Corps ranges at Quantico, Va., over the four-day period from August 16 through August 19.

Among competitors at the shoot, which is one of the most important of the N. R. A. trophy championship events, will be teams and individual shooters of the Marines, Coast Guard, nearby Army posts, District of Columbia, Virginia and Maryland National Guard organizations and some civilian marksmen.

Giants Get 23 Hits, Down Phillies, 18-1

Philadelphia, Aug. 4 (AP).—The New York Giants, listed as "hitless wonders" who were holding the National League lead on pitching strength alone a couple of weeks ago, went on another batting spree today and duplicated their season's high scoring mark by defeating the Phils, 18 to 1.

The Giants equaled the score of Wednesday's second game and made 23 hits, one below the mark set in that contest. After smacking Flint Rhem all around the lot in the first seven innings, they blasted him out with nine runs in the eighth and finished off with two tallies off Ad Liska in the ninth.

Greenberg Drives in All of Victors' Markers With Homer and Single.

Detroit, Aug. 4 (AP).—Hank Greenberg, big first baseman, got a home run in the second inning and a long single in the eleventh to bat in all the runs by which Detroit defeated Chicago, 3 to 2, today in an overtime contest. The game was the only one scheduled in the American League.

Vic Sorrel had much the better of Ted Lyons in the pitching argument, the Sox getting only six hits to ten for the Tigers.

Greenberg's single in the eleventh, that broke the deadlock, came after Gehringer had singled, only to be forced by Stone, and Doljack had singled, Stone stopping at second.

Judge Faces Old Mates At First

A's Wins Over Yankees and Boston's Relapse Mark Week's Play.

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post).

THE slightly-frayed Red Sox from Boston, who are week-ending in town, will meet the Nats this afternoon when Griffith Stadium opens again for business with a shrewd manipulation of talent calculated to lure an abnormal gathering of customers.

Owner Griffith, with an eye to the curiosity of local fandom, announces that he has it straight from Manager Joe Cronin that none other than Ed (Butch) Chapman, the rookie from Rochester, will make his bow in the big leagues today in the final game of the series with the Sox. Chapman came to the Nats as a pitcher.

Boston has fallen into the spirit of the pre-game advertising with the announcement that none other than Joseph Ignatius Judge, for 17 years a landmark at first base in Washington regalia, will attend to the first basing for his new affiliates, the Red Sox. Thus, the double-barreled lure.

Nats Hold Three-Game Lead.

The Nats' league lead, which again has assumed healthy three-game proportions, survived yesterday's open date in the schedule with no ill effects, inasmuch as the Yankees also were idle up in the Bronx. Today, while the Nats are battling the new Yawkeys the New Yawks will engage the Athletics again.

The week's developments in the pennant race have knocked the proverbial dope bucket into a cocked hat, or its equivalent. The downtrodden A's were supposed to be so much pennant fodder for the Yankees, who had polished off the Nats in two straight games, while the up-and-coming Red Sox loomed as a distinct threat to Washington.

But it seems that anything can happen in baseball. The Athletics, who had dropped three straight to the Red Sox, suddenly went very athletic and knocked the Yankees off twice, while the revivified Red Sox took it quite calmly on the chin from the Nats in their two games thus far. Which accounts for the fact that the Nats expanded their league lead from one to three games.

Gambles on Chapman.

Cronin intends to discover with no more ado how much help Chapman is to be to the Nats in the stretch drive for the flag. He also has available to pitch Bobby Burke and Monte Weaver, renowned nemeses of the Boston club, but Cronin's mind is made up on the assignment of Chapman this afternoon.

Boston will be making its strongest bid of the series today if the Sox, as is believed, start George Pipgras, the former Yankee, who is pitching better for Boston than he ever pitched in his recent years for the Yanks.

The presence of the right-handed Pipgras may or may not mean that Dave Harris, the slugging hero of the last three games, will return to his splintery seat on the bench. Despite his protestations to the contrary, Harris is no 400 hitter against right-handed pitching and Cronin is expected to send Manush, Schulte and Goslin to the outfield posts.

Shields to Meet Parker for Net Crown

Both Grant and Wood Lose in Three-Set Matches at Southampton.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 4 (AP).—Big Frank Shields, of New York, and Frankie Parker, 17-year-old holder of the national clay courts title, swept into the final round of singles of the Meadow Club's forty-third annual invitation tennis tournament today.

Shields, bidding for his third tournament crown in as many weeks, blasted the Southern giant killer, Bryan M. Grant, of Atlanta, from the courts in the semifinals, 6—0, 6—3, 6—2, while Parker, finding himself more and more at home on grass, eliminated the defending titleholder and top seeded player, Sidney B. Wood, of New York, 6—4, 6—4, 6—4.

Shields Is Favorite.

Shields, ranking No. 5 nationally, and Parker, No. 12, will clash tomorrow for the crown Wood relinquished. Shields, whose sudden return to top form has given him the Crescent-Hamilton and Seabright championships in succession, will rule the favorite, although Flashing some of the finest backhand shots of the season, Parker never gave the defending champion a real chance to get started. The New Yorker apparently under-rated his rival at the start and when he did open up he found all his efforts to stop the youngster's sensational drive in vain.

Shields was even more impressive against Grant. The 5-foot 4-inch Atlantan had furnished the tournament with its biggest upset when he eliminated Gregory S. Mangin, of Newark, national indoor champion and third seeded player, in the quarter finals yesterday but he had no more luck today with Shields than he had in the semifinals at Seabright last week.

Wood and Lott Advance.

Wood and George M. Lott, of Chicago, reached the doubles finals along with Parker and Shields.

Wood and Lott upset the defending champions, Berkeley Bell, of New York, and Mangin after five hard sets, 6—8, 2—6, 6—4, 6—1, 6—4, while Shields and Parker downed Grant and Eddie Jacobs, of Baltimore, 6—3, 3—6, 10—8, 6—2.

The doubles final also will be played tomorrow.

Steinberg, Wrestler, Has Blood Poisoning

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 4 (AP).—Gus Steinberg, 30-year-old light-heavyweight wrestler of Woukon, Iowa, today was in a critical condition from blood poisoning.

Steinburg wrestled Stanley Buersch, Australian, here Monday night, during which a small pimple on his face was bruised. He was taken to a hospital yesterday for treatment and then returned to his hotel room. His condition became worse today and he again was removed to a hospital, where physicians pronounced his ailment blood poisoning.

Mrs. Steinburg was reported en route here from Woukon.

Westrope Rides Royal Blunder to Four-Length Victory in Hawthorne Feature

Audley Horse Pays $10.88 In Mutuels

CHICAGO, Aug 4 (AP).—Galloping into the lead at the stretch turn, Royal Blunder, from the Audley Farm stables, scored an easy victory today in the top event at Hawthorne, the Berwyn Purse.

Mountain Elk dominated the 6½ furlongs event until Jack Westrope let the 3-year-old son of Bright Knot—Ballet Dancer out. He easily pulled away to a 4-length lead over Mountain Elk, with Hernando saving the short end of the purse.

Running over a slow track, Royal Blunder's time was 1:20 3-5, and as an outsider in the wagering, paid $10.88 in the $2 mutuels.

How High Is Winner.

Saratoga Race Track, N. Y., Aug. 4 (AP).—The thirty-first running of the Seneca Claiming Stakes was the outstanding attraction today. George D. Widener's Sation, winner of four straight before he was defeated by Good Advice in his last start at Aqueduct, was an 8-to-5 favorite, but he failed to give the talent the relief they were looking for. Mrs. T. J. Lewis' How High, a 15-to-1 chance, proved the best 3-year-old in the lot.

How High broke next to last in the big field and to win he had to perform like anything but the outsider he was. Frank Horn did not get panicky, but improved his mount's position on the outside, clear of interference. Hasti Past, meanwhile, was having a hard time holding the lead over Cattail and Character. He drew into a length advantage in the stretch, apparently shaking off his field, but How High, charging after the leader with a cyclonic rush, wore him down and won going away. Cattail held on fairly well. Sation never could get nearer than fourth and fininshed a laboring fifth on the inside.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

MISS OLGA ELKOURI, Buffalo typist, has developed her typing ability to a point where copying is almost a mechanical operation, little depending on mental concentration. Miss Elkouri can sing or carry on a conversation while typing—and without errors—matter entirely foreign to her song or conversation.

Strange as it seems, she can even talk or sing in a different language from that she is using on the typewriter. For example, she finds it not difficult to sing a song in German, Spanish, even Arabic, while typing off an ordinary business letter. On occasion she also sings a song while at the same time, in rhythmic accompaniment, copying the words of the song on her typewriter. Not only that, she can type 240 words a minute.

Strange as it seems, almost every trained "seal" (which is not a seal, but a sea lion) you see in a circus or zoo was captured by the same two men on a tiny Pacific island 20 miles off the coast of Lower California. The men, Steve and John Zolezzi, capture the sea lions in nets at night tide and train them as circus performers. They have caught and sold 1,200 sea lions—and have a virtual corner on the trained seal market.

Hawthorne Race Track, August 4.

Dear Al:

It is hard to wire you the winners the night before, due to changes in track conditions and jocks. Today, for some reason, an unknown stable boy was put up on Hernando. At that, he finished third. My long shot, Alpers, won, paying only $14.34, and Chief Bunting, as predicted, lead all the way with a $15 pay off. The only objection to tomorrow's card is that it looks too easy. So have a care. Bill will be back next week and you can shoot the works. Yours, MIKE.

First race—Lamporte and Westrope look to be a winning combination. Liberty Oak and Jens Son for what's left.

Second race—Must stick to the old reliable Cog-Air, though Voltamail will be hard to catch. Rusty may run third.

Fifth race—I will promise you Supreme Sweet will be leading by three length at the half, after which she is liable to duck under the fence. Fancoast and Rehoboth for place and show.

Sixth race—They will all be trying for this $5,000 stake, and I believe one of the light weights will get it. Late Date at a price, too. Action has a good chance and I am picking the favorite, Gallant Sir, to run third.

Mrs. Martinez Out, Latona May Forego Tourney

Play to Start Monday in New York

Men's Doubles Star to Go if Condition of Mother Is Better.

At least one of the six tennis players qualified to represent the District in the National Public Parks Championship Tournament, starting in New York Monday, will be unable to compete, and it is possible that a second will not play.

Mrs. Ruth Martinez, holder of the District women's public parks singles title, will be unable to leave Washington because of her duties as a teacher.

Latona May Not Go.

Tony Latona, coholder of the men's public parks doubles championship, may not make the trip because of the condition of his mother, who was injured in an automobile accident yesterday in which his grandfather was killed. Whether Latona will play in New York depends upon his mother's condition tomorrow when the Washington contingent leaves.

Rests in Doubles Team.

The burden of attempting to capture both the national women's doubles and singles titles will rest entirely upon the District's championship doubles team of Frances Walker and Frances Stone. Both will compete in the singles as well as the doubles.

Barney Welsh, Frank Shores and possibly Latona will represent the District in the men's events. Shore and Latona, District doubles champions, will also play in the singles, as will Welsh, Washington public parks singles title holder. In the event that Latona does not enter the National Tournament, his place on the doubles team will be filled by Welsh.

Colored Play Titles To Be Decided Today

Both the junior and senior colored playground championships will be decided today on the Howard Playground courts. In the senior class Edward Yaerwood, of Howard, will meet Frank Erater, of Logan, and in the junior division Sam Robinson, of Logan, will play Frank Henry, of Cardozo. Play will start at 2 o'clock.

Play in the playground championships at Chevy Chase is exceptionally good. An entire day of matches were played yesterday with the following results:

'31 Champion In U. S. Public Links Final

Miller, of Jacksonville, to Meet Ferrera Today; Rules Favorite.

EAST MORELAND MUNICIPAL COURSE, Portland, Oreg., Aug. 4 (AP).—Robert Lee Miller, of Jacksonville, Fla., defending champion, and Charles Ferrera, of San Francisco, the 1931 titlist, won the two finalist places in the national public links golf tournament here today.

With rain flooding the fairways and greens, Miller swamped Don Erickson, of Los Angeles, 6 and 5, after putting the skids under Bud Ward, of Olympia, Wash., 2 and 1, in the morning quarter finals.

Ferrera made short work of the qualifying sensation, Leslie Leal, of Bellingham, Wash., who shared medal honors with Tab Boyer, of Portland, drubbing the mill worker, 6 and 4, and then came from behind to dispose of Bruce McCormack, of Los Angeles, 2 and 0.

Beats Fellow Townsman.

McCormack ousted his fellow townsman, Stanley Seymour, 2 and 1, and Erickson nosed out Henry Batista, of Altadena, Calif., 2 up, in the other morning 18-hole contest.

Portland galleryites appeared to favor the Forida boy to retain his crown in the 36-hole finals tomorrow.

But the local golfing fans were looking forward with more interest to their own "championship" Sunday, when Tab Boyer will tangle with Leal in a 36-hole playoff for the qualifying medal trophy. The two boys tied for the honors with an even par card of 144 for the double-test round.

Girl Net Stars Are Subject Of Pegler

Miss Jacobs' Profile Is Held to Be Faintly Similar to Mrs. Moody's.

By Westbrook Pegler.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Although Mrs. Helen Wills Moody suffered a crick in her back and had to withdraw from the competition, the American young women gave the English girls a complete licking today in the first three matches of the Wightman Cup tennis competition on the grass at Forest Hills.

Miss Helen Jacobs, of California, who in her time has been the champion of all the world except Mrs. Moody, attended to the first and, as it was thought, the most formidable of the English girls. This was Miss Dorothy Round, a slender, rather solemn young woman, who had beaten Miss Jacobs and had taken a set from Mrs. Moody, herself, recently in London, being the first woman to do as much against Mrs. Moody in six years.

Miss Jacobs won, 6—4, 6—2.

Miss Sarah Palfrey, of Boston, then substituted for Mrs. Moody against Miss Peggy Scriver and won, 6—3, 6—1.

Finally, Miss Jacobs and Miss Palfrey beat Miss Round and Miss Mary Heeley in the doubles contest, 6—4, 6—2.

Eager to Take Money.

Four matches out of seven is the plan of the Wightman Cup competition, and persons wishing to see the cup retained in the U. S. A. for a third year were advised by public announcement that gentlemanly agents would be eager to take their money, as the circus people say, hard or soft, at conveniently located windows. Mention of funds is distasteful, of course, but there are bond issues on the stadium to think of and even in church it is necessary to ask the brothers to shower down, so the gents in charge felt that they could speak of the matter without serious sacrifice of their dowager dignity.

The attendance was sparse, possibly because the sky was gray and apparently on the point of giving rain. The customers congregated behind the two ends of the court and ranged upward about halfway to the rim of the steep stadium. At $2.20 per head the cashiers would seem to have laid their hands to no more than $6,000.

Chucks Her Sweater.

Miss Jacobs' biscuit-colored profile, a blond complexion burned to the even, delicate tan common to Pacific Coasters, was faintly similar to that of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, a high forehead, straight nose and strong, curved chin, all suggesting the high aloofness of the Grecian ladies in the statuary galleries. Miss Jacobs came onto the pitch wearing a pink sweater, but chucked it after a couple of games, appearing in the hospital-white, trained nurse effect, which is standard with the tennis ladies at home and abroad, except that some of the girls nowadays are appearing in shorts. In the second set, Miss Jacobs' hair set began to melt and her bobbed locks began to cling to her cheeks in clammy strands. She has the typical huge right arm of the girls who play tennis for a long time and very little range of facial expression when intent on the game.

The patrons, a gay dazzle of garden colors made by sweaters and other costumes of summery hues, turned and shot looks at one another as the graveyard voice of the loud speaker announced that Mrs Moody would be unable to give them any squints at her famous art this afternoon. But they broke into refined giggles as the voice went on to recite the doctor's diagnosis in a lot of Latin, which seemed to denote nothing less than galloping disintegration, but turned out to mean just a pain in the back.

Mrs. Wightman's Protege.

The Palfrey girl has the look, at a distance, of a child who has just left her dolls and means to hurry right back to them, being very small and deceptively youngish, but she has been coming to the large tournaments for several years now and must be 20 or more. She is the protege of Mrs. Wightman, the former Hazel Hotchkiss, who gave the trophy of this competition and who sat by the umpire's chair today in white tennis costume with a blue band about her head, watching the young one play.

Play at Frederick.

The Horning Jewelers will play the Frederick A. C. on the latter's diamond at 3 o'clock Sunday. All Horning players are requested to report at Thirty-seventh street and Wisconsin avenue at noon.

Miss Gottlieb First Woman To Beat Wales in Golf Play

LONDON, Aug. 4 (AP).—A proud young lady from Tuckahoe, N. Y., Miss Beatrice Gottlieb, tucked away in her treasure chest today a score card signed by the Prince of Wales and attesting to the fact that she had beaten him at golf, first woman of any nationality to accomplish that stunt.

That was just one of a series of trophies that littered the field, however, after Miss Gottlieb, a well-known American golfer who competed in the recent British women's championships at Glen Eagles, scored her triumph, 5 and 4, in an 18-hole round with the prince at Coombe Hill.

The prince, a better than average golfer and runner-up in 1933 Parliamentary championships, received a club from the bag of sticks Miss Gottlieb used to beat him with a medal score of 80 to his 83. The young lady also had a box of golf balls as a gift from the prince. Archie Compston, Giant British pro, who accompanied them, cherished the memory of a blistering 65 that swamped them both.

And in the United States, in Atlanta, Ga., the club from which Miss Gottlieb's present to the prince was copied, suddenly assumed new and more valuable proportions in the eyes of O. B. Keeler, nationally known golf writer, inasmuch as the great Bobby Jones also carries a copy, a gift from Keeler, in his bag. Keeler gave Miss Gottlieb the club she in turn gave the prince.

Miss Gottlieb, 28 years old, blonde, and a 1-handicap player, today told all about her golfing experiences with the prince.

"I was invited to play a round with the prince at Sunningdale and we finished all square after a little bit of indifferent golf here and there," she explained.

"Afterward we went to Coombe Hill. Archie Compston joined our match and he went around in 65 and gave us both a terrible beating.

"During the round the prince saw an iron club with which I imagine I was playing rather well. I asked him if he would like to have it and I felt quite happy when he said he would take the club. The prince gave me a box of golf balls, of which I am very proud and he signed my golfing scorecard, which I shall always treasure."

Wild Bullet Fired in Chase Strikes Auto

Washington Man Narrowly Escapes Being Struck; Two Arrested.

One man narrowly escaped a pistol bullet and two others were arrested by police as result of a wild automobile chase through the Northeast section of Washington late yesterday.

One of six bullets fired by Policeman William McEwen, of the Liquor Squad, struck the back of a parked automobile seat occupied a few seconds before the shooting by Oscar Nelson, 703 D street northeast.

Police said the arrested men, Edward O'Brien and William R. Carpenter, both of 486 F street southwest, were attempting to dump 24 half-gallon cans of whisky when they were arrested. They were charged with possession and transportation of liquor.

Reserve Status For Bank Likely

Hamilton Membership in Federal System Is Assured.

Membership for the proposed Hamilton National Bank of Washington in the Federal Reserve System is virtually assured, it was announced yesterday. Examiners of the Fifth Federal Reserve District Bank of Richmond, Va., have completed their examination of the assets of eight restricted banks that will form the Hamilton institution with the foregoing objective in view.

Findings of the examiners are said to coincide with those of national bank examiners and examiners of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which on Thursday approved loans aggregating $5,455,000 to these banks participating in the Hamilton plan.

As a national bank, it will be necessary for the Hamilton institution to be a member of the Federal Reserve System. It is expected the new bank will receive its membership credentials at the same time its charter is granted by the office of the Comptroller of the Currency.

Paralysis Victim In Home Loan Job

R. E. Philpot and President Exchanged Ideas on Fighting Disease.

Two men who have suffered from the same disease, infantile paralysis are helping to conquer the obstacle with the same winning smile.

One is President Roosevelt. The other, Richard E. Philpot, new assistant treasurer of the Home Owners Loan Corporation. Mr. Philpot, who is 29, has fought the disease for eight years. He uses crutches. In 1923, he was one of the best football prospects in the South. Despite his affliction he conducted a real estate business in Tampa, Fla.

A frequent visitor to Warm Springs, Ga., Mr. Philpot became acquainted with President Roosevelt. Through letters, each taught the other tricks in muscle adjustment. Mr. Philpot plans to visit the President when he returns to the White House.

Signing 7,000 Papers Gives Official Cramp

Patrick J. Maloney, treasurer of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, has writers' cramp. The signing of 7,000 interim certificates to be exchanged for the bonds of the corporation is said to be responsible, and he must sign 11,000 more.

The name of William F. Stevenson, chairman of the corporation board, is attached with a stamp, but Maloney must use pen and ink for his. Abbreviating it to "P. J. Maloney" helped a little, but only a little.

Police Rescue Man After Bridge Jump

And he would have succeeded had not Capt. J. F. Marks and Pvt. George Greenip, of Police Precinct Station No. 11, pulled him out of the river after he had jumped off the Washington end of the Anacostia Bridge. He was taken to Gallinger Hospital.

Oyster Hauling Not So Good, So Veteran Skipper Is Going Cruising With Youngsters

Artificial Leg HandicapLeads Man to Suicide

T. F. McDonough, Unable to Work Without Painful Limb, Hangs Self.

Discouraged with life because he could no longer wear his artificial leg and do a man's work, Thomas F. McDonough, 68, 1519 Neal street northeast, yesterday hanged himself in the basement of his rooming house. He lost his leg in a train accident, and had worn an artificial limb for 25 years.

In hanging himself, the man had apparently mounted a box and then kicked it from under him.

His body was found suspended from the rafter in the cellar by his landlady, Mrs. Aimee Humphrey. His closest friend had been Mrs. Humphrey's husband, Omar, who is blind.

Sorrowfully, the man is said to have laid aside his wooden leg. It pained him and he could no longer wear it, Mr. Humphrey said.

"I'll never be able to work again. I might as well die," he said as he picked up the crutches he hated.

Sure, Mosquitoes Are Bad in Parks

Officials Agree With Complaining Citizens, But There Are No Funds.

When you talk about mosquitoes at the parks office, you get the same kind of answer the traveling salesman got from an Alabama hotel proprietor.

The salesman, after spending a sleepless night fighting the invaders, went downstairs in disgust.

So when complaining District residents go to the parks office with their troubles, the parks officials politely agree that the mosquito situation is the worst since the drought of 1930. This year there's no mosquito-fighting fund.

St. Elizabeths Patients Need Playing Cards

Cards may be sent to the District of Columbia Chapter of the Red Cross, at 1730 E street northwest. Donors may also call the Red Cross and have them collected.

Edith Marcy, One of Best Bugeyes on Potomac, Is His Pride.

"It's a business where you have to take the bitter with the sweet," said Capt. Jack Bryant, owner of the bugeye Edith Marcy in characterizing oyster hauling and "freightin'," on the Potomac and Chesapeake Bay.

Few can speak with more authority, for Capt. Bryant has been on the river more than 50 years.

"I've been on the bay in weather not fittin' for a dog," he said reflectively, "but I never had any real trouble. Of course, you never know when something might go wrong. That's what makes river work interesting."

Loans Boat to Scouts.

Capt. Bryant is putting the Edith Marcy, one of the fastest bugeyes on the Potomac, at the service of the Washington Sea Scouts for a series of cruises they are planning this summer. The more cruises the better, as far as Capt. Bryant is concerned, for he has had little work on the river since the trucks and power boats began to replace the old-time oyster boats.

"There was a time when our boats were the only ones there were to bring oysters to Washington," the ruddy riverman explained. "I remember when I took a pair of 16-foot oars and rowed all night just to get to the markets first. The first ones there got the best prices."

"Was the Edith Marcy a good oyster boat?"

"Wish I'd had her in those days. She was a sure enough oyster boat. But she has been on the Potomac only about 15 years and the oyster business has been going down all that time."

Best of His Boats.

The captain has owned the Edith Marcy only four years, although she is about 30 years old. Before the Edith Marcy, he had three other boats on the Potomac, two sloops, the Fannie Shepard and the Emmett Arthur, and a square-sailed bugeye, the Winnie Windsor. He ran the Winnie Windsor for 28 years. She was a good boat, but the Edith Marcy, a sharp-sailed bugeye, is faster, easier to handle, and can hold more oysters.

"The oyster business ain't what it used to be," Capt. Bryant continued, his kindly, blue eyes sparkling as he reminisced. "Nowadays people don't eat oysters like they did then. You could get them at every corner saloon and there was always a market for them."

And He Can't Swim!

"Ever have any trouble with the fogs up on the bay, captain?"

"No, but I've been in them when I couldn't see half the length of the boat. That's dangerous weather. You never know when you might get smashed into. I always stood still until the fog cleared. That's safest."

"Swim? I never swam a stroke in my life."

"No. I've known boat captains all up and down the river that can't swim a lick. Maybe it's risky, but I just never bothered to learn. I've fallen in the water lots of times, but somehow I always get out all right."

Going With Scouts.

"You'll go with the Sea Scouts, won't you?"

"Oh, yes. The Edith Marcy ain't going anywhere without me."

Captain Bryant lives with his daughter at 635 G street southwest. For recreation he plays the guitar and sings the river songs. Every day he goes down to the river to look after his boat.

"A boat is just like a house," he explained. "You can't leave it closed up and expect it to stay in good condition. That's why I keep a colored boy on the Edith Marcy all the time."

$125,000 Paid At Auction for Everett House

F. C. di Zerega Buys Home on Q Street That Once Was Notable.

The Everett mansion, three-story granite and marble dwelling at 1606 Twenty-third street northwest, present leased quarters of the Turkish Embassy, was sold at public auction yesterday to Frederick C. di Zerega for $125,000. Mr. di Zerega, who gave his address as Leesburg, Va., said he represented himself in the bidding.

Before the sale, George P. Lemm, attorney, announced a protest against the proceedings in behalf of the owner of the property, Mrs. Grace Burnap Everett, widow of Edward H. Everett, capitalist and original owner.

Noteholders were represented in the bidding, which sent the price from $50,000 to $125,000. The sale was advertised by Erskine Gordon and William M. Seay, trustees. Adam A. Weschler was the auctioneer.

The palatial residence, which stands at the intersection of Q and Twenty-third streets and Sheridan circle, was built by Mr. Everett and was long one of the show places of this exclusive section. It is across the street from the Roumanian Legation, where Qreen Marie of Roumania stayed during her visit to this city.

The structure was erected in 1910 and ranges in depth from 39 to 66 feet and in width from 31 to 91 feet. George Oakley Totten, jr., was the architect of the dwelling, which was constructed at an originally estimated cost of $150,000. Its current assessed valuation is $425,010, of which $80,010 is for land and $345,000 for improvements.

The complainants and the amounts they sued for are Victor Sykesm, $71.43; William J. Panzer, $68.15; H. J. Wilkes, $69.07; Robert Sutton, $23.20, and Howard Chamberlin, $66.

Done Wrong!

Woman Robbed of Clothes as She Seeks Food for "Hungry" Man.

The virtue of kindness and charity received a blow yesterday from an unidentified man who begged bread from Mrs. Nannie Nichols, 1315 New Hampshire avenue northwest.

Mrs. Nichols' kindness cost her five evening dresses and a flannel suit of clothes, all valued at $265.

She asked the man to wait in a front room while she went to the kitchen to prepare some food for him. Before she returned, however, the "hungry" man had partaken heartily of her wardrobe and disappeared.

HospitalHelper At Mount Alto Refuses to Quit

Attendant Says Resignation Demand Follows Objection to Quarters.

Paul H. Smith, attendant at Mount Alto Hospital, who has been leading the fight for better living conditions at the hospital, said yesterday that officials of the Veterans' Administration had asked for his resignation.

Smith added that he refused to resign on the grounds his actions had been concerned entirely with promotion of the welfare of his fellow attendants.

Maj. F. W. Wilson, Medical Corps, who has been investigating alleged insanitary and crowded living quarters furnished to employes at the hospital, said his report would be completed in a few days.

Most attendants have submitted signed complaints and are being questioned individually by Maj. Wilson. Rumors that the present quarters might be condemned and new lodgings constructed could not be verified pending release of Wilson's report.

Several dilapidated dressers and broken pieces of furniture in attendants' quarters have been refinished or replaced. Window curtains have been placed in other rooms.

Monopoly Feared In Shoe Men's Code

(Associated Press.)

A charge that large Eastern manufacturers were attempting to dominate the shoe industry was made yesterday by Cleveland A. Newton, of St. Louis, as he filed with the Recovery Administration formal opposition to a code of competition presented by the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers Association.

Newton, acting in behalf of Midwestern and Southern interests, organized recently as the American Shoe Manufacturers Association, said, in an interview, the code of the national association would give it complete control of the industry and would drive many small manufacturers out of business.

The national association code provided a wage differential of $1 between cities and towns, and set itself up as the coordinating agency for the industry. Newton filed amendments proposing a $2 wage differential between urban and rural communities.

Dr. Price, who is master of St. Mark's College, University of Adelaide, is in America as a fellow of the Rockefeller Foundation. He returned recently from the Caribbean area.

Armored Auto To Carry Man Back to Illinois

Taking every precaution against an attack by gangster friends of his prisoner, Sheriff E. L. Welter, of Ottawa, Ill., and two deputies last night made final preparations to rush to the Illinois city with Frank Zimmerman, wanted there in connection with a bank robbery, kidnaping and jail break.

The prisoner will be taken before Chief Justice Alfred Wheat in the Supreme Court this morning for an extradition hearing, and if the request is honored, Sheriff Welter will leave at once with his prisoner.

Zimmerman is said to have participated in a $52,000 holdup of the Union National Bank, of Streator, Ill., in May, 1932. Several members of the gang, caught by Illinois officers, were later taken from the county jail in a daring machine gun raid. Zimmerman is alleged to have engineered the break.

A communication from Chicago yesterday revealed that authorities there wish to question Zimmerman in the fatal shooting of two policemen.

Zimmerman was apprehended here Tuesday afternoon by Detective Sergts. R. J. Cox and C. H. Schrever. He had been hunted throughout the country for a year.

Laundry Owners Ask Code Hearing

Request Follows Rejection of Pay Scale Once Approved.

(Associated Press.)

A full hearing by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson on the wage rates which caused the withdrawal of Recovery Administration approval of the laundry code was asked last night by the industry.

Lloyd A. Peck, general manager of the Laundry Owners National Association, said the laundry owners believed that at the hearing they could submit "facts which will show the code contains fair and reasonable rates."

The code was disapproved yesterday after the laundry owners had been authorized Thursday to put it into effect. The administration objected particularly to a section which would permit the payment of wages of 14 cents an hour or less to women workers in the South.

Plans for city-wide cooperation are being made by the trade bodies. An organization meeting will be held at 11 a. m. Monday at Board of Trade headquarters.

"Why, of course I wouldn't say that."

Ankle Broken, Boy Sleeps in Park for Week

Job Seeker Admitted to Hospital Through Aid of Police Officer.

After sleeping in parks for a week with fractured ankle received last Saturday when a fence at Ninth street and Constitution avenue southwest fell on him, Raymond Briegly, 19, of Holland, Va., was admitted to Gallinger Hospital yesterday through the aid of Lieut. Lewis A. Carlin of the First Precinct.

Brierly told police he had been refused aid by three welfare agencies after being treated at Emergency Hospital for what doctors told him was a swollen leg.

He said he came to Washington to take a job promised him by a local concern. The accident happened shortly after his arrival.

Realizing the youth was seriously injured when taken to the police station by Edwin Cavanaugh, 515 F street northwest, yesterday, Lieut. Carlin was forced to book him on a charge of investigation, he said, before Gallinger officials would admit him.

Marlboro Court Sends 7 to Jail

On one of the heaviest days in the history of the Marlboro police force, seven defendants were committed to jail yesterday in default of fines imposed by Judge J. Chew Sheriff. Six more were held for action of the grand jury. Of the 76 cases brought before the court, 23 were continued and 19 forfeited.

The largest amount forfeited was deposited by Ernest D. Lewis, 513 Third street northwest. Lewis relinquished collateral amounting to $109.90 by his failure to appear in court. He was charged with reckless driving and driving while intoxicated, by State Policeman E. B. Daneshower, July 30.

Josh Wood, his two sons, Horace and Berry, and Harvey Fergerson, all of Woodyard, Md., asked for a grand jury trial. They were arrested recently by Prince Georges police as a result of what was termed a "bootleggers' war." All were released on bond.

Alexandria Court Cleared.

Elliott F. Hoffman, clerk of the Alexandria Corporation Court, states there will be no August term of court, the docket having been cleared at the July term.

Home Owners Wait Loans to Halt Evictions

8 Foreclosure Cases Given to Appraisers; Court May Delay Sales.

Eight cases of home owners threatened with foreclosure were placed with appraisers last night by the District office of the Home Owners Loan Corporation.

Sale in one case is scheduled for Tuesday. If this case is found eligible for a loan, the office will ask the District Supreme Court to set aside the sale.

Indications that one of the largest insurance companies will consider acceptance of the corporation bonds in exchange for mortgages were given yesterday when the company instructed its agents to refer all applications for consent from home owners to the company's home office. This company had opposed acceptance.

The bonds are being favored in view of the Treasury Department's decision to accept them at face value and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's readiness to lend up to 80 per cent of their face value. Sentiment also is being changed, it is believed, by President Roosevelt's determination to see the loan program carried through.

Particular significance is placed on the local situation by the fact that District building and loan associations are under supervision of the Comptroller of the Currency. Mortgages in pressing cases here are held for the most part by building and loan associations. One association advised the local loan office yesterday that it would accept "some of the bonds."

Ousted Detectives To Be Prosecuted

Prosecution of Third Precinct Detectives Joseph W. Shimon and William V. Christian, now under suspension, on third degree charges was ordered by the District Commissioners yesterday upon recommendation of Corporation Counsel William W. Bride.

Robert E. Lynch, assistant corporation counsel, was assigned to the prosecution before the Police Trial Board, probably Wednesday. The prosecution will be based on the complaint of Thomas B. Washington, 26-year-old colored tap dancer, who charged that he was beaten by the detectives Saturday.

Washington has refused to prosecute the detectives, but they have not been reinstated. The case of Elizia T. Ford, crippled colored janitor, who also charges that he was struck by the detectives, has not been brought officially before the commissioners or the corporation counsel.
